EXPLORING THE RUFIJI.

The Prospective Commerce of Dar Salaam.

ZANZIBAR, East Coast of Africa, Oct. 19, 1874.

As I sit down to the table and take up the writing implements to record my experiences of the last few weeks a wish darts to my mind—that the art of writing was never invented. It is true. Writing to me is such a labor at this moment. I have but the day before yesterday returned from the exploration of the Rufiji River and its delta—returned only in time to be compelled to write to you of what I have seen, because if I do not take advantage of the four days of grace given me by the stay of the mail steamer in port you and your readers would have to wait another month before information could be received by you of the movements of your "Commissioner." Yet would I gladly avail myself of some excuse—a reasonable excuse—to postpone writing to you for various reasons. One main reason is that it is exceedingly hot and the perspiration is unrestrainable, and a feeling of lassitude and ennui which has succeeded the return to Zanzibar from our exploration of the Rufiji is inimical to physical exertion or mental thought. Besides, every few moments I am troubled by the arrival of volunteers for the expedition into the interior, the rumor of its intended departure having stirred up an heroic desire in the minds of the able-bodied and poor people, residents of this town, to visit the distant regions of Africa, where the tribes are called pagans; where elephants—and consequently ivory—are numerous; where there are vast extents of level country "covered" with game of all kinds. These volunteers come to make "snauri"—to hold a palaver or talk—to question me respecting the amount of pay I can afford to give them, the probable duration of the journey I propose to make, the countries I propose to visit, and other things of like nature. These volunteers are not to be despised; they are not to be told to depart without words of a conciliatory and friendly kind, for out of this class the members of the expedition must be selected, without whom its objects could never be consummated. This palaver, therefore, requires time, tact and patience; and though I am inwardly fuming and storming at these several interruptions I endeavor to commend myself cheerfully to my fate, hoping that my apparent placable disposition will invite confidence on the part of the volunteers, and that my excuses, which I humbly tender, may conciliate the editors of the Daily Telegraph and the NEW YORK HERALD for the brevity of this letter or the sterility of its information.

Ever since my march to Ujiji in search of Dr. Livingstone I have entertained a desire that I might be permitted to explore that most promising of all East African rivers—the Rufiji. Burton, my heroic predecessor in Africa, had, with his usual industry, collected much valuable information respecting this river; and when, subsequently, I heard from the natives that all the small streams to the south of that country were received by the Rwaha, or Rufiji—that the Kisigo, an important river in Urori, which is south of Ugogo, also emptied into the Rwaha—I mentally placed the Rufiji among the list of those rivers whose navigation benefits commerce and the world. I entertained the opinion that the Rufiji was a river worthy of exploration; that it was a river likely to benefit East and that portion of Central Africa contiguous to it; that by its means the Gospel might find readier and more feasible access into the interior than by any other route, not even excluding the Wami River, whose utmost limit of navigation I place at Mbumi-Usagara, at the foot of the Usagara Mountains; that by means of this noble stream the white merchants of Europe and America might exchange their cottons and beads for the valuable products of the interior. I say this was my opinion, until I saw in some geographical publication two several accounts of explorations of the Rufiji. The first purported to be an account of an exploration made by Dr. John Kirk and Captain Wharton, of the surveying ship Shearwater, in a steam launch; the second was made by Captain Elton, first assistant to the Political Agent at Zanzibar, who proceeded inland from Sumanga, on the north side of the Kikunia mouth of the Rufiji.

Messrs. Kirk and Wharton proceeded as far as Fugulia, which I presume to be the same as that which the natives call Agunia, or near it. Captain Elton reached Mpenbeno, ten miles higher up the river. All these gentlemen expressed themselves emphatically against the possibility of utilizing the Rufiji River. Of course after such emphatic expressions of opinion I dared not hope that I would return from the Rufiji with any better opinion of it. The following letter will show what my impressions of the navigable utility of the Rufiji are, with which I venture to say nine-tenths of American river steamboat captains would at once agree if they were called upon to examine and report upon the river:—

At half-past three P. M. of the 30th September I sailed from Zanzibar in the Yarmouth yawl Wave, bound south. The yawl was purchased for the purpose of exploring the portion of East Africa which I considered to be of most interest to the philanthropic and commercial public of England and America. Through the courtesy and kindness of the gentlemen of the Peninsular and Oriental office, on Leadenhall street, and those of the British India Steam Navigation office—more especially Captain Bayley, of the former, and Messrs. Mackinnon and Dawes, of the latter—I was enabled to have her safely shipped and landed at Zanzibar without damage, though she was a large and heavy boat. Her dimensions were 41 feet length and 9 feet beam; with her deep rudder shipped she drew five feet, which we afterward found to be a disadvantage. Had I been wiser I should have ordered a second rudder, specially made for river navigation, to be exchanged on entering the river for the sea rudder.

The crew of the Wave mustered, beside myself, two efficient, industrious and willing young Englishmen, Francis and Edward Pocock, twenty-four Wangwana or freemen of Zanzibar, armed with Snider rifles, two black cabin boys and a cabin passenger in the shape of a thoroughbred English bull terrier, Jack, who for his fare and passage was to make himself useful at night while on the Rufiji to warn off midnight plunderers. If you add as stores two casks of water, a thousand pounds of rice and some cabin provisions for the whites, it will be seen that she was a boat of some capacity. Several officers of the cruising fleet at Zanzibar who had seen her at anchor in port had spoken highly of her, and some had said that she was just the kind of boat Her Majesty's cruisers on the East Coast of Africa ought to be supplied with for slave dhow catching in shallow waters. After a three weeks' trial of this kind of boat I am inclined to the same opinion. With a moderate monsoon breeze she travels faster than any steam launch that ever came to Zanzibar could. As an instance of her sailing qualities it is worth mention that on a run from Bagamoyo to Zanzibar, a distance of about twenty-five miles, the Wave beat a large dhow by two hours.

After rounding Shangani Point we were favored with a stiff breeze from the southeast and steered for Mbwenni, on the mainland. The natives yelled their approbation of the speed at which the Wave dashed past the dhows bound for the coast of the mainland. Owing to the head wind we were compelled to pay close attention to our course and keep a good lookout to avoid the numerous reefs and sand patches which make the navigation of the sea in the vicinity a difficult and perplexing task to a novice. No sooner had we passed by the pale green waters of the South Lackbrey bank than the Northern Harps indicated their presence by their gleaming tops of sand and a thousand short snow-crested waves, which tumbled tumultuously over their low sloping shores; while on our starboard side the Hamisa bank and its dangerous neighbors showed horrent enough by many an angry looking wave. A short half hour of swift sailing brought us in the neighborhood of the ugly dark coral reefs, strangely called the "Cow Reefs," which cover an area of about three square miles. The helm was pressed hard down, and the Wave was forced almost in the very teeth of the rising gale. Not until the last white crest over the reefs had disappeared from view were we relieved from anxiety and able to share in the general enthusiasm of the crew at the perfect behavior of the tiny vessel.

Shortly after dark we anchored at a point a few miles north of Mbwenni and disposed ourselves to sleep as best we could, the surf sounding drearily monotonous in our ears, and a faint rumor of the noises of the night which are caused by the myriad insects of tropical Africa reaching us only during the pauses of the heavy surf-beats.

At dawn we were wakened, thoroughly damp and cold from the night dew, and one of the young Englishmen was soon obliged to lie down again from his first attack of fever. It struck me at this moment that we were engaged in rather a foolish trip if we intended to tramp into the interior, and that to brave the malaria of the Rufiji delta just as we ought to be sparing of the health and energy we brought from Europe was not a wise proceeding. This thought, however, was but the consequence of the misery in which we had passed the night and the damp cold we then experienced. It was soon stilled, however, by the genial warmth of the rising sun and by the bright green appearance of the palms and patches of forest which lined the shore.

With a favorable land breeze we sailed southward, clinging to the shore as closely as possible that we might lose nothing of the riant beauty of the varied and interesting bits of land scenery.

Some people may, perhaps, object to the term "interesting," applied to East African scenery, but I maintain that a cluster of palms, overtopping an humble little fishing village, with a background of dense jungle, swathed in deep dark green, and a foreground of a white, sandy beach, laved with ocean waves, deserve to be termed interesting. The palms and sea contribute that which makes the picture one of interest. Without the palms the background would become a mere jungle; without the sea before it the sandy beach would represent nothing but sterility.

Taken in this sense, then, in coasting southward numbers of such scenes are revealed, becoming only more interesting when a more important town comes to view, with numbers of square white houses, like so many white painted blocks of wood under the ever beautiful palm groves. Such a town is Mbwenni, near Cape Thomas.

From Mbwenni southward to Dar Salaam the coast retains the characteristics already spoken of. Small dark brown huts, clustered under the shade of a tree of ample foliage and enormous girth, are frequent, separated by jungle, through which a narrow footpath runs, serving as the commercial highway along the seaboard.

Soon after passing Konduchi, at a distance of forty-one miles south of Zanzibar, we come to Dar Salaam. This town possesses some interest as the creation of the late Seyyid Majid, Sultan of Zanzibar. As we round Condogo Point a group of islands make their appearance, consisting of Sinda and its neighboring islets, and westward of these a ridge of tall trees is seen. The tall trees are cocoa palms, and the presence of such a large plantation indicates in East Africa a town of some importance and magnitude. This is precisely what Dar Salaam was intended to be by Seyyid Majid. He found a fishing village of a few humble huts the possessor of an ample harbor where three times the number of his naval and mercantile fleet might lie at anchor secure from the dangers of wind and a boisterous sea, and he at once conceived the project of making this fishing village a seaport and the depot for his Central African trade. He sent his laborers and slaves to clear the neighborhood of the jungle, which had voraciously swallowed every portion of cultivable ground close to the water's edge. He then caused 200,000 cocoa palms to be planted, which in time, if carefully looked after and nourished, would bring him in a revenue of from $150,000 to $200,000. A palace was built as a residence for him, and a fort or barracks for his officers and soldiers. Influential Arabs engaged in commerce were also invited to follow his example and take lots for building purposes. Several chose to do so, and about a dozen imposing edifices, compared to the former humble fishing huts, gleamed white and large in contrast to the green fronds of the palms. To those of sanguine disposition such a scene must have assured them that commercial progress was begun in earnest in East Africa, and that Seyyid Majid was a wise and energetic prince.

In reality, the Sultan of Zanzibar had inaugurated a work which all Europeans who look beyond home could heartily commend. The trade with Central Africa was being rapidly developed; large consignments of ivory from new regions were constantly arriving at Zanzibar. New copal diggings were discovered near Dar Salaam, and to the westward and southward. What the Sultan's dominions lacked was a proper port for trade, and in the harbor of Dar Salaam he had found deep water and roomy anchorage, easy of access from Zanzibar and centrally located for the southern and northern towns. The seacoast towns whence the caravans departed for the interior in search of ivory labored under various disadvantages. Mombasa, to the north, though possessing a moderately good harbor, was limited to the west by the vast hunting and marauding grounds of the Masai; to the north by the intractable Gallas, while to the south other towns claimed to be as good starting-points for Africa as Mombasa. Saadani, Whindi and Bagamoyo were dangerous ports for vessels, the approaches to each infested with reefs and sand banks. Mboamaji, to the south of Dar Salaam, had a similar disadvantage, while Kilwa was too far removed from Zanzibar.

Everything promised fairly well for the success of Dar Salaam as a future rival to Zanzibar until Seyyid Majid died. Then all the fine schemes relating to its prosperity perished as it became known that Seyyid Burghash, his successor, did not share in the views of his predecessor. The palace, the barracks, the houses, the palm grove, the fine harbor, with its deep, still, green water, are here to this day as Seyyid Majid's last effort left them, silent and comparatively deserted. Not one house has been built here since his death. The Arabs who did build houses preferred to remain in Zanzibar.

A few months ago the question was agitated in England as to what could be done with the freed slaves, and I remember that some suggested Dar Salaam as the most eligible place where they might be settled and instructed in useful arts of industry, with which, after a visit to the port, I agree. Here are good, roomy houses already built, but uninhabited. A large area of ground already cleared of jungle, but comparatively uncultivated, a capacious and deep harbor, likely to suffice for the harboring of all vessels which may engage in East African commerce for the next hundred years, above which at present not a single flag waves.

I am informed that about 600 slaves have been captured within the last six months in the Mozambique Channel by British cruisers. Now the question may be asked, What has been done with those slaves? Have they been, as usual, leased out to Mauritius sugar planters at so many dollars a head to remunerate the government for the expense it undertook to fit their men-of-war for these slave hunting expeditions? Let us hope not, but we may as well be told what becomes of the freed slaves.

From the silent harbor of Dar Salaam we sailed next day, with the same stubborn headwind against us. We tacked and retacked for twelve mortal hours, sometimes dashing the spray over our bows with long lines of reefs close to our lee, and sometimes plunging in the deep blue of the ocean; and at night we anchored under the shadows which the palms of Kimbigi Head threw across the sea.

LETTERS FROM THE GANGS.

"Raw Heads and Bloody Bones."

A Terrible Condition of Society Described.

SCRANTON, Pa., Dec. 1, 1874.

"MR. HENRY LITTLE—The reason of so many warnings and ne'er a blow, you had friends in the trade. You are a doomed man. Prepare to meet your God.—MOONRAKER."
"Put Yourself in His Place."

The American reader of the popular work quoted from above, as he read these threatening lines, no doubt regarded them as the development of a sensational school of fiction, or, if he gave them the slightest credence, thanked heaven that he lived in a land in which no such epistles could be penned. In my former communications from this neighborhood I simply endeavored to portray the scenes I witnessed with my own eyes and to represent the condition of society, which, I claim, no one who has not studied them is competent to contradict; but I have yet a mission to fulfil in which the improbable becomes real and in which fiction becomes fact.

THE MOLLY M'GUIRES.

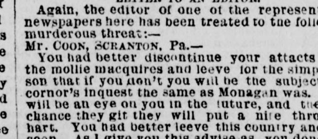

A reverend gentleman on Friday last, in a letter dated at Mahoney City, many miles from this point, denied the existence of any organized bands of murderous banditti, and backed up his arguments from his own personal experience among those with whom the "Mollies" are supposed to have originated. Without attempting to dispute his arguments as they apply to that particular locality in which he resides, I deem it but right to state that from the section of the country in which I am now writing such murderous bands do exist, and that they are daily and nightly performing their bloody work. I do not know, nor is it possible to discover, by what names these desperadoes call themselves, but whenever any fiendish deed of theirs is fulfilled, whenever their base, inhuman intent has been accomplished and whenever a mutilated or "crucified" corpse is found, the plot of the murder and the circumstances of its frightful culmination is always ascribed to the Molly McGuires. Murderous gangs, either organized or meeting by chance, do riot in the coal regions, and, after the evidence given below, let those deny it who can.

THE PROOF.

From time to time many prominent gentlemen residing in this locality have received threatening and brutal letters ordering them to vacate the neighborhood within a given period or else submit themselves to the pangs of suffering and death. Many of these letters have fallen into the possession of your correspondent, and here they will be found exactly as they were written. The following was addressed to Constable Adam Pfiefer:—

Mister adam fifer esq of hyde park you take noatis to leave hyde park in ten days from this time or git your cofin reddy.

by order of the president.

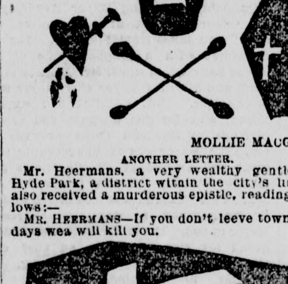

LETTER TO AN EDITOR.

Again, the editor of one of the representative newspapers here has been treated to the following murderous threat:—

MR. COON, SCRANTON, Pa.—

You had better discontinue your attacts upon the mollie macquires and leeve for the simple reson that if you don't you will be the subject of a cornor's inquest the same as Monagan was. There will be an eye on you in the future, and the first chance they git they will put a nife thro your hart. You had better leeve this country and do it soon. As I give you this advise as you done me a good turn once.

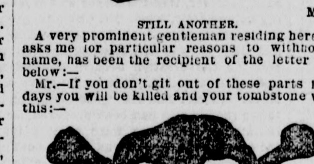

MOLLIE MAGUIRE.

ANOTHER LETTER.

Mr. Heermans, a very wealthy gentleman of Hyde Park, a district within the city's limit, has also received a murderous epistle, reading as follows:—

MR. HEERMANS—If you don't leeve town in tenn days wea will kill you.

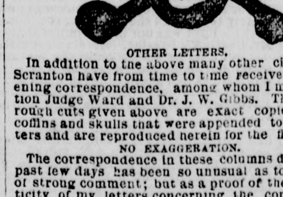

M. M.

STILL ANOTHER.

A very prominent gentleman residing here, who asks me for particular reasons to withhold his name, has been the recipient of the letter given below:—

Mr.—If you don't git out of these parts in ten days you will be killed and your tombstone will be this:—

OTHER LETTERS.

In addition to the above many other citizens of Scranton have from time to time received threatening correspondence, among whom I may mention Judge Ward and Dr. J. W. Gibbs. The crude, rough cuts given above are exact copies of the coffins and skulls that were appended to the letters and are reproduced herein for the first time.

NO EXAGGERATION.

The correspondence in these columns during the past few days has been so unusual as to partake of strong comment; but as a proof of the authenticity of my letters concerning the condition of society here, I append the following editorial from the Scranton Free Press, which is one of the leading and representative sheets of the city:—

Murder runs riot and bloodshed is an everyday occurrence, while the shooting of firearms is heard upon the streets every night of the year. The authorities frequently awake in the morning to find the body of a man lying in the public streets, cold and stiff, weltering in his gore. He had been murdered some time during the previous night, by whom no one save the perpetrators know, and no one interests himself to find out. A regular fight in which ten or a dozen take sides and use clubs, stones and pistols, is a regular Sunday night occurrence down about John Horn's—and this is only four blocks from the very centre of the city. No one is ever arrested there. No complaints are ever entered. Mr. Horn fears to complain of the desperadoes who break in his windows and smash up his furniture for fear that they in turn will complain of him keeping his house open on Sunday in violation of law. It is all nonsense to try to cover up and hide the true state of society here. It is lawless beyond precedent, desperate beyond measure, murderous beyond imagination. The Times remarks that "Strangers who read these accounts, and are unacquainted with the facts here, would naturally have an idea that the coal regions are almost equal to the Western frontier." The writer of this has lived on the Western frontiers—on the very borders of civilization—and he never yet saw a state of society more dangerous to business, to life and the peaceful pursuits of happiness than the Luzerne coal regions. The business men of Scranton owe it to themselves and to the community generally to take prompt and active measures to bring about such a revolution in the government of the city as will mete out swift punishment to the desperadoes who have made the name of the third city in the State synonymous with every bloody deed on the criminal calendar.

Thus it will be seen that the condition of society is precisely as I have represented it. During the past forty years one hundred and twenty-three murders have been committed and only three men have been hanged. Within four years twenty-four murders have occurred and no man executed at all. Most of the murderers escaped; only two were arraigned, one was acquitted and the other imprisoned for only a few months. Every man in Scranton who ventures upon the street at night carries a revolver, and, with the recent murders, riots and crucifixions, if a worse state of society exists anywhere your correspondent would like to know where it is?

AMUSEMENTS.

The Past Opera Season.

On Monday, September 28, Mr. Max Strakosch commenced a season of Italian opera, of thirty nights and ten matinées, at the Academy of Music. His company consisted of six prime donne, Mlle. Albani, Mlle. Heilbron, Mlle. Maresi, Madame Potentini, Mlle. Donadio and Miss Annie Louise Cary; three tenors, Messrs. Carpi, Debassini and Benfratelli; two baritones, Messrs. Del Puente and Tagliapietra, and two basses, Messrs. Fiorini and Scolara, with the usual number of singers for small rôles, a large chorus and an orchestra under the direction of Messrs. Muzio and Behrens. The season was not a successful one financially, owing to several reasons. The principal ones which may be adduced were the constant representations of old, worn-out operas, which at the present day are only attractive with star casts, the reaction of public feeling after the exciting season of last spring, when the grandest operatic attractions were given night after night, and the undue prominence given to Verdi's "Requiem Mass," a work which should never have been given during a regular opera season. There were twenty-seven subscription performances and eight matinées during the season which has just closed, and the works brought out may be distributed as follows:—Verdi—"Traviata," twice; "Trovatore," three times; "Aïda," five times; "Ernani," three times, "Rigoletto," twice, and "The Requiem Mass," once; total for Verdi, sixteen performances. Marchetti—"Ruy Blas," four times. Donizetti—"Lucia," twice; "Daughter of the Regiment," twice. Thomas—"Mignon," three times. Gounod—"Faust," twice. Bellini—"Sonnambula," twice. Wagner—"Lohengrin," twice. Rossini—"Barber of Seville," once. Flotow—"Martha," once. It will be seen from this list what an undue prominence was given to the hackneyed works of Verdi and to the Italian school generally. If Verdi be such a favorite with the director it would have been more judicious to have brought out such works as "Don Carlos," "Forza del Destino" and "I Lombardi," than operas which people are now tired of. The novelty of the season in the operatic line, "Ruy Blas," proved an utter failure from the inherent worthlessness of the music. It was unfortunate for Mr. Strakosch that he was obliged to postpone until the last two nights of the season the only real attraction, "Lohengrin." It took nearly a score of rehearsals to present Verdi's mass, and "the game was not worth the candle." Twenty rehearsals would have sufficed to have brought out "Il Profeta," with Miss Cary, one of the most reliable and popular artists we have had here for years, as Fides, or "The Flying Dutchman," with Albani. The latter artist achieved, during the season, a genuine success, and she may be relied upon as a strong attraction wherever she appears. She is yet young and her voice has not attained its full power, but her natural talents and her perfect school will yet constitute her the first artist on the operatic stage. Mr. Strakosch will give his subscribers their last three nights of opera during Christmas week. We trust that in the spring the ruinous policy of too much Verdi and candy opera generally will be abandoned for novelties and grand works.

The very last appearance of the Strakosch company in this city took place last evening at the Academy of Music, for the benefit of the Ladies' Bikur Cholim Society. The opera of "Faust" was given with Mlle. Heilbron as Marguerite, Miss Cary as Siebel, De Bassini as Faust, Tagliapietra as Valentine and Fiorini as Mephistopheles. The house was crowded from parquet to dome, and the performance was unusually attractive, especially in the cases of Heilbron, Cary, De Bassini and Tagliapietra. The chorus and orchestra under the skilful direction of Mr. S. Behrens, who has proved himself this fall an accomplished conductor, gave universal satisfaction. The society netted a great deal of money by this performance, which the manager of the opera would like to have gained during the last disastrous season.

Niblo's Theatre.

Under the title of "Norman Leslie," what is called on the bills a four act drama was produced at this house. Its action is supposed to pass partly in this city and partly in Italy at the beginning of this century. It would be loss of time to attempt a description of the plot. All the incidents are borrowed from the lugubrious drama with which Bowery audiences are familiar. "Norman Leslie" is by far the dullest attempt at play making we have ever witnessed. It is the quintessence of inanity, and the only wonder is how any persons, of even moderate intelligence, should have undertaken to produce a stage representation so entirely lacking in interest. If the play deserved to be placed among the curiosities of literature the actors were scarcely less deserving of embalmment. It is a treat to see so distinguished a collection of people skilled in the art of "how not to do it." But it was one that could very well be dispensed with. The whole affair was most oppressive, and the managers are likely to find out that Norman Leslie is a pretty heavy load to carry.

Mr. Roberts' Readings.

Mr. Roberts gave his second reading on Monday evening, at Association Hall, to a large and intelligent audience. He possesses an exceptionally fine voice, and the selections, serious and humorous, which were given showed the training to which it has been subjected. His versatility is surprising and enabled him to please every class of his hearers, who rewarded his efforts with vehement applause. In his reading of Marc Antony's speech from "Julius Cæsar" he made several new points, which his cultured hearers were quick to recognize. "Samson's Description of the Slaying of the Lion" was a splendid piece of declamation, the "Pibroch of Donald Dhu" was a ringing war cry and the "Death of the Old Year" exhibited the pathetic power of the reader and his sympathetic appreciation of the poet's meaning. His humorous pieces kept the audience in a pleasant ripple of laughter, the weeping of the "Little Vulgar Boy," the coquetry of the "Ladies of Tippity Wippity Tol the Rol Loo," and the pompous braggadocio of the "Wind," in Macdonald's poem, eliciting special approval.

Mr. Roberts clearly ranks among the first of readers and should be patronized by all who love his art. His last entertainment will be given on Thursday next.

Musical and Dramatic Notes.

Miss Sophie Heilbron commences her piano recitals at Steinway Hall on Thursday afternoon.

Mr. Theodore Thomas will give a classical matinée at Steinway Hall on the 19th inst., with Miss Cranch and Mr. Jacobsohn as soloists.

Miss Jennie Hughes commenced an engagement at the Globe Theatre this week and appeared in some vocal selections, the principal one being a German song, "Mein Leid." Her voice has gained much in power, expression and cultivation since last season, and she received a half dozen encores.

Mr. J. N. Pattison lectured last night at De Garmo Hall on Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy and illustrated the characteristics of the great composer by selections from his "Songs Without Words," the music of which he played in a masterly manner. The hall was crowded and the lecturer-pianist was abundantly applauded.

Mr. Max Maretzek will introduce the best pupils of the New York Conservatory of Music in a sacred concert at the Academy of Music on the 20th inst. The "Stabat Mater" of Rossini and selections from Handel, Haydn and Mendelssohn will make up the programme. High expectations are formed of two new prime donne—Miss Randall, of Washington, and Miss Hoffman, of Chicago. The first opera to be given by the pupils of the Conservatory will be "Martha."

Talmage on Macready.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:—

Permit me through your columns to address a question to the Rev. Dr. Talmage. In his sermon of last Sunday, according to the HERALD report—no doubt accurate—he said:—"I only say what many actors have said to me in private and what one of the greatest actors (Macready) wrote previous to his death. He said in that letter, which I have seen in his works, 'I desire no child of mine ever to enter a theatre or to associate in any way with any actor or actress.'"

I have no right to ask who the "many actors" are who make Mr. Talmage their confessor, but I do ask where did he find Macready's "works," and what is the authority for the precise words he puts in his mouth or attributes to his pen. I have heard of no such "works." There are to be published before very long by Mr. McMillan, Macready's "Reminiscences of a Theatrical Life," which does not look as if he were ashamed of it. It was my good fortune to enjoy his friendship and confidence both in this country and in England, and certainly no such thought was ever hinted at. I have heard "lawyers" and "doctors" and, it may be, "preachers," say they did not wish their children to follow their paths in life. And this Mr. Macready may have said as to his. This, however, is very different from the loathing attributed to him by the Brooklyn crusader. Mr. Talmage has, probably, in his misty recollection, or else has wilfully, misrepresented the following passage from the "Reminiscences of Dickens," lately reproduced in Mr. Stoddard's "Bric-a-Brac," which really tells a very different story:—

We were strolling one day on the sands and stood to watch the gambols of his children at play with the little Macreadys. They had built a mimic fort, and young Macready was defending it against a storming party headed by Charley Dickens. The besieged castellan threw himself into an attitude of defiance, with head erect, and his sandspade held as a trenchant blade. Mr. Dickens burst into one of his hearty laughs, and pointing to the boy, exclaimed, "'Lay on, Macduff! and damned be he who first cries, hold, enough!' Did you ever see such a miniature of his pater in 'Macbeth?' 'It's a wise child that knows his own father,' but there's no mistake about the parentage here."

"I suppose he naturally imitates his father after seeing him act."

"No, that can't be, because Macready carefully prevents his children knowing that he is an actor. I don't think they have ever entered a theatre."

"Is he ashamed of his profession?"

"No. But he wisely thinks that they may misunderstand his position. It is because he takes such an elevated view of his art that he fears it being misrepresented to them. He thinks, and rightly too, that there is no small merit in being able to interpret properly the conceptions of a great mind, and he who gives breathing and moving life, who embodies with reality and stamps with individuality, the poet's aerial creations, must be himself endowed with some of this majestic light by reflection. He fears that servants or such like may speak of acting to his children in such a way as to impress on their small minds a low idea of a profession which he believes to be so full of dignity and moving power when nobly 'acted' up to. I hope the time is past when actors were ranked as vagabonds and authors as Grub street hacks, cringeing in servile submission to truculent publishers or dangling in search of a dinner in the ante-room of some addle-headed nobleman. It books enlightened the understanding, so likewise the stage has its purpose, next to the pulpit, to elevate and refine by placing more palpably and forcibly before us the grandeur of human passions."

Still, the Rev. Mr. Talmage may have access to a private copy of Macready's works and be right in his citation and I wrong. I much prefer the latter alternative than to be made to feel that a Christian clergyman should be guilty of the crimon falsi of passing off as genuine that which he knows to be forged.

NEW YORK, Dec. 1, 1874.

THE HUGUENOTS IN NEW YORK.

Paper Read by Dr. Baird Before the Historical Society.

A large and appreciative audience assembled in the library of the New York Historical Society last evening to hear Dr. Charles M. Baird, of Rye, read a paper on the "Huguenots in New York." The paper began with a short statement of the causes that led to this emigration—the oppressive measures of the government of Louis XIV. in France with reference to the numerous subjects of his kingdom who professed the Reformed or Calvanistic faith. These measures culminated in 1685 in the revocation of the edict of Nantes, by which all the liberties till then granted them were recalled, and the exercise of their religion was rigidly forbidden. Before this event a considerable emigration had already taken place, beginning with the arrival of some Walloon families among the first settlers of New York, in 1623. Parties of Huguenots came over from time to time—some remaining in the city, others establishing themselves in Brooklyn and Bushwick, Long Island, on Staten Island and at New Paltz, in Ulster county. But the principal movement took place in the course of the two years succeeding the revocation of the edict of Nantes, or in 1686 and 1687, when large bodies of Huguenots came over, a portion of them from England, where they had first taken refuge, and another very considerable portion from the French West Indies, the islands of St. Christopher, Martinique and Guadeloupe, to which they had fled from France. The paper related very fully the particulars of this twofold emigration, the latter part of which, it was claimed, was now for the first time brought to light as an historical fact. The circumstances of the arrival of these refugees in our city, and of their settlements here and at New Rochelle and elsewhere were minutely narrated, and an account was given of the four or five Huguenot churches founded in this province. It was also shown that the Huguenots who first went to Massachusetts and Rhode Island eventually came for the most part to New York, which thus became the principal refuge of the persecuted French in America, and where they formed a large fraction of the population. The paper closed with an analysis of the Huguenot character, and an estimate of its influence on that of our people.

THE GLENDENNING TRIAL.

The Summing Up Completed on Both Sides—The Case To Go Before the Presbytery To-Day.

At the session of the Jersey City Presbytery yesterday Mr. Wall summed up in an elaborate argument for the defence in the Glendenning trial. Mr. Fisher then read the testimony of the Rev. Mr. French, taken by commission, and Mr. Glendenning's answer in rebuttal. Then followed devotional exercises for half an hour. A recess was taken, and a lively debate took place on the proposition of Dr. Imbrie, for the prosecution, to reply to certain strictures of the committee for the defence, which he considered unwarranted. It was finally decided that Dr. Imbrie be allowed to reply and that the defence might answer him. This point having been settled, a discussion took place regarding the manner in which the members should render the verdict and the time allowed them for deliberation. It was finally determined that each member be allowed to speak fifteen minutes in explaining his vote, though several members dissented from the proposition. All the other motions having been rejected, the roll of members was about to be called, but owing to the lateness of the hour (four o'clock) a motion to adjourn till this morning was adopted. Several clergymen expressed their opinion that by this arrangement the case will be concluded and a verdict rendered this afternoon. Some of the members will record their verdict simply without airing their oratory. They decline, however, to express any opinion on the merits of the case in advance, as that would render a member liable to impeachment. The prosecution have thus far declined to set forth their protest in writing, but it is believed they will do so to-day.

COMPLIMENTARY PRESENTATION.

The members of Sedgwick Post, No. 11, met at their rooms last night, No. 20 St. Mark's place, for the purpose of presenting to their Commander, Colonel A. W. Sheldon, a gold chain. The chain was a massive one, and made expressly for the gallant colonel. A large gathering of other Post members were present, and after a few new aspirants for honors had been sworn in the presentation took place. The presentation speech was made by Major Frank M. Clark, in which he alluded to the fact that Sedgwick Post was the oldest in the United States, and that from it sprang all the other Posts. After the important business of the evening had been transacted the members and invited guests sat down to a superb supper. Toasts fitting for the occasion were proposed and responded to, and not until a late hour did the members of the glorious old Army of the Republic seek their homes.

FUNERAL OF MR. STURGES.

The funeral services in honor of the late eminent merchant, Jonathan Sturges, held yesterday afternoon at the Collegiate Reformed church, Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street, were very largely attended by the old and best known representatives of New York business and social circles. The National Academy of Design, of which Mr. Sturges was an old and valued member, were present in a body as a testimonial to the high worth of the deceased. Resolutions of sympathy for the family and regret for their own loss were passed by the Importers and Grocers' Board of Trade and by several of the corporate bodies with which Mr. Sturges had been associated. Religious services were conducted according to the rites of the Dutch Church, of which he was an active worker. All the ceremonies were marked by devotion and the allusions to the departed citizen were warmly affectionate and respectful.

PEDESTRIANISM.

To-day Professor Judd gives a preliminary exhibition of his powers as a walker at the Rink, on the occasion of the measurement of the track by City Surveyor Smith, preliminary to his attempt to walk 500 miles in six days and a half. During the exhibition Professor Judd will walk a quarter of a mile backwards and a quarter of a mile carrying an anvil weighing upwards of 100 pounds. He will be attended during the walk by Dr. Budd, of Bellevue Hospital, and several other leading physicians.

THE TRENTON POTTERS.

Resolutions Adopted in Mass Meeting Declaring in Favor of the Continuance of a Protective Tariff—The Difficulties Settled.

The pottery operatives of Trenton, N. J., assembled in mass meeting last night for the purpose of perfecting a union which was organized a few days ago. In order to conciliate matters between themselves and their employers in reference to the late misunderstanding about wages, and also to set themselves fairly on the record as to the principles which will govern them in the future, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:—

Whereas no reduction in wages will take place at the potteries, as we learn by the indefinite postponement of the conference meeting; and, whereas, such an argument as this in favor of protective tariff is not without its effect; and, whereas, the way we are at present situated, should questions of a serious character arise, grave complications and misunderstandings might occur to the loss of both parties; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the good feeling and harmony that have happily prevailed between employers and employés at the potteries remain unbroken.

Resolved, That we throw all our moral force with the manufacturers in maintaining the present tariff unchanged, being convinced, principally from the above reason, that it is to our own mutual interest to do so.

Resolved, That we earnestly recommend the formation of a board of arbitration to settle all future disputes.

As the foregoing resolutions express the sentiments of about 1,000 operatives, their import is considered significant at this time.

SUICIDE OF A WOMAN.

Yesterday afternoon, at about half-past three o'clock, Mrs. Adolphine Baumgartner committed suicide at her residence No. 139 West Nineteenth street by shooting herself in the abdomen. The reason of the act is unknown, but her husband believes that Mrs. Baumgartner's mind was deranged.

GERMANY.

The Latest Phases of the Church War.

The "Man of Blood and Iron" Fighting in Armor.

CATHOLICS RESISTING EARNESTLY.

BERLIN, Nov. 17, 1874.

The relations of Church and State are at present receiving their full share of attention among European nations, and nowhere more than in Germany. This country became the battleground for the two Powers in the Middle Ages, when Pope and Kaiser disputed about the right of investiture; and it seems likely that in the somewhat similar contest between ultramontanism and the civil powers it will again enjoy its old distinction. Then the question was one about fat acres. To-day it is one somewhat more spiritual, and so far the world is a gainer. How far the priest owes allegiance to the government under which he lives, which levies taxes for his benefit and which endows him with privileges denied to his flock, is the question of to-day, and none will deny that it is an important one. Whether he shall be permitted to make a tribune of his pulpit and proceed to pass judgment upon those who provide for his maintenance, appears to be the light in which Prince Bismarck views it. That he came to the conclusion that if the Kaiser is not superior to grammar, he is at least superior to clerical criticism must, under the circumstances, be considered very natural.

It is now three years since the Prussian government, under the guidance of Bismarck, entered on its crusade against the priesthood of the Roman Church, and especially against the Pope and the supporters of his infallibility. The Folk laws passed by the Prussian Chambers nearly two years ago, though ostensibly directed against the clergy of all denominations, were in reality aimed at the ultramontane partisans of the Papacy only. As the readers of the HERALD know, they make it an offence for any "servant of religion" to promulgate the dogma of infallibility, on the ground that the dogma is a denial of the authority of the King. Further, they prohibit the discussion of any political question from the pulpit or the advising of the congregation in any matter wherein the State is concerned, and provide various penalties in the shape of fine and imprisonment and removal. The prosecutions which have taken place under them have been given to our readers from time to time. They were imitated, in accordance with hints from Berlin, in various other States of the Empire, but the governments there being Catholic no earnest efforts have been made to enforce them as in Prussia.

The Catholic population in the kingdom is in a small minority, and by themselves they have no chance of escaping from such legislation; but the vigor and harshness with which these laws have been put into operation among them have aroused the sympathy of their coreligionists in the various parts of the Empire to such an extent that for the sake of not alienating them entirely, as he has already done in part, Bismarck may be compelled to ask for their repeal, or, at least, for their modification.

It must be confessed that, if we look at the character of the man who is at the helm of affairs, we can discern but little encouragement for such a hope. When, eight years ago, Bismarck set out for the seven weeks' campaign in Bohemia he is popularly credited with taking with him in his vest pocket a small revolver carrying a bullet large enough to waft an ordinary mortal to the bitter side of eternity. In other words, it was and is still believed that if Austria had been successful at Sadowa Bismarck would have been found among the Prussian slain on the field of battle. This may be true or it may not, but it certainly shows the quality of the man. What he undertakes to do he means to do. Success is essential to him. Now he has undertaken to rule the priesthood, and the chances of his giving up the task so long as there is a possibility of his accomplishing it are very slight. Popular dissatisfaction he has withstood before. When he set out on his purpose of making Prussia the ruler of Germany and the foremost military power he encountered the almost solid opposition of the people outside of the ranks of the nobility. He stood firm then; is he likely to do otherwise now? And if he does not what are the probabilities of his being driven from power?

As his supporters he has the vast majority of the German middle class—merchants, bankers, manufacturers and the members of the various learned professions; next the artisan class in the cities. Upon these he may count implicitly. They believe in him and will vote in his favor whenever necessary. They have seen him successful in everything he has undertaken so far, and his good fortune has radiated itself upon them. Before 1866 his greatest enemies, they now give him credit for seeing further into the future than themselves. They are prosperous, and ascribe a large share of their prosperity to his policy. But they do not form a majority of the nation. They cannot, without extraneous aid, give him a majority in the Legislative Chambers. That aid can only come from one source, and that is the rural districts. But there the "Junker" is still powerful. Feudal notions of personal loyalty still survive among the peasantry, and they are very apt to vote as the thoroughly but narrowly educated lord of the manor wishes them to. And hence the attitude of this class becomes a matter of the first importance.

The "Junkers," according to their own account, the direct descendants of the knights who laid the foundations of the present Prussian kingdom, and consequently entitled by right divine to all the good things in it, are almost orthodox Protestants to a man, and consequently bear not much love to the Catholic clergy; but they see with alarm the liberal tendencies of the day encouraged by the man who began political life in their ranks and who is now at the head of affairs. Like Von Arnim, who is one of themselves, they "view with horror the spread of republicanism." To stay such a calamity they join with anybody in opposing every one whom they fancy does anything to favor its coming. Poor and proud, as very many of them are, they do not fancy the idea of giving up the practical monopoly, which they at present enjoy, of furnishing the government with officers for the army and for the various civil departments. They are only wise in their generation in supposing that if liberalism makes any greater progress they will have to scramble with the common herd for the crumbs that fall from the governmental tables. Whether they can arrest the march of events by joining hands with those whose complaint against the Prince Chancellor is of a more disinterested nature is a question which every one can answer for himself. The case of Von Arnim seems to have been taken up by some of their journals as a good cause for a quarrel with the Prince, and owing to the former's popularity at the court he seems likely to become their leader—provided, of course, that he gets out of his present embarrassments without any damage to his reputation as a man of honor.

That the "Junkers" hold the balance of power between the Catholics and the supporters of the ecclesiastical policy of Prince Bismarck there is no doubt. The only question is, can or will they, high Protestants as the bulk of them are, form an alliance with the former, conceding to them a modification or repeal of the Folk laws in consideration of support in checking liberalism. Von Arnim himself has expressed opinions more hostile to the Catholics than Bismarck, and now, he and any party which accepts him for a leader can ally itself with ultramontane champions of Papal infallibility is not easily seen.

Failing a union of these two elements, Bismarck and his anti-clerical policy are safe from parliamentary interference, and it remains with him whether he will bow before the storm which he has raised or whether he will weather it. Catholic South Germany is evidently viewing with something like uneasiness the proceedings of Protestant Prussia, fearing that her turn may come some day; that her own governments may be compelled to vigorously enforce the laws already on the statute books, and thus deprive an infallible Pope of all but surreptitious means for communicating with the faithful. But at present South Germany is but indirectly interested in the matter. She still chafes under the thought that the first place in the Empire belongs to the Prussians, a people who, although speaking the same language as themselves, they never have regarded with very kindly feelings. The brilliant victories achieved under Prussian leadership over unfortunate France, in great measure obliterated their own defeat four years before, but the old sores are again being opened and it is just possible that Prince Bismarck will see the dangerous nature of the coast on which he is steering the new Empire. If he does not, it is again possible that the old gentleman, to whom he has brought the imperial dignity, will. But of this last there is but a very slight probability. The Emperor-King is supposed to be very strongly attached, by both gratitude and confidence, to his chancellor; and as parliamentary government has not been introduced into Prussia Bismarck may hold the helm in spite of a Parliamentary opposition, as he did before.

If the "Arnim movement," as we may now call it, gains any headway—which it will not do unless the old "Junker," or high tory party, is ready to go into open opposition to the Prince, as they have been for some time in secret—an effort will, doubtless, be made to come to some agreement with the Catholics. If successful, there is no telling what may happen. Bismarck is getting old, and if he has not set his heart on seeing his course toward the ultramontanes triumphant, he may take the occasion for retiring from the Prussian Ministry at least. If he should conclude to "stick," it will be a task worthy of half a dozen Von Arnims to get him out.

HAVEMEYER.

The Mayor's Body Lying in the Family Mansion.

MUNICIPAL MEETINGS YESTERDAY.

Resolutions of Respect and Sympathy by the Several City Boards.

POPULAR REGRET.

Action in the Commissions of Emigration and Education Upon the Public Loss.

THE INQUEST.

Death from Valvular Disease of the Heart.

The body of the late Mayor Havemeyer reposed in one of the principal parlors of the family residence, in Fourteenth street, yesterday. It had been placed on ice by the undertakers the previous evening, and remained as they had left it during the day. None but friends of the family were admitted into the presence of the dead, although many prominent public citizens called at the house. Mrs. Havemeyer continues secluded from all but the immediate members of the family. In the City Hall the work of draping the building in mourning was commenced at an early hour and carried on until dark. The bust of the late Mayor which stands on the mantel in the Mayor's office was covered with crape, and the ceilings and windows were hung heavily with black. The sheriff's, marshal's and other offices in the building were appropriately dressed, and the row of pillars fronting the Park were wound round in graceful keeping with the general feeling. Owing to the uncertainty as to the ultimate decision of the family with regard to a public funeral the draping of and some of the other departmental buildings was retarded, but as soon as it is ascertained they will yield to the general wish the work will be pushed forward vigorously, so as to be completely ready before the day appointed for the obsequies. It was decided by those in authority to make the remarkable nature of the occasion more prominent at the Mayor's office by a more complete covering of mourning of the room in which Mr. Havemeyer died, but it was conceived advisable yesterday to delay the work until the permission of the family had been obtained.

Throughout the city a deep sentiment of regret for the sudden death of the Mayor and commiseration for his distressed family pervaded the people. Thinking upon his sudden taking off brought into their minds an estimate of his distinguished character and long life as a prominent citizen and worthy merchant. The gloom of his last hour buried the remembrance of all causes of complaint, and his virtues shone most brightly in the people's esteem. Profound respect and admiration for the Mayor and man were everywhere visible. All the public buildings and the greater part of the large commercial warehouses floated the national ensign at half-mast, in public testimony on the part of the managers and owners of a share in the prevailing sorrow. Meetings were held by the municipal bodies and the heads of public departments, and resolutions suitable to the feeling called forth by the occasion passed. The Boards of Police, Education, Emigration, Importers and Grocers, Board of Trade and many of the trade exchanges assembled and listened to eulogistic addresses on the life of the late Mayor as a private citizen and public officer by members of these associations. Committees were appointed by most of these bodies to attend the funeral in the event the family consented to comply with the general desire and the solicitations of the people's representatives for a public ceremony.

The street in front of the family mansion was deserted from the time the Coroner and his party left it in the early morning, and the house itself bore but the usual piece of black crape hanging on the door bell as a sign of death. A single policeman walking up and down the sidewalk, and the carriage of an occasional visitor to the house, were the only breaks upon the long monotony. At the Fire Department Commissioner Perley and Chief Engineer Bates held a conference and decided to send four divisions of the force to the funeral if it is decided to make it a public one.

THE BOARDS OF ALDERMEN.

A joint meeting of the Board of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen took place in the rooms of the latter at one o'clock yesterday. There was a full attendance of both Boards. The meeting was called for the special purpose of taking action on the death of Mayor Havemeyer. Among those who took seats within the railing were Comptroller Green, Corporation Counsel Smith, Commissioner Van Nort, Fire Commissioner Perley, Police Commissioner Matsell, Superintendent of Buildings Adams, Colonel Clark, of the Seventh regiment, and others. Alderman Morris was not present, as he had to attend the Coroner's inquest on the remains.

President Strack, of the Board of Assistant Aldermen, called the meeting to order. He said:—By request of the Joint Committee, I beg to nominate Alderman Flanagan as Chairman of this meeting.

Alderman Flanagan then took the chair and said—Gentlemen of the Board of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen, regretting as I do the melancholy event that has brought us together to-day for the purpose of discharging such business as may be deemed necessary to of Mayor Havemeyer, I thank you very sincerely for the honor you have extended in selecting me to preside. I await your pleasure.

The communication from Mayor Vance, published in yesterday's HERALD, was here read and ordered on file.

Alderman Van Schaick, in behalf of the Joint Committee, asked permission to introduce a series of resolutions prepared by that body, remarking—It was my privilege to have known Mayor Havemeyer for a great many years, and no one sympathises so much with his family in his death. The Alderman was here so deeply affected that he took his seat without proceeding further.

Alderman McCafferty spoke as follows:—

MR. CHAIRMAN—I sincerely and deeply regret the sad event that has called us here together. The Mayor of this great city, in the fulness of years and enjoying the confidence and esteem of our people, has, while in the discharge of the duties of his high office, fallen by the hand of death. A few short hours ago William F. Havemeyer stood among us, an honored and respected member of society in this the city of his death, in the full possession of and robust health; now he is clothed in the garments of the grave. Our dead Chief Magistrate was a remarkable man. Honest and faithful in the performance of every duty, clear in his views of the obligations attaching to public officials, he held all to a strict accountability. Laborious in the performance of his own duties, he excused no neglect of others. As a merchant, a financial officer and Mayor of our city he has left a proud record and one worthy of emulation, and may it be the good fortune of our citizens that one less worthy may never fill the position made vacant by his death.

The resolutions, as presented, were then read by the Clerk, and passed as follows:—

Whereas Almighty God, Ruler of all things, has, in His wise providence, taken from us our Chief Magistrate, William F. Havemeyer, Mayor of this city; it therefore becomes the mournful duty of this Common Council, in joint meeting assembled, to give expression to their sense of the great loss which the city, as well as the family of the deceased, has sustained by this unexpected bereavement. Born in the city of New York, A. D. 1804, when its population numbered scarcely 67,000, Mr. Havemeyer was elected Mayor in 1845, and again elected in 1848, when the population was less than 500,000. In 1872 when the city had a population of nearly 1,000,000, he was for the third time elected to the Mayoralty, and at the time of his death was at his post in the active discharge of the duties of

HIS HIGH OFFICE.

During the long period of active life, Mr. Havemeyer enjoyed no small amount of public attention. His advice was repeatedly sought for in moments of public peril, and he was thrice elevated by the preference of his fellow townsmen to the highest office in their gift. He has filled other and numerous positions of public and private trust, each of which he has discharged faithfully and well. He grew with the growth of his native city, and strengthened with its strength. He has died full of years and of honors.

Resolved, As a token of respect for the memory of Mayor William F. Havemeyer, deceased, this Common Council will attend his funeral in a body, and will wear a badge of mourning for the period of thirty days; that the Mayor's office and chambers of the Common Council and the various public offices be appropriately draped in mourning; that the flags on the City Hall and other public buildings be displayed at half staff, from sunrise to sunset, from this time until after his funeral.

Resolved, That the joint committee of five from each branch of the Common Council, already appointed, be and they are hereby instructed to make such other arrangements for the obsequies as in their judgment will best express the sorrow of all classes of citizens by reason of their sad bereavement.

Resolved, That, as an additional mark of respect for the memory of the honored deceased, a copy of the foregoing, properly engrossed, be transmitted to his family.

Mr. E. Delafield Smith, Counsel to the Corporation, followed. He said:—

MR. PRESIDENT—The heads of the executive departments of the municipal government of New York have for two years enjoyed the privilege of seats in the Common Council. The pressure of public business intrusted to my care has led me hitherto to forego the honor of mingling in your counsels. The occasion is indeed solemn which calls me among you now. Warm eulogies have been pronounced upon the late head of the city government. Nothing in substance could be added to them, and I do not rise to make the attempt. The occasion imparts a lesson to us all. Words of kindness may be uttered now, and they may tend to comfort those who mourn, but they are nothing, absolutely nothing, to the dead. We believe as Christians that the departed spirit still lives, a conscious, reflecting being. If at this moment his soul be glad or sorrowful for anything that happens upon the earth I feel certain that he rejoices over every kind act and word which he has ever done or uttered and sorrows over everything that was harsh and unjust, if any such there was in his dealings with his fellow men. The Latin maxim that nothing but good should be spoken of the dead is the honorable impulse of every human heart. If we could establish another rule that except for the nothing of evil should be spoken of the living we would attain a higher civilization and a broader Christian brotherhood. Who can doubt that at this moment William F. Havemeyer would be glad to blot out all that led to those dramatic incidents in the Supreme Court which occurred during the last gasps of his frame, and which terminated when the breath forever left his body. It is thought by many that the decay of party spirit betokens good to the public welfare. I have never been of this opinion. A warm and healthful rivalry between political parties is, in my judgment, the only hope of republican government. It must have been noted by thinking men that the warm political contests of former years were contemporaneous with the best administration of public affairs. It must be observed further that, as party spirit sinks, personal rancor arises. To vituperate men in office and to malign the leaders of public opinion and the chiefs of party organizations have too far usurped the place of fair and earnest discussion and measures. A high accountability can be enforced as to public servants without indulging in indiscriminate denunciation. The press has performed great services to the purity of public administration, and the country is to be congratulated that it is developing a juster estimate of the public importance, as well as the private and social propriety of measuring the weight of public censure, and the absolute wickedness of either wickedly or carelessly denouncing those who seek the honorable distinction of serving their fellow men in positions of trust. Let us go from this place determined to relax no effort to fulfil the just demands of our respective posts of duty and at the same time to make the brave endeavor to be as careful of the reputations and feelings of our fellow officials as we are of our own. Our public obligations stand first. Where it is possible to observe those and at the same time to stand, like our late Mayor, faithfully and firmly by our friends, we are bound to be true and steadfast; but the pursuit of resentments, the desire of revenge, the indulgence of envy, the delight in pulling down instead of helping up—these are ignoble passions, and true manhood will stamp upon them to the end. It is a pitiable spectacle to see a man tender of his own feelings and regardless of the feelings of his fellow-men. This, as I conceive, is the most impressive lesson of death. If a man is to be harsh let it be with himself and with his own shortcomings. Let every public officer be watchful over himself. With regard to others let him commend and encourage when he can; only when he must. It is of equal public importance to-day that integrity and fidelity in public stations should be recognized and applauded, as that dishonesty and negligence should be ferreted out, exposed and stopped. One by one they depart, whose usefulness and happiness we, who survive, may depress or promote. Many still are left. Other persons advance to the stations which the dead desert. Here are new opportunities for justice, kindness, manly friendships and generous support. Let us take heed that we improve them. Our duties lie not in the past but in the present. The faces which our words shall brighten in life will never reproach us as we gaze upon them in death. A comparative stranger to him whose funeral honors we have met to commemorate, I heartily unite in the tributes which those who were near to him are placing as an offering upon his bier. Death is awful. Sudden death, though not perhaps to the departed, but certainly to those who are left behind, is still more terrible; but it would be sadder yet if such things could come to us and pass forever by without an elevating and broadening influence. Thanking you for your kind attention I resume the seat to which I hope to return upon less sorrowful occasions.

UPON POLITICAL PRINCIPLES

CONDEMN AND PUNISH

Remarks were also made by Assistant Alderman Clancy, Health Commissioner Chandler and others, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Joint Committee.

The joint committee of the Board of Aldermen and Assistant Aldermen met yesterday afternoon for the purpose of making arrangements as to the obsequies. Alderman Van Schaick presided. The gentleman stated the particulars of the interview with the family of deceased and their request that no lying in state should take place at the Governor's Room. It was probable that the funeral might not occur before Friday or Saturday.

The resolutions to be presented at the joint meeting of the two Boards were then arranged.

Assistant Alderman Healy and Alderman Monheimer were added to the sub-committee of three to make final arrangements for the funeral. A resolution was passed that the members, if the weather be fine, walk from the house to the church, and thence to the ferry; if stormy, then carriages will be provided. Mr. George W. McClean sent a communication offering the services of the "Old Guard" to act as funeral escort.

All further definite action was postponed until the wishes of the family of the late Mayor were ascertained.

COMMISSIONERS OF EMIGRATION.

A special meeting of the Commissioners of Emigration was held at the office of the Commission, Castle Garden, yesterday, for the purpose of taking action in reference to the death of Mayor Havemeyer. President Hurlbut occupied the chair and called the meeting to order. He said:—

GENTLEMEN—You have been called together to take some action in regard to the sudden death of our late associate and esteemed member, the Hon. W. F. Havemeyer. As I understand it, the formation of this Board is in a great measure owing to his personal efforts and influence, and he was its first President, and continued to hold that position until called by the partiality of his fellow citizens to the Mayoralty of this, his native city. We mourn the loss of one who has filled many important trusts, an active member of society, just in all his dealings, of strict integrity, of true worth and who enjoyed the confidence of his fellow citizens in an eminent degree. We tender our deep and heartfelt sympathies to his bereaved family and friends, and may the sad lesson taught be improved by each one of us for our temporal and spiritual good.

Commissioner Lynch moved that a committee of three be appointed to draft resolutions. The Chair named as this committee Commissioners Lynch, Forrest and Starr.

These gentlemen retired and shortly afterwards returned with the following resolutions:—

Whereas the Commissioners of Emigration have learned with deep regret of the sudden death of the Hon. William F. Havemeyer, Mayor of the city of New York, a member of this Board, and whereas the deceased gentleman was one of the originators and chief promoters in the establishment in the years 1846 and 1847 of this commission, and was the first President of the Board, and serving in that capacity until his duties as Mayor necessitated the resigning of the office, but always continuing to aid and forward the interests of the commission; therefore

Resolved, That the Board of Commissioners of Emigration bear testimony to the great services rendered to the cause of emigration by their late associate, in whose demise the emigrants have lost a kind and zealous friend.

Resolved, That the Board join the general voice of sorrow in which the citizens of New York mourn the loss of their honored Chief Magistrate.

Resolved, That this Board tender to the family of the deceased their profound sympathy in the great bereavement which has befallen them.

Resolved, That the Commissioners, out of respect to the memory of the deceased, attend his funeral in a body.

Resolved, That these resolutions, suitably engrossed, be transmitted to the friends of the deceased and be entered in full on the minutes.

Commissioner Lynch said:—It is unfortunate for the Board that they have not in their number one who is blessed with the gift of eloquence. I will, however, not allow the occasion to pass without saying a word in testimony of the labors for the benefit of this commission of the late Mayor. It is hardly a month since that after our regular meeting he entertained us for certainly two hours with a history of this Board during its early days. He said that in 1846 and 1847 the immigrants assembled and around the City Hall. At that time the Mayor had control of the emigration, and the shipping men claimed control also. The shipping men established shanties and hospitals over in what is now the city of Williamsburg, then nothing but a vacant country. These shanties caused great trouble to innocent people, as those familiar with those past days know. They had to be broken up. People coming to the country came in contact with sharpers and thieves. Mr. Havemeyer, Andrew Carrigan, Gregory Dillon and Robert B. Minturn went earnestly at work at this thing, and they were determined that immigrants should be cared for and kept away from these scoundrels. They drafted a bill and went to Albany, and got the bill passed. That established this Board of Commissioners. On looking over the names of the original Commissioners I find the last of them departed this life yesterday. The list reads as follows:—William F. Havemeyer, Gulian C. Verplanck, James Boorman, Jacob Harvey, Robert B. Minturn, David C. Colden, Leopold Bievurth, Gregory Dillon, William V. Brady and Francis B. Stryker. The last of the original Commissioners is dead. Their record is a good record. They were all good men. They were models for us to follow. We may well hope that we shall be as good in our way as they were in theirs. While Mr. Havemeyer had his own peculiarities, he was a good and kind sort of man. He loved justice and he hated iniquity. The resolutions which have just been passed give expression to our opinion as to what he has done. It is our duty to speak well of him, as we cannot well do otherwise. We have now to tender our condolence to his family.

Commissioner Storrs, who in his speech was frequently interrupted by his emotions, said:—Probably there is no member of this Board whose memory goes so far back as mine does in relation to Mr. Havemeyer. I have known him from a boy up to the present time. He was always my friend. I have received much encouragement from that man. He was almost daily at my side. He gave me such advice as a young man should have. To be brief, Mr. President, I would only say that at the time of the establishment of this commission he called upon me to that I should take a subordinate position under the Commissioners. I accepted the position with many thanks. I knew that he intended to better my condition by offering me such a position. I remained as long as the Commissioners thought my services were needed. I then retired from the position I held, in 1847. After some months had passed he asked that I should take the position again. I should very gladly have availed myself of the opportunity, but a few days before I had made arrangements to go into business, and had so far committed myself that I could not well get out of it. I declined to take the position. After entering into this position he was again my friend. Daily he was with me giving me advice. Probably I knew the good characteristics of that man as well as any other man living to-day. He was good to all men. He was a good adviser to young men and frequently gave them advice, as to how they should go on in business; how they should proceed to make a sale easily; and how they should make themselves respected. I think it was the last occasion that he was present with this Commission, which was on the occasion of the visit of His Honor the Lord Mayor of Dublin, that he spoke of my early connection with this body. I feel proud of the character that he gave me on that occasion. I have no doubt that he felt that I deserved it. This was one of the many acts of kindness he showed toward me. I feel his loss greatly. In connection with this Board I feel his loss deeply. I am glad to be present to-day to give my voice of consent in the passage of these resolutions, which speak so highly of his character.

Commissioners Maujer and Forrest both spoke very favorably, but briefly, of the reputation of the late Mayor.

The resolutions were passed and the Board adjourned, with instructions to the Secretary to notify them of the day and hour of the funeral.

THE POLICE BOARD.

At a special meeting of the Board of Police Commissioners yesterday morning, General Duryee officially announced the death of Mayor Havemeyer, and presented the following preamble and resolutions, which were immediately adopted:—

Whereas the decease of the Hon. W. F. Havemeyer, Mayor of this city, is publicly announced as having suddenly occurred yesterday noon, while in the active discharge of his duties; and whereas it is fit and proper that this Board should give expression to its feelings and sentiments on so sad and momentous an occurrence, and unite in bearing tribute to the memory and worth of the departed Chief Magistrate of this city; therefore be it

Resolved, That while we bow in humble submission to the will of an all-wise Providence in removing so suddenly from our midst, full of honor and years, W. F. Havemeyer, Mayor of the city of New York, we feel that this city has lost one of its most eminent and virtuous public servants and the community one of its most self-sacrificing and public-spirited citizens.

Resolved, That this Board deeply sympathizes with the bereaved family, relatives and friends of the deceased in their irreparable loss of an affectionate husband, devoted parent, kind relative and faithful friend.

Resolved, As a token of respect, that the building and public rooms of the Central Office be appropriately draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that the Board of Police attend the funeral of the deceased in a body.

Resolved, That the foregoing preamble and resolutions be entered at length on the minutes of the Board, and a copy thereof be suitably engrossed and forwarded to the family of the deceased.

After the resolutions were adopted, Commissioners Disbecker and Voorhis made some remarks expressive of the veneration in which they had always held the late Mayor.

THE HEALTH BOARD.

The Board of Health at their meeting yesterday afternoon adopted the following resolutions relative to the death of Mayor Havemeyer:—

Whereas the Board of Health has been officially informed of the sudden death of the Hon. William F. Havemeyer, Mayor of the city of New York, while in the discharge of the duties of his office,

Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Havemeyer, the city has lost one of its most public spirited citizens, who through a long and active career has exhibited the highest virtue of citizenship, the most commendable and useful interest in the public welfare, the most indomitable zeal in the performance of duty and unswerving discharge of the trusts pertaining to the high offices which he has been called upon to fill.

Resolved, That we hereby tender our sincere sympathies to the family of the deceased, and in accordance with official request and personal sense of our obligations and respect to the memory of the late Mayor, the offices of the Department will be appropriately draped in mourning and closed on the day of the obsequies, and the members will attend the funeral in a body.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be suitably engrossed and forwarded to the family of the deceased Mayor.

DEPARTMENT OF PARKS.

A meeting of the Board of the Department of Public Parks, specially convened by the President, was held on the 1st inst., when the following action was unanimously adopted:—

The Mayor of the city of New York, the Hon. William F. Havemeyer, having died suddenly, on the 30th ult., while in the discharge of his public duties, the Commissioners of this department of the city government are deeply moved by the unexpected event, and hasten to record their willing testimony to the general judgment of their fellow citizens that his private and public life have alike been governed by the principles of high honor and unswerving integrity. The department orders that the offices of the Commissioners be draped in mourning; that the department be closed on the day of the funeral; that the Commissioners attend the solemnities, and that these words of regret and condolence be engrossed and sent to the family of the deceased.

THE INQUEST.

Coroner Eickhoff held yesterday the inquest in the case of our late Mayor at the mansion, in Fourteenth street.

The following citizens were impanelled as jurymen:—Dr. Charles T. Jewett, of No. 91 Eighth avenue; Dr. Levi Jewett, of No. 357 West Fourteenth street; Dr. Maurice A. Miller, of No. 362 West Eighteenth street; Alexander Cash and Samuel D. Styles, of No. 356 West Fourteenth street, and Owen Murphy, of No. 79 Second avenue.

HENRY HAVEMEYER'S STATEMENT.

Henry Havemeyer, son of the deceased, said he resided at No. 15 West Seventeenth street. He last saw his father alive on Saturday morning, when he was in apparently good health. However, he had been suffering for some time with dyspepsia and flatulency, and at times he complained of oppression at his chest, which would be relieved by belching of wind. The witness said he knew nothing of the circumstances of the death except from hearsay.

ALDERMAN MORRIS' RECITAL.

Alderman Morris, of No. 117 West Twenty-first street, said the deceased walked into the Mayor's office at about twenty minutes to twelve; he was standing in the outer office when the deceased passed in; he appeared to be suffering from a chill and as though he were cold; his overcoat was buttoned up closely and his collar turned up; he had been about six minutes in the inner office when I walked in and found him pacing the floor; he showed signs of distress, beat his chest several times and was belching wind; witness asked what was the matter and he said he had been to Flushing, and in consequence of the train breaking down he had walked between two and three miles to the city; he thought the cold air which he had "sucked in" had produced the wind in his stomach; witness offered to take him home, but deceased said it was nothing but wind and that it would be all over in a few minutes; then the Alderman wanted to fetch a physician, but he ridiculed the idea and said he could "get over it shortly;" the Alderman as well as the deceased thought it was wind colic that he was suffering from; after a while he appeared to be relieved of the belching and took a tumbler full of brandy; he appeared to be relieved after that, and remarked that and he looked so; then he sat down in his chair to prepare for his work; he rubbed his glasses with his handkerchief and talked to the Alderman about matters in general; when asked how he felt he said first rate; he promised that if he felt worse he would go home and have his family physician called; he spoke in a cheerful voice, and the witness thought all was right; witness walked into the outer office just as the deceased began opening his letters; he had only been out a moment or two when the messenger, Halloran, or some one else called out "Help!" and Mr. Wendell and witness rushed into the room where they saw the Mayor sitting in the centre of the floor; he appeared to be in a sort of spasm, and four of us picked him up and laid him on the lounge; I sent for a doctor, blankets and quilts, and in the meantime we were rubbing his hands and feet; the surgeon arrived, felt his pulse and pronounced him dead; when I first saw the deceased his face was slightly flushed, but only for a short time; subsequently he looked fatigued and appeared to feel great oppression in the upper part of his chest; he looked as a stout man would look when fatigued; when we found him on the floor he did not recognize any of us.

THE MESSENGER'S TESTIMONY.

John J. Halloran, messenger at the Mayor's office, said the late Mayor appeared tired and languid when he came in; he brought him some brandy and peppermint, thinking that it might relieve his belching of wind; the Mayor proceeded with the ordinary routine business of the office, and at that time was apparently recovered; after Mr. Benneville came in we carried him to the inner room and laid him on the sofa, and while some persons were rubbing his hands and feet, as stated by Alderman Morris, I went for a doctor, who said that he was still alive and gave me a prescription; when I returned from the druggist's the Mayor was dead.

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN'S STORY.

Dr. Robert L. Newton, of No. 137 West Forty-seventh street, the family physician, said he had never heard him complain of any trouble about the head; in fact he had not heard him complain in any way; he had never suffered from rheumatism, as far as he was aware of; a few days ago, when the witness saw him, he remarked that his health was very good; he was always proud of his physique; he was of the opinion that death was caused by valvular disease of the heart.

Dr. Marsh, the Deputy Coroner, testified that he had examined the body, and from the history of the case he had come to the same conclusion.

With this the testimony closed, and the jury rendered a verdict of death from disease of the heart.

RESOLUTIONS OF REGRET.

Resolutions of respect for the memory and admiration for the virtues of the deceased were passed by the Directors of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, of which Board he was a member, and by several other corporate bodies of the city.

The Board of Education yesterday passed resolutions of regret at the death of the Mayor, who had been the faithful friend of the free school system, and ordered that the schools be closed on the day of the funeral.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

It was generally understood that the relatives of the deceased Mayor were averse to any public demonstration in connection with his obsequies, although many were anxious to honor the occasion with ceremonies befitting the funeral of the Chief Magistrate of the city, and while the civic authorities would naturally yield to any request made by the immediate friends of the deceased it seems that a general desire prevailed to render the last sad rites as imposing as possible, so far as official participation therein could make them. The subcommittee of the committee of arrangements, consisting of Aldermen Morris, Van Schaick and Wade, were accordingly deputed to confer with the relatives of the deceased, and last evening Alderman Morris waited on them at the house of the late Mayor in Fourteenth street to represent the views of the corporate bodies. In view of the pressure brought to bear upon the friends of the deceased gentleman and of the representations made to the effect that he had died while occupying one of the most important offices in the gift of the citizens, it was finally agreed, after consultation, that the request of the civic authorities should be acceded to. The funeral services will take place on Saturday morning, first at the residence of the late Mayor's relatives, after which the remains will be conveyed to St. Paul's Methodist church, corner of Twenty-second street and Fourth avenue. At the conclusion of the ceremonies in the church the body will be intrusted to the charge of the civic authorities, when a procession will be formed en route to Greenwood Cemetery. The heads of departments and other city officials will be invited to participate. Bishops Janes and Crawford will probably officiate on the occasion, and the funeral oration will be preached by the Rev. Mr. Bottome. The funeral services would have taken place in his church in Seventh avenue, near Fourteenth street, where the deceased Mayor habitually worshipped, but owing to its somewhat limited dimensions it was deemed necessary to have them performed in St. Paul's, which accommodates 2,000 persons. It may be mentioned that owing to the wish of the family the remains will not be exposed to public view. The Seventh and Twenty-second regiments have volunteered their services, and the Old Guard will act as a guard of honor on the occasion. The line of march will be from the church on Fourth avenue down Broadway, thence to the South ferry and to Greenwood.

THE VISIT TO CHARLICK.

On Sunday evening Mayor Havemeyer visited Mr. Oliver Charlick at his country residence, about two miles from Flushing. The visit was connected with a proposed sale of the Long Island Railroad, of which Mr. Charlick is the President, and of which Mayor Havemeyer was a large stockholder. Mr. Charlick had expected the Mayor, and for the purpose had sent his own carriage to Hunter's Point to convey his friend out. The Mayor was exact according to appointment and arrived at Mr. Charlick's house late in the evening. He was received by Mrs. Charlick, as her husband was sick in bed and very low. He was, indeed, so sick that he received the Mayor in bed. The latter sat by the bedside of his friend for some hours in an easy chair, and the conversation was a long, and, it is fair to presume, an interesting one to both parties. What was decided upon during this conversation about the sale of the Long Island Railroad is not known, as the friends were left alone during nearly all the time. It is said, however, that the Mayor was in favor of selling immediately, while Mr. Charlick proposed to wait some time yet. Late in the evening the wife and daughters of Mr. Charlick entered the room and the conversation became general and ran upon general topics. It was very late when the Mayor bid Mr. Charlick "good night" and retired to the room which had been prepared for him. It is stated by those who were present that during the evening the Mayor was in the best of spirits and seemed to make particular efforts in his blunt, hearty way to cheer up his sick friend, who was despondent in his demeanor and conversation. After the ladies had entered the room there was much laughter and jollity from the Mayor and when he left for the night all felt very happy, and even Mr. Charlick himself could not resist the influence of the scene. Mayor Havemeyer upon going up stairs went immediately to bed and the people in the house noticed that his light was out fifteen minutes after he left Mr. Charlick's bedside. At seven o'clock yesterday morning he was called by the servant girl and about half an hour afterward he was dressed and down stairs and again called in upon Mr. Charlick, who was no better than the night before. Mr. Havemeyer was in the same good spirits and by those who

and for many years it is said that he never looked better in his life or showed more elasticity of spirit. He again sat by the bedside, in his seat of the night before, and a short conversation took place between the two gentlemen. The Mayor said jocularly, that after his term was over he'd pass many a pleasant evening with Charlick in the city during the coming winter. The conversation was interrupted by breakfast being announced, and the Mayor went into the dining room, which adjoins the room in which Mr. Charlick lay. At the breakfast table were Mayor Havemeyer, Mrs. Charlick, the two Misses Charlick and a younger brother of the latter. The meal was, of course, a very plentiful one, and the Mayor ate very heartily. He partook of some steak, potatoes, bread and butter and coffee, and ate with an appetite that did credit to a good digestion. The company present thought nothing of it, however, as they knew the Mayor to be a very hearty eater at all times when in health. After breakfast the Mayor, as the train was nearly due at the depot, bid a hasty "goodby" to Mr. Charlick and to the family, and walked to the depot, only about an eighth of a mile off. The train was due here at half-past eight and the Mayor had five minutes to spare. This was the depot of what is known as the Central and North Side Railroad and this particular depot is known as Flushing. The Mayor had been waiting for a few moments when intelligence came that the train due from Great Neck had broken down and would not be along for some time. This seemed to annoy the Mayor very much, as he wanted to be in the city at an early hour, having much business to attend to. He therefore determined to walk to the depot of the Long Island Railroad in Flushing itself, and about two miles away, as a train was to leave there at nine o'clock. It was very cold, and the Mayor set out at a good pace along the track of the North Side Railroad, as the two miles had to be done in less than half an hour. The walking was very difficult, as the sleepers were a constant annoyance, and ruts happen every few paces of the way. How far this affected the deceased gentleman it is impossible to say, but such quick walking immediately after a heavy breakfast must necessarily have affected the heart somewhat. The Mayor, however, succeeded in reaching Flushing in time, and threw himself into the car on the Long Island road very much exhausted. Three-quarters of an hour afterward he was in New York, and two hours after he was dead. On Monday Mrs. Charlick, when a representative of the HERALD called to see Mr. Charlick at the bleak, cold residence out on Long Island, said that it was impossible for Mr. Charlick to be seen as his condition was very critical, and they had not dared to inform him of the death of Mayor Havemeyer. "Indeed," said Mrs. Charlick, who looked very much affected, "I believe the shock of such news might kill him. We don't know how to break it to him, as to-morrow we shall have to let him see the papers. Mayor Havemeyer was in very good health when he left here, and I don't think the walk he took can have been the cause of his death. He said that he slept very well last night, and certainly ate a very hearty breakfast. Mr. Charlick saw him on business, but there was nothing said or done that could have annoyed him. I have known Mr. Havemeyer for years, and I don't know that I ever saw him looking better than he did this morning."

Miss Charlick confirmed what her mother said, and also seemed much distressed that her father should learn the news too suddenly. The whole family were in a state of excitement that can easily be conceived and the impression among them was too evident that the head of their own household was himself in a condition of the greatest danger.

MORE MUNICIPAL COMPLICATIONS.

Mayor Vance at Work—He Will Make No Removals at Present—The New President of the Board of Aldermen, &c.

Mayor Vance arrived at his office at eleven o'clock yesterday. Our new Mayor ad interim is the personification of courtesy and good breeding and received his visitors during the day with agreeable and frank address. The unfinished routine business left by his predecessor demanded almost his entire attention. Numerous warrants were signed for the payment of officials, yesterday being the first of the month. The sudden demise of Mayor Havemeyer necessarily left much embarrassing work to be attended to. Mr. Vance was therefore busily occupied, and for hours compelled to remain secluded from all visitors, giving directions to that effect to his attendant.

Previous to the death of Mayor Havemeyer rumors were current among politicians generally that he intended to make several removals before the 1st of January. Comptroller Green, Corporation Counsel Smith, Commissioner of Public Works Van Nort, Police Commissioner Disbecker and others were to feel the axe of decapitation. Of course these removals became contingent upon charges to be regularly preferred and the action of the Governor. Now, that the hand of death has swept away the man said to have contemplated those movements, speculation is again rife as to the probable action of Mayor Vance.

At a late hour yesterday afternoon a HERALD representative called upon that gentleman to ascertain his views upon this point. He remarked in substance that his course for the short period during which he was called to administer the office of Mayor would be strictly conservative. He did not intend to remove anybody, but if it became necessary for the public service and charges came before him in a legal manner, he would, of course, take the proper steps made incumbent upon him by the charter of the city.

THE PRESIDENCY OF THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

Several candidates were talked of yesterday around the City Hall for the position of President of the Board of Aldermen, made vacant by the elevation of Mr. Vance to the Mayoralty. Aldermen Ottendorfer, Billings, Flanagan and Gilon have been mentioned. It seems to be a settled fact, however, that Alderman Flanagan is the winning man in the race. As this position carries with it membership in the Board of Apportionment there may be yet a lively contest. The estimates for 1875 have not been completed. The Board of Apportionment, as last constituted, passed them over to the Aldermen, who increased the appropriation some $207,000. The law makes it incumbent that this whole matter shall be arranged before the 1st of January, so that little time remains. Comptroller Green will, it is said, press the claims of Alderman Gilon. Tax Commissioner Wheeler, Comptroller Green and Mayor Vance now compose the Board, and the fourth member is yet to be elected.

A VACANCY IN THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

The chapter, as amended by section 1, chapter 75, laws of 1873, specifies as follow:—Any vacancy now existing, or which may hereafter occur, in either the Board of Aldermen or Board of Assistant Aldermen, by reason of the death or resignation, or of any other cause of a member of either of said boards, shall be filled by election by the Board in which such vacancy exists or shall arrive, by a vote of a majority of all the members elected to said Board, and the person so elected to fill any such vacancy shall serve until the 1st day of January, at noon, next succeeding the first general election occurring not less than thirty days after the happening of such vacancy, but not beyond the expiration of the term in which the vacancy shall occur, and at such election a person shall be elected to serve the remainder, if any, of such unexpired term.

Under this clause an alderman is to be elected by that Board to fill the vacancy until the 1st of January created by the change in Mayor Vance's position.

The name of the lucky gentleman thus to be selected to serve the city for some thirty days has not yet transpired.

A "MAYOR'S" NEST.

Certain lawyers proclaimed yesterday that they had found a clause in the charter by which Mayor Vance can hold over until January 1, 1876. Here it is, section 21 of article 3:—

In case of a vacancy he (the Mayor) shall so act until the first Monday of January succeeding the next general election, and at the general election next to be held, at which a Mayor can be chosen, but not within ten days after the occurrence of any such vacancy, a Mayor shall be chosen for the unexpired term for which such officer was chosen, and no special election shall be held to fill such vacancy.

If this construction of the law holds good, and Mayor Vance wishes to avail himself of it, Mr. Wickham will be compelled to remain some time longer before taking possession of the executive office.

SKETCH OF THE NEW MAYOR.

Mr. Vance was born in Bucks county, Pennsylvania, and was subsequently educated in Philadelphia. He was engaged in business in that city on the breaking out of the Mexican war, and was appointed to a captaincy in a cavalry regiment, in which capacity he served until the end of the war. Soon after he entered into business in this city and became a senior partner in the house of Mitchell, Vance & Co., a position that he still holds. He early interested himself in our educational system, and at various times held the offices of Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education and President of the Executive Committee of the College of the City of New York. In 1871 he was elected on the reform ticket to the Board of Aldermen, representing in that body the Sixteenth ward. He was re-elected in 1872 and is at present President of the Board. As such he is designated by law to succeed Mayor Havemeyer, and to act as Mayor until Mr. Wickham enters into office on the 1st of January next. He is about fifty-five years of age and is a republican in politics.

IMMIGRANT SWINDLERS.

Arrest of Three Suspected Men on Broadway.

Yesterday afternoon Detectives Walling and Woolsey had a lively encounter with some Italian immigrant swindlers on Broadway, near Wall street. The officers were on duty down town early in the morning and about nine o'clock they saw three men, two of whom they recognized as confidence operators, who have impoverished numerous unsuspecting foreigners, mainly Italians. They watched the swindlers for several hours and saw them make five or six attempts to wheedle "greenhorns" out of their money. The persons whom they selected, every one, refused to be victimized. Walling and Woolsey waited patiently for them to catch a gudgeon, but they failed to do so, and, as the officers had to report at the Central Office at four o'clock, they determined to take the indefatigable confidence men with them so as to prevent a victim from being practised upon. They were also prompted to do this by the fact that there have been numerous complaints made to Superintendent Walling by persons who have been swindled by such men as the detectives were watching, and in the hope that these men would be recognized by the swindled people as their victimizers. The detectives, therefore, pounced upon the confidence men. The latter, however, made a desperate resistance. One of them, a tall, strong-framed man, who calls himself Charles Miller, fought Detective Woolsey, and in the struggle between them the latter had his coat almost torn from his person. Other officers went to the aid of the detectives, and the swindlers were forced to submit to arrest. They were taken to the Central Office, where their pictures already adorned the Rogues' Gallery, and where they were locked up. Their names are Charles Miller, a Canadian; Emanuel Gonzalo, a Spaniard, and Gustavus Iche, an Italian.

It is believed that they will be speedily identified by some of the duped immigrants.

POLICE AFFAIRS.

The Police Commissioners held their regular semi-weekly meeting yesterday afternoon. Their doings were not of great interest. They referred the citizens' petition on the subject of Sunday evening theatrical amusements to Superintendent Walling, whom they instructed to act in accordance with law against all managers who have not procured injunctions to restrain the police. Patrolmen A. Kenny, of the Nineteenth, and John F. Carroll, of the Twenty-first precinct, were dismissed from the police force, and the following named men were appointed as members of it:—J. T. Good, J. J. Kane, James Fisher, G. E. Bickwell, H. Hammond, John O'Rourke, T. H. Reid, E. Hackett and W. Simms. Nine men were cited to appear before the Commissioners preliminary to appointment as patrolmen.

THE DRAGON DISEASE.

Death Route Through New York—An Examination of the Pest-Maps of the Board of Health—Diphtheria and Smallpox the Scourges—Important Report of the Sanitary Committee.

Many citizens believe the reports of deaths by diphtheria and smallpox have been greatly exaggerated, but the health officers of the city know that the warnings of the press, and their recommendations in regard to the above diseases have sought to prepare the public mind to deal honestly and intelligently with the grave subject of the scourges, rather than to create unnecessary alarm. The danger is actual, as any one may discover for himself if he will take the trouble to visit the offices of the Board of Health and examine which have been prepared under the orders of that body. There are two of them and they have the sombre headings of "Diphtheria" and "Smallpox." Blue and red spots are marked in nearly every block on Manhattan Island, and sometimes they are so close that they almost make a sinister blot in designating the ravages of the dreaded destroyers of human life.

On the diphtheria map are to be found about four hundred of these terrible blood marks, all of which have occurred during the months of October and November. Upon analyzing this frightful record yesterday a HERALD representative discovered that the bulk of deaths seemed to be marked from Dover and Frankfort streets to the East River, extending in crooked lines to the North River, with varying virulence on both sides of the island up to Central Park. From Roosevelt street and the New Bowery to the East River these blue and red marks are thick. Especially is this so in Madison and Henry streets and in East Broadway. In the neighborhood of Tompkins square they occur with sinister regularity, and are mournfully suggestive. Crossing over to the west side—still following the dragon's trail—from Hudson and Greenwich, and through such a group of cross streets as Charles, Christopher, Grove, Barrow, Commerce, Cornelia and Carmine, the death blotches are painfully frequent. In Twelfth street, both east and west, up to Central Park, they are clearly traced; but through Second Third, Lexington and Fourth avenues, on the east side, they almost cover the outlines of the blocks. The destroyer pauses after Fifty-fourth street is reached on the west side, as if strangled by the keen, sweet air of our lovely park, but gathering strength among the hollows beyond its fair borders, the hideous spots appear again on the block bounded by 128th and 129th streets, Fifth and Sixth avenues; 170th street is especially scourged in the neighborhood of the Kingsbridge road, and the deaths there have been really alarming.

The old plague smallpox—to which also a map is devoted—shows the cases, not deaths, to be about 350 in the two months of October and November. The west side of the island is nearly free, except at and from 156th to 161st streets, where numerous cases have been marked. In isolated portions of the map, such as Fifty-third and Fifty-ninth streets, on the west side also, the blue and red indications of disease and death are frequent. On the east side, from Stanton and Houston streets to Eightieth street, ranging through all the blocks, and from avenue D to Fourth avenue, smallpox marks disfigure the fair city map. Citizens who would know the truth would do well to study the following report of the Sanitary Committee in connection with this visitation of disease and death submitted to the Board yesterday by the Sanitary Committee:—

HEALTH DEPARTMENT OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, }
NEW YORK, Dec. 1, 1874. }

The Sanitary Committee respectfully submit the following propositions concerning diphtheria, which embody deductions from the investigations of the latest and most competent medical authorities:—

MODE OF ATTACK.

Diphtheria is caused by the inoculation of the air passages with the diphtheritic poison, which from this point infects the whole system: the local inflammation is attended with the formation of membrane (exudation); the fever and general symptoms are the result of this local infection.

HOW IT SPREADS.

Diphtheria is therefore a contagious disease (not, perhaps, as marked as scarlet fever), induced by contact with objects and persons infected; it may be diffused by the exhalations of the sick and the air surrounding them, or directly by the exudation, as in the act of kissing, coughing, spitting, sneezing, or by the infected articles used, as towels, napkins, handkerchiefs, &c. The poison clings with great tenacity to certain places, rooms and houses, where it may occasion cases after the lapse of months.

SYMPTOMS.

In ordinary attacks the poison begins to act the moment it lodges upon the tissue, but, like a vaccination, causes but slight sensible effects in from two to five days; then is marked prostration, dryness of throat and pricking pain in swallowing; the throat becomes red, and patches of white exudation appear, and the glands of the neck swell. In mild cases these symptoms subside on the third or fourth day from their appearance; if more severe these symptoms may be prolonged; if unfavorable the fever increases, the local inflammation spreads and exhaustion rapidly follows.

PREDISPOSING CONDITIONS.

The Person.—Diphtheria attacks by preference children between the ages of one and ten years, the greatest mortality being in the second, third and fourth years; children of feeble constitution, and those weakened by previous sickness, and those suffering from catarrh, croup and other forms of throat affections.

Social Relations.—All classes are liable to diphtheria where it is prevailing, but those suffer most severely who live in low, wet grounds; in houses with imperfect drains, or surrounded by offensive matters, as privies, decaying animal and vegetable refuse; in damp rooms, as cellars; in overcrowded and unventilated apartments.

Seasons.—Diphtheria is not affected by either heat or cold, drought or rain.

PRECAUTIONS.

(a) The Dwelling or Apartment.—Cleanliness in and around the dwelling and pure air in living and sleeping rooms are of the utmost importance wherever any contagious disease is prevailing, as cleanliness tends both to prevent and mitigate it. Every kind and source of filth around and in the house should be thoroughly removed; cellars and foul areas should be cleaned and disinfected; drains should be put in perfect repair; dirty walls and ceilings should be lime-washed, and every occupied room should be thoroughly ventilated. Apartments which have been occupied by persons sick with diphtheria should be cleansed with disinfectants, ceilings lime washed and woodwork painted, the carpets, bedclothes, upholstered furniture, &c., exposed many days to fresh air and the sunlight (all articles which may be boiled or subjected to high degrees of heat should be thus disinfected); such rooms should be exposed to currents of fresh air for at least one week before reoccupation.

(b) Well Children.—When diphtheria is prevailing no child should be allowed to kiss strange children, nor those suffering from sore throat (the disgusting custom of compelling children to kiss every visitor is a well contrived method of propagating other graver diseases than diphtheria); nor should it sleep with or be confined to rooms occupied by, or use, articles, as toys, taken in the mouth; handkerchiefs, &c., belonging to children having sore throat, croup or catarrh. If the weather is cold the child should be warmly clad with flannels.

(c) When diphtheria is in the house or in the family the well children should be scrupulously kept apart from the sick in dry, well-aired rooms, and every possible source of infection through the air, by personal contact with the sick and by articles used about them or in their rooms, should be rigidly guarded. Every attack of sore throat, croup and catarrh should be at once attended to. The feeble should have invigorating food and treatment.

(d) Sick Children.—The sick should be rigidly isolated in well aired (the air being entirely changed at least hourly), unlighted rooms, the outflow of air being as far as possible through the external windows by depressing the upper and elevating the lower sash, or a chimney heated by a fire in an open fire place; all discharges from the mouth and nose should be received into vessels containing disinfectants, as solutions of carbolic acid or sulphate of zinc, or upon cloths which are immediately burned or, if not burned, thoroughly boiled or placed under a disinfecting fluid.

Respectfully submitted.

STEPHEN SMITH, Chairman.

THE FIRST WARD HOMICIDE.

Deputy Coroner Marsh will make to-day a post-mortem examination of the body of Henry Brown, a night watchman, of No. 66 Mott street, who died yesterday at the Park Hospital from injuries inflicted by P. Mahoney, of No. 117 Cherry street. Both were watchmen at pier 2 North River, and on the 26th of November Brown, who had been drinking very freely, got intoxicated. Mahoney, it appears, twitted him with his drunken condition, upon which Brown ferociously assaulted him with a club. Mahoney used his club also, and a desperate fight ensued in which Brown drew a pistol and in which both combatants were badly injured. Brown, however, got the worst of it and had to be sent to the Park Hospital, while Mahoney was sent to the Tombs to await the result of Brown's injuries. Brown's body was yesterday removed to No. 66 Mott street, by permission of Coroner Eickhoff, and the inquest will be held some time this week. Brown was fifty-one years old, and leaves a widow to mourn his death. Mahoney's bruises are also very severe.

CHICAGO FIRE RISKS.

A meeting was held yesterday afternoon of the National Board of Fire Underwriters to consider the report of the committee that had been sent to Chicago to examine into the condition of that city in regard to risks. Mr. Stephen Crowell, chairman of the Executive Committee of the National Board, presided, and the report, a somewhat voluminous document, was read by Mr. Oakley. On motion, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

Resolved, That in view of the report of the committee appointed to visit Chicago, and of the improvements already made and of those now in progress, and of the assurances given said committee by the authorities of Chicago that the recommendations of General Shaler in regard to the Fire Department will be carried out at the earliest practicable date, the companies belonging to the National Board be advised that the question of reopening business at Chicago is referred to the several companies, to take such action as they may individually deem wise and prudent in view of the information presented by the report of said committee.

The meeting then adjourned, after ordering the report to be printed.

THE UNLUCKY SIOUX.

Two Hundred and Sixty Ponies, Valued at $20,000, Stolen by the Utes—Their Last Hunt on the Republican—A Wise and Moderate Appeal to the Government for Restitution.

OMAHA, Nov. 28, 1874.

The Sioux Indians from Red Cloud Agency hunting on the Republican, consisting of the Cut-off bands (Kiocsias), with portions of the Ogallallas, Brules and Minneconjoux, have just been subjected to severe misfortune by the loss of 260 ponies stolen from them by the Ute Indians, from the Colorado Springs Agency, about forty miles from Denver, Colorado Territory. For a month past these Utes, accompanied by a few white men, have been encamped on the headquarters of the Beaver resting their horses, affording them recuperation, with good grazing, and awaiting the movement of the Sioux to the Republican for their last hunt in that country under recent treaty stipulations.

The Sioux crossed the South Platte River and rendezvoused on the 18th of November at a point twelve miles west of Old Julesburg. Before daylight on the morning of the 20th inst. their principal herd, grazing in the immediate vicinity of their camp, was attacked and driven off by the Utes, who had come down in the night from the forks of the Beaver. The Cut-off bands are reported to have lost fifty-two ponies, the Ogallallas fifty-three, and the Brules 155. One party of five lodges lost all its horses, and is unable to move its families. As soon as the loss was discovered all the young men in the Sioux camp still in the possession of horses, to the number of 165, started in pursuit, and followed the trail unsuccessfully, for over sixty miles, for two days. The Utes had eight hours start, and, though their movements were encumbered by the herd, made good their escape.

These Sioux are thus practically dismounted and unable either to hunt the buffalo or to return with their families to the agency. The cash value of an Indian pony on the plains varies from $80 to $100; so that by this coup of the Utes the Sioux are losers to an amount of over $20,000. Even were there a ready market in which to procure remounts they could not avail themselves of it, for lack of money for the purchase or of pelts to trade: and so to regain power of movement they must depend upon the government to force the Utes to return their stolen stock, or go on the warpath against them as best they may. In a council with a scouting party of the Third regiment of cavalry, under command of Lieutenant Lawson, a few days after the theft of their stock, Two Lance and Fire Lightning, the principal men of the Cut-off bands, successors of the Chief Whistler, who was killed two years since by white men, stated the situation in words as follows:—

THE INJURED RED MEN.

TWO LANCE—My friend, the big man of the soldiers! You are one of those to whom I always listen and by whose word I abide. You are the one that told me, two years ago, when Whistler and two others of our people were killed, to be friendly to the white man. You told me that if any white men should trouble us you would assist and protect us from them. I have been told by the soldiers that if anything should go wrong they would right it for us. Who are these people, the Utes? Have they no father (agent)? We have a father (agent), and what he tells us we abide by. Last fall some men came here and told us that they would see about the killing of the buffaloes for their hides and stop it, but nothing has been done so far to stop it, and there are more buffaloes killed at present for their hides than ever before. About the theft of our horses I will be rather slow and hold back in getting them because of your coming to see me. This band—the Cut-off Indians—was brought up in this country; but we had to leave, and we have received nothing for it as yet. I have ever been friendly to the soldier and the white man, and have always given them information about the country when asked to do so. Last summer I helped you make a road from Sidney to Red Cloud Agency. The Ute Indians stole on the 20th of this month 105 head of horses from my band and the Ogallallas, and from the Brules (Spotted Tail's people), 155 head of horses. I hope you will try to get them back for us by sending to their father (agent) for him to make them return them to us. We await from you an answer this moon. We are here in distress. We can't move and we can't kill the buffalo. Therefore we hope you will do all you can to help us to recover our horses from the Utes. Whenever we Sioux do anything wrong our father (agent) deducts for it from our annuities.

FIRE LIGHTNING said:—All the white men I have ever met have one father to superintend the whole. I am one of the men that represented this band at the treaty we held at Fort Laramie last fall. We were told then that whatever band of Indians behaved well toward the white men would be treated well by the white men in return, and that they would assist us should we get into any trouble with bad white man. This is the sixth time that the Utes have wronged us, and we have taken no notice of it because our Great Father (the President) said not to go to war. How can we help it? The Utes come and kill some of us and steal our ponies. At present we leave everything in your hands; but, if these Utes don't bring back our horses, we can't help going to war with them. We hope that they will be made to give up our horses by their father (agent). Let my Great Father (the President) know this, and know it well, that I listen to whatever my Great Father says and abide by it. It is very hard for us to hear our women cry over the loss of our ponies; but we won't try to get them back by making war on the Utes till we hear from our Great Father about our horses. If we do not hear from our Great Father about our stock at the end of this moon our young men will travel around and try to get our horses back and avenge ourselves on these Utes. This is in case our Great Father won't do anything for us; and then our people won't trouble anybody but these Utes that stole our horses.

GRIEF OF THE WOMEN.

The allusion made by Fire Lightning to the wails of their women over the loss of the herd is not to be underestimated. In times of excitement Indian women exert great influence over the men, even as during our civil war our women, both North and South, urged on the soldiers by inciting them to war and to deeds of bravery and heroism. At all times, with the Indians, proof of individual prowess is required to make warriors of the young men, and so no Indian maiden will smile with favor upon the suit of her swain till he shall have shown himself a man of deeds by stealing horses or taking scalps. Investigation into the manner of obtaining the scalp is never had, and thus, whether it be obtained in fair open warfare from an armed enemy, or from the head of some isolated, defenceless settler or his wife, murdered without cause and in cold blood, its value is the same; it is a scalp, worthy of the song and the dance and proof of the valor of him who brings it in.

A GOOD INDIAN.

Thus it is that the young men, to keep in favor with the women and to gain influence in their tribe, are ever planning and working for hostile expeditions and the war path, while the old fellows, who have long since made political careers and their matrimonial fortunes, take the part of conservatism and lean toward wisdom. Of this latter class is Spotted Tail, an excellent Indian, who, within the past week, has turned over to private parties in the neighborhood of Camp Sheridan ten head of cattle to replace the same number killed in September last by members of his band.

BRAVE WOLF AND HIS BRAVES.

The latest news from the Northern agencies is that everything is quiet. Brave Wolf, with 100 lodges of Cheyennes, from the headwaters of the Powder River, who have not been at the agency since last February, are reported as beyond Fort Fetterman and coming in. The latest reports from Fort Laramie are to the effect that Professor Marsh has met with very great success in his explorations of the bone fields in Northwestern Nebraska, and may be expected very shortly to return to civilization.

THE TEXAS EXPEDITION.

The Troops and Horses Suffering from Insufficient Supplies—Men without Clothing and Shoes—The Subjugation of the Savages Going on.

HEADQUARTERS, MILES' COLUMN, ON THE SWEETWATER, Texas, Nov. 21, 1874.

Since writing hurriedly from this point yesterday I have thought the interests of the army might be advanced by further treating on some subjects which I had not the time or space to specify preparatory to the courier leaving, and so, before starting for McClellan's Creek, where I rejoin General Davidson's, or the Sill column, I give you what I have been able to discover or learn from authentic sources. I find the men and officers of this command literally run down and worn out. The men are without clothing, shoes and other things necessary to protect them against the threatened severities of an impending winter. They are obliged to make coverings for their heads from the skins of buffaloes and wolves, and they have been obliged to cover their feet from the same source of supply. No later than to-day a man—who is to be tried by court martial for the offence—refused to go on guard because he had no covering for his feet, his boots having been worn out. It is said by the officers truly that requisition upon requisition has been made, but thus far the Quartermaster's Department has taken no action, and tonight one of the officers here has made a last appeal. All the old, as well as new, officers complain of it and regard it as an unprecedented state of affairs. In justice to their men and the faithful performance of their duties they cannot help but find just cause for complaint. It appears that the transportation has been used in hauling 150,000 bricks to Camp Supply, instead of forage, rations, clothing, and camp and garrison equipage. General Sheridan and those immediately about him seem to be the only officers who realize what the army really wants in this emergency. They cannot be everywhere and do everything, but this floundering about, no one knowing where any one else is going, should at once be put a stop to, and there should be one head to direct everything, and a systematic co-operation with all the branches of the military establishment under one positive controlling power. Colonel I. Redwood Price is to ask a Board of Inquiry into the conduct of affairs by General Miles, and on the other hand the latter is to ask one on General Pope's administration. Certain it is that which have frustrated the efforts of troops in his column have resulted from the want of regular and sufficient transportation, and the consequent curse of half rations rendered imperative from want of fuller supplies. Great stress has been laid upon the facility with which the horses could be fed on the allowance of half grain, and much reliance has been placed on the grazing the prairies would furnish. This has proved an utter fallacy, it having been established by the bitter experience of the last three months that this could not be counted on. The prairies, after an unprecedentedly hot summer and fall, and having been very generally burned over by the Indians, have but little grass on them, and that only here and there where, owing to long marches and late camps, it could not be selected. Most frequently when scouts have reported it "as high as your knees," it has proved so; but also, in the expressive language of an experienced officer, "like pipe stems, as thick as your finger and as hard as a bone, without any substance in it." Then again it should be borne in mind that while horses in garrison have full forage, with little or nothing to do, they have only half that amount of sustenance in the field, where they have hard work to perform, carrying nearly 200 pounds weight and marching on an average thirty miles a day, and even this has not been regularly given to them.

THE PROGRESS OF THE WAR.

There is undoubtedly a quiet subjugation of the Indians going on. They have become considerably divided and demoralized since hostilities began, and it is daily becoming more evident that the "young bucks" make the war and keep it up as they want to do something to make themselves of importance among the older braves of their tribes, and to this end it is necessary that they show their prowess by murdering and plundering on the borders. These localities may suffer for some time on this account, and the States affected must, for the present, protect themselves. All is quiet here, and the troops may be said to be "pausing" for the present on this line. A severe rain storm has been followed by sunshine again, though the weather is reaching a condition in which no certain temperature can be relied on. The nights are very cold and trying. There is no grazing, but General Pope has at last been obliged to issue orders for full rations, and writes to General Miles that two million pounds will be sent forward at once.

THE JERSEY CITY MURDER.

Funeral of the Murdered Man—The Brief Career of a Glasgow Youth—One of the Perpetrators Captured in Brooklyn.

The funeral of the unfortunate William Livingstone took place yesterday from his late residence in Fifth street, Jersey City. The remains were taken to the Second Presbyterian church, of which he was a member. His wife and four children in deep mourning accompanied the body, and the spectacle was altogether a most melancholy one. The funeral service was read by the Rev. Mr. Fisher. He read the ninetieth and twenty-seventh Psalms. His sermon was most effective and stirred up the souls of his hearers. He reminded his audience that the great question which this tragedy called up was whether there was righteousness enough in Jersey City to strike down the ruffianism that stalks boldly abroad so effectually that a man could walk through the streets without fear of molestation. His remarks were so pointed and his style so forcible that many of those who heard him looked as if they would like to organize a vigilance committee on the spot. A fine looking body of men, delegates from the Bricklayers' Association, were ranged near the coffin. The remains were taken to the New York Bay Cemetery for interment.

Livingstone was born in Glasgow, where his father has been proctor fiscal (corresponding to our District Attorney) for the past thirty years. He received an excellent education, but being a little fast in the estimation of the staid old Scotchman he soon found home a little too warm for him. Paternal restraint he could not brook, and having formed an acquaintance with the captains of several transatlantic steamships he emigrated and arrived in this country nine years ago. He obtained a position as bookkeeper in A. T. Stewart's establishment, but this was not congenial employment. Accordingly he served his time with Mr. William C. Whyte, of Jersey City, as mason and bricklayer, and became an excellent workman. He married the widow of Mr. Whyte's brother.

Last Saturday evening, being short of funds, Mr. Whyte, for whom he worked, passed him a check for $60 on the Mechanics and Laborers' Savings Bank, in Grove street. This check he cashed, and, retaining $5, sent his son home with the balance. His murderers no doubt expected to secure considerable booty, for when the body was examined by an officer and ex-Coroner Mahan all the pockets except the inner pocket of the vest were turned inside out. The only pocket they had not time to rifle was found to contain $3 90. The weapon with which the death blow was inflicted has not yet been discovered.

James Hunt, one of the fugitive perpetrators, was tracked to his hiding place yesterday in a locality known as "Jackson's Lots," at the head of Myrtle avenue, in Brooklyn. Captain Van Riper and officer Maginnis, of the Second precinct, assisted by a squad of Brooklyn police, swooped down upon the house in which he was secreted and took him into custody. He was conveyed to the Second precinct station in Jersey City, and afterward to police headquarters. He will be brought up for examination this morning and the inquest will be commenced this evening. Reilly, the chief perpetrator, is still at large, but the police authorities state that he will be in their hands this afternoon. Mayor Traphagen hesitated to issue a proclamation offering a reward, on the assurance of the police authorities that it would be unnecessary, as they were on Reilly's track.

SOUTH OYSTER BAY MURDER.

Trial of Lewis Jarvis for the Killing of Samuel J. Jones—The Case to Go to the Jury To-Day.

The trial of Lewis Jarvis, one of the colored men charged with the murder of Samuel J. Jones at South Oyster Bay, L. I., in June, 1873, was continued yesterday before Judge Pratt, at the Queens County Court House, North Hempstead. Stephen Payne, the dedective; S. N. Snedeker, justice of the peace; Officer Jos. Wilkinson, Justice G. C. Bennett, Jacob S. J. Jones, half brother of the murdered man; Admiral Melancthon Smith, United States Navy; Catharine Mitchell, Valentine Baylis and James Seaman testified in behalf of the prosecution, developing no new facts, when Mr. Fleming opened the case for the defence by the examination of Dr. Hendrickson, who was asked to give his definition of suffocation sufficient to cause death. When asked if he could tell whether a wound was inflicted just before or just after death, he said, in the case of a contused wound he could. Mr. Fleming read the description of five wounds upon Mr. Jones' head, as described by Dr. Hegeman at the Coroner's inquest, and asked whether the appearance of the body and its organs did not indicate that Mr. Jones died from suffocation; but the doctor appeared to be of the contrary opinion. The wounds would, of course, produce a comatose state.

The defence here rested, with the renewal of the motion of Mr. Fleming to quash the indictment. Motion denied and exception noted.

Mr. Cogswell proceeded to sum up for the defence, commencing at twenty minutes to three o'clock. He made a careful review of the evidence, protested against the acceptance of the fact that certain articles once belonging to Mr. Jones had been found in Jarvis' possession as conclusive evidence of guilt, and cited authorities to prove that the statements made by the prisoner tending to criminate himself should be excluded, because not made voluntarily. He further claimed that the prisoner should be acquitted if the jury had any idea that Mr. Jones' death might have been caused by drowning, and insisted that, in any case, that deliberation and premeditation necessary to constitute a case of murder in the first degree had not been shown.

After a short recess District Attorney Downing proceeded to sum up for the prosecution. He dwelt upon the heinousness of the crime, and insisted that it was a clear case of murder in the first degree as against the prisoner at the bar, and that no compromise as to the degree of crime should be made.

Judge Pratt, after consultation with the jury, postponed the delivery of his charge until this morning, at ten o'clock, when the case will go to the jury.

THE 'LONGSHOREMEN.

Condition of Affairs "On the Beach" Yesterday—Non-Society Men at Work.

The 'longshoremen's strike is making but little progress and the outlook for better prospects is particularly gloomy to the union adherents. During the first week of this rupture between labor and capital the steamship men were alone concerned, but the difficulty of instructing raw hands to satisfactorily perform the work of discharging and loading their vessels was found to be less than anticipated, and now it is an easy matter with the new comers. The second week of the trouble found the sailing vessels involved, or rather their owners and agents, not because the latter refused to pay the wages demanded, but because the 'longshoremen withdrew from the piers, owing to a resolution passed by the organization to which they belong, thus hoping by a general strike to bring the steamship men to terms. It utterly failed in its object, and many owners of sailing craft, who have been holding off and allowing cargo on the docks to remain there for several days, have at last exhausted their stock of patience, and yesterday afternoon made arrangements by which their business shall no longer be interrupted. This is the case with the ships in the hands of Messrs. Sutton & Co., of the California trade. Many of their old hands had been with them for a score of years, and in addition to being supplied with a sufficiency of work to enable them to average $25 to $26 per week, the firm's ships were so numerous as to give the men work the year around. Embarrassment of no slight degree followed the voluntary "knocking off" of these laborers, and the business of the concern at once came to a standstill. Messrs. Sutton & Co. did not feel willing at first to supply their places with the available material on every hand, expecting that prudent counsel would prevail and the men soon return to work. But after waiting until yesterday noon the strikers maintained the same bearing of unconcern, when the shipowners and the firm made arrangements for the work to be proceeded with this morning upon all their ships, and that by non-society men in every instance. No more union men will be employed on pier No. 19 East River or upon any vessel in the future loading in Sutton's line. This is a serious blow for the strikers, but not the fault of the firm mostly concerned. The old wages were never refused, the work must necessarily be done by somebody, and after waiting until tired, the union men are "left out in the cold." It is pertinent to remark that the hands that will go to work this morning on pier No. 19 East River will have the full protection of the police.

The news of the strike and the attitude of the strikers having reached the unemployed in distant places, the latter are flocking to New York and offering their services to the several stevedores along the river fronts, and with great success. One of the first squads of this character reached here yesterday morning, 75 in number, and were at once put to work on the vessels owned by a prominent firm in South street. Men from the coal and mining regions are also making their way to this city for the same purpose, and are finding steady employment "on the beach." The steamship men and the owners of the sailing vessels bear testimony to the worth and sobriety of these men, and feel well assured that in a short time they will become even more proficient than the old hands.

Messrs. Tapscott Brothers, who have also been holding off in the anticipation of the strikers returning to work, also became weary of the waiting yesterday morning and ordered their stevedore to employ "outsiders," which was done. By noon the men were working faithfully and to the satisfaction of all connected with the vessels.

Messrs. C. H. Mallory & Co., although having much business on hand this week, are getting along admirably with the non-society men. They have the City of Galveston, the regular New Orleans steamer, to get away to-day, and it will be accomplished in good season. The City of Waco, for Galveston, and the City of Dallas, for Newbern, will also sail on Saturday, and, in addition, the City of San Antonio, from New Orleans, and the City of Dallas, as above, will be discharged. Besides these steamers the firm have several sailing vessels loading, and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

At the Savannah pier, No. 16, the Leo was rapidly being prepared for sea, the work being performed by non-union men. About noon one of the hands, Thomas L. Creighton, had his right leg mashed by a large plank of yellow pine falling on it. He was at once removed to the Park Hospital and properly cared for.

Messrs. Grinnell, Minturn & Co. were also working non-society men in discharging their ships New World and E. W. Stetson, which arrived from London on Sunday.

The Anchor Line, although its business is very large, is getting along satisfactorily. At present Messrs. Henderson Brothers, the agents, have five steamships in port and seven sailing vessels, all of which are either loading or discharging cargoes. Of the former, the Glenfinlas will sail for London on Friday, the Italia the same day for Glasgow, and the Bolivia, the regular steamer for the latter port, on Saturday. The Anglia and Europia, from Glasgow, are discharging cargoes. The seven sailing vessels are up for the ports of London, Liverpool and Glasgow, and are being rapidly loaded by the non-society men. The agents express their belief that the worst of the trouble with them is over, and willingly testify to the class of sober men that are applying for work in the places of the striking 'longshoremen. Said one gentleman connected with the firm:—"If any one should complain of trouble because of the strike, it should be us, as our business is so large; but, then, we have 200 men at work at pier 20 North River and at other docks, all of whom as doing well and are glad of the chance to obtain employment. Many of our men are getting regular salaries, and we have no doubt of our ability to weather the storm."

The City of Montreal, of the Inman line, detained by the delay in getting its large cargo stowed, will leave to-day at noon.

From an official source it was learned that the steamship combination is satisfied with affairs as they now stand and express the greatest unconcern at the stubbornness of the strikers, deeming their battle to be practically lost.

A SLIGHT SKIRMISH.

Yesterday, between twelve and one o'clock, a number of Italians who had been brought from Jersey City in the tugboat Tittamer to pier 8 North River were hustled and hooted by a gang of 'longshoremen, who followed them up Rector street in the direction of Broadway. Several school children joined in the pursuit, and threw lumps of coal and frozen dirt at the Italians, several of whom showed that they were anything but cowards. Captain Saunders, of the Twenty-seventh precinct, was promptly on hand, and Officer Dorton took to the station house for protection a man slightly hurt, who, not being able to speak English, was unable to give his name or address. When the Italians reached Broadway they treated their pursuers to a volley of stones. In the future Captain Saunders will have more men on Rector street and in that vicinity.

'Longshoremen's Strike in Brooklyn.

Inspector Waddy and his gallant men enjoyed a day of quiet and rest along shore, the strikers maintaining the same docile attitude that has characterized their bearing since the inauguration of the rebellion against what the society men regard as an aggression on the part of capital against labor. The action of the Cooper Institute mass meeting was warmly discussed, and the determination to hold out to the bitter end in their present demands was endorsed upon all sides. The steamer C. H. French hauled up to the wharf in front of Harbeck's stores, with a large cargo, yesterday, and work was immediately commenced upon her by a gang of non-society men. At the same stores the Eleanor is also loading. Mr. William Roberts, stevedore, hired a number of men in New York and brought them to this wharf to work, paying them at the rate of thirty and forty cents per hour. Italians are at a discount, being regarded as "light weights;" but Germans and Irish are in great demand in handling the cargo. The ship Elmstone, lying near Harbeck's, has a large cargo to be taken out, and the stevedore is willing to pay the old rates of wages to the society men. About thirty men were brought to Brooklyn from Jersey City, and went to work on the Lord of the Isles, Clanranald and Washington. A gang of men employed by Walsh Brothers "knocked off" because they said that though they were promised twenty-five and thirty-five cents an hour and ten hours work a day, they have made only six and seven hours work a day, and have been paid only fifteen and twenty cents per hour. The 'longshoremen laugh at the troubles of those who have attempted to take their places, and loss is certainly experienced by some of the ship owners. At the Baltic stores the bark N. M. Haven, from Havana with sugar in boxes, is being discharged by non-society men under the direction of the stevedores Lloyd & Son.

The Strike in Hoboken.

Yesterday morning about one hundred new hands arrived from New York to work on the dock of the Eagle Steamship Company, one of the steamers of that line being expected in the harbor. The vessel had not arrived at noon, and some of the laborers began to return to New York. On their way to the ferry they were attacked by several members of the union on strike, who beat one of them badly. Before they could do further harm Officer Dooley was at hand, and the strikers disappeared for the time. They hovered near the dock, however, and fears were entertained by the newly employed individuals lest they might be again attacked by the union men. On this account they remained in a cluster all the evening. The President of the union, Mr. Marlow, came to them toward nightfall and offered to conduct them safely to the ferry and pay their fares to New York, if they had no money. Most of them preferred to remain, however, and were protected by the police during the night. At Winslow's coal dock ten of the old employés went back to labor at their own rates. This morning the steamship of the Eagle Company will arrive, and the untutored laborers will go to work. The apprehensions of a general attack to-day are increasing. The police are nearly worn out with fatigue, having had only six or seven hours a day for rest and meals since the strike began. Chief Donavan is making due preparations to prevent breaches of the peace.

A fire was discovered yesterday in the three story brick building No. 207 West Forty-first street, originating in the lager beer saloon of Frederick Boshert, on the first floor. The building is the property of the Kip estate, and was damaged $200.

Yesterday was the opening day of the fair of the Society for the Relief of the Destitute Blind, at their "Home," No. 219 West Fourteenth street, and the entertainment will be opened during to-day and to-morrow, from eleven A. M. to ten P. M. This is the only "Home" exclusively for the blind in the State, and the applications for admission on behalf of those whose deprivation of sight throws them upon the charitable for the means of livelihood are more numerous than the means of the society or the accommodations of the "Home" can supply. Abundant attractions are provided for the entertainment of visitors at the fair, and it is confidently expected that a large fund will accrue from it.

Housekeepers do not all share the common opinion that the art of making a house comfortable, wholesome and attractive is an instinct or gift of birth. This is verified by the large attendance of ladies who would learn this important feature of a woman's mission at the class for instruction therein yesterday morning in the House of the Women's Educational and Industrial Society, No. 47 East Tenth street. These classes are justly growing in popularity, and afford the unskilled lady who finds herself charged with the cares of a home for which she has had no competent training, just the instruction she needs in regard to the important and pressing problems which daily and nightly press upon her, and upon whose proper solution depends so largely the welfare of the family.

A fair in aid of the Association for Befriending Children and Young Girls opened, with rare and varied attractions, yesterday, at No. 28 Union square (Fourth avenue), and will continue for two weeks. Among the articles for sale and on exhibition is a fine collection of about two hundred figures, statuettes and other works of mediaeval art, from the lately suppressed Italian convents. The object of the fair is to reduce the debt of the institution for the purchase of the commodious premises No. 136 Second avenue, where the association gives accommodation to 100 friendless girls and furnishes them with opportunity to commence a life of honest industry instead of a career of shame and vice. Such is the economy of the institution that it is made almost self-supporting, but the help of the charitable is necessarily invoked to discharge the purchase debt upon the premises.

The inquest will be resumed on Thursday.

At East Chester, a day or two ago, a lad named English went out gunning, and was shortly afterward joined by James Robinson, a companion. The boys walked together for some time, the last named in advance, when suddenly the gun carried by English was discharged, a portion of the contents lodging in the back of Robinson's head. The latter is now understood to be rapidly recovering from the wound. It is generally believed that the occurrence was purely accidental.

The question of a supply of pure water for the village of Peekskill is at length about being settled satisfactorily to most of the inhabitants. A contract has recently been made for the purchase of a dam site for $14 000. The Peekskill Hollow Creek has been adopted as a source of supply, the water being intended to be pumped into a reservoir located in what is known as the Campbell woods. This receptacle is to cover an area of eight and one-quarter acres, and will contain a sufficient quantity to supply the village for two months. It is located over one mile from the creek, and will occupy a height of 350 feet above the top of the dam. It is contemplated to raise the water to this altitude and convey it into the reservoir by means of turbine water wheels, to be located at the foot of the dam, and to be worked by the surplus water, thirty gallons being the quantity allowed for the pumping of one gallon into the reservoir. A chemical analysis has demonstrated the water to be superior to that of the Croton River.

REV. MR. HEPWORTH'S SUNDAY SCHOOL.

There was a large gathering last night at the Sunday school mass meeting in the Church of the Disciples. During the evening the children sang several hymns, Mr. Shelton played on the organ, and Miss Jennie Lewis read a selection from Steele with a good voice and an evident appreciation of the author's lines. Dr. Stephen H. Tyng then made an appropriate address to the children, amusing them with several laughable anecdotes, and then congratulated them on the success of the mass meeting.

The Rev. Mr. Hepworth commenced by saying how happy he felt at the great success of our first mass meeting, as he knew how often bad weather affected a congregation. We have had a very pleasant time this evening, and I want to express my thanks to those who have assisted us, especially Mr. Shelton, the organist, and Miss Lewis. I also want to thank those dear children for their singing, and the parents for coming to-night to hear them. I can never forget that I was a child myself, and on Christmas Day we intend to make our children doubly happy, and we will have a tree on this platform that will carry presents for all. But to do all this we want money, and you can help us. I made a mistake last Sunday—forgot to make a collection—and have repented in sackcloth and ashes ever since; but in order to show you that I shall never do so again I propose to take up a collection now.

After the collection Mr. Shelton played another selection on the organ and then the meeting dispersed.

ARREST OF A NEWARK DESPERADO.

Several weeks ago a warrant was issued in Newark for the arrest of one William Dougherty, alias "Duge," a notorious town torment, the charge against him being that of having entered the house of Ellen Nupletop, an aged woman, and assaulting her with felonious intent, which intent, however, through the prompt appearance of neighbors was frustrated. Soon after Officer Roe spied "Duge" and arrested him, but on the way to the station he broke away. The officer drew a bead on the flyaway with his revolver and fired. The shot took effect but Dougherty got away. He was severely wounded, but as soon as able to move left the city. On Monday night he returned, and yesterday was arrested and lodged in jail. He still suffers from his wound. There are other charges against him besides that of the woman Nupletop.

TRIPLE SHEET.

New York, Wednesday, Dec. 2, 1874.

From our reports this morning the probabilities are that the weather to-day will be clearing.

WALL STREET YESTERDAY.—Gold declined to 111¼, but closed at 112. Stocks were generally steady. Government securities continue firm. Money advanced to five per cent on call loans.

YESTERDAY WE HAD our first snow. It was a timid effort, and rapidly faded away.

MAYOR VANCE is very busy. People ask, "What will he do?" It is something to be a great man even for thirty days.

THE KING OF THE SANDWICH ISLANDS still remains in California. He will probably reach Washington in time to help the President at his New Year's reception.

LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR DORSHEIMER is said to believe that the best interests of the State would be served by the election of Tilden to the Senate.

IT IS SAID that the Secretary of the Treasury hesitates about the appointment of a supervising architect. Is there any use in such an office?

THERE IS A Cheap Transportation Convention now in session at Richmond. To give such a convention point Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. Garrett, Mr. Scott and Mr. Jewett should be made members. These gentlemen would be a convention with power to act.

HONORS TO THE NEW MAYOR.—The old volunteer Fire Department, or forty of its members, have given Mayor Wickham one of those enjoyable entertainments, a Delmonico banquet. Of course none of the old "fire-laddies" are candidates for office under the new Mayor. Certainly not.

WE GATHER from what our correspondent at Little Rock says that the Arkansas question is about to come before Congress. A delegation of precious statesmen, headed by "Governor" Brooks, has left Little Rock for Washington. In the meantime "Garland militia," who should be at work in the fields earning an honest living, are under arms.

REPORTED ILLNESS OF THE CZAR.—By cable we are informed that the unwelcome news has been received at London of the illness of the Czar of Russia, with the rumor that he is insane. This rumor may be a canard, but if to any extent founded upon truth the misfortune to Russia will be regarded as a general misfortune throughout the civilized world; for this enlightened Alexander in his admirable government of his great Empire has fairly won the grateful affection of his people and the respect of all the nations of the earth.

The Mistakes President Grant Should Avoid.

We desire to warn President Grant that he is in danger of making two capital mistakes—one at the beginning, the other after the close of the approaching session. His friends may urge him over the brink of the precipice on which he stands. The error he will be most strongly tempted to commit in his Message at the opening of the session is the recommendation of a specious quack remedy for the relief of the country. What he ought to do is to insist on the immediate withdrawal by Congress of the twenty-six millions of legal tender notes which the Treasury put out during the panic, and a further law for the cautious funding of an additional quantity of greenbacks in five per cent bonds, with a change in the banking law making bank issues free on a pledge of government securities, three per cent of the interest on the bonds to be withheld while they are so pledged. When money was in active demand and the rate of interest high the banks could make more by loaning their notes than they would lose by the diminished interest on their bonds; but as soon as the demand for money became slack they would have a strong motive for retiring a part of their circulation, in order to recover the full interest on their government securities. This, or something like this, is what the President ought to recommend. But what we fear he will recommend is a gigantic scheme of internal improvements at the expense of the Treasury. The advantages offered by such a scheme are superficial and deceptive. True, employment would be given to many laborers, but the public debt would be increased, the burden of taxes enhanced and a great amount of capital consumed without any return within the next ten or twenty years. The completion of the Northern Pacific and Texas Pacific railroads by a government guarantee of their bonds and the construction of a grand system of canals by government aid, would be as useless, for the next ten years, as would a vast increase of the regular army, which would also furnish pay to many men who now earn nothing and lead to the consumption of much food and clothing. It would be ridiculous to increase the army for the purpose of giving relief, and the employment of labor in unproductive enterprises at the public expense would be hardly less preposterous. To be sure, the Pacific railroads would be of some ultimate value; but when they are wanted they will be built by private capital. To complete them now at government expense would be as absurd as for the government to spend the same amount of money in building houses which would have to stand unoccupied ten or fifteen years before finding tenants. It would be absurd to do this at all, and doubly absurd to do it with borrowed money. We warn President Grant against committing his reputation to so wild a project of relief, to which crazy theorists and interested schemers are urging him.

The second danger and temptation to which a military President like General Grant is exposed of a still more alarming character than the other. He holds constantly in his hand a card which might be played in the last resort as a means of retrieving the political fortunes of the republican party and his own. If he should fail to recommend or Congress to adopt a wise and sagacious policy, and if the internal improvement project should not be adopted or should disappoint his expectations, there remains the desperate resource of a foreign war, which he could easily bring about. Our relations with Spain or our relations with Mexico could easily be so worked as to furnish a pretext, and when he had provoked insults or injustice from those irascible Powers he might fan the flame of popular indignation up to the war pitch. His Spanish and Mexican policy has heretofore been more than conservative—it has been tame and pusillanimous. One reason is that his firmest supporters have been the moneyed classes, who are habitually conservative, as all people are who have a great deal to lose. The same motive operated on his own mind so long as the republican party seemed in secure possession of the government. But if the coming session ends without sound measures of relief the republican party will have little left to risk or to lose, and Grant's motives for conservativism will be as weak as those of the rabble or of demagogues out of power. He has witnessed the potency of the war feeling in rallying the people to the support of the government. He has seen how easily and victoriously Mr. Lincoln's renomination and re-election were secured by the supposed danger of changing the President in the midst of a great war. If he were to plunge the country into foreign war he might count on putting such a strain upon the sentiment of loyalty as would not only revive the sinking fortunes of his party, but his own hopes of a third term. But the day is past for playing this game with success. The prosecution of a war requires not only men but money, and the conservative classes, who alone can furnish the money, would utterly abandon the President if he should attempt to play this desperate game. We warn him against meditating it even as a project to be taken up in the last resort. If the country had not so recently experienced the evils of war—its appalling destruction of life and property, its derangement of the currency, its fearful increase of the public debt, its oppressive addition to the crushing weight of taxes—the experiment might be tried with success. But this generation has had enough of war, with its wrenching effect on our institutions and its perils to public liberty. There is only one road open for rehabilitating the republican party, and that lies through wise action by Congress at this session and the introdution of honesty in the public service by the power over appointments, which will remain in the hands of President Grant and the republican Senate.

For it must be remembered that, notwithstanding the recent popular verdict, the republican party still retains the same irresistible control of every department of the government which it possessed at the second inauguration of General Grant after his triumphant re-election. If the President and Congress could act in vigorous concert throughout the approaching session, with sagacity enough to make the most of their advantages, they might set their party on its legs again and make it a formidable antagonist in the great political battle of 1876. No successful opposition can be made to laws which the republican majority may agree to pass at this session, and if they bend their policy in compliance with the popular will they have a chance of recovering a large part of their deserters who swelled the ranks of the victorious democrats in the late elections. Besides possessing the legislative power for the ensuing three months the republicans will hold the power of appointment and removal and the direction of our foreign relations until the expiration of General Grant's term of office. The republican President and Senate have a long period before them for purifying and invigorating the public service by displacing bad officers and installing honesty, capacity and public zeal in every branch and grade of the Executive Department. The whole machinery of the government is in the hands of the republicans, and they lack nothing but the skill to run it. Infinitely more depends on the President than on any other officer during this crisis in the fortunes of the republican party. The President's power in shaping the policy of the government has always been practically acknowledged by the supreme importance our people have attached to the Presidential elections. The President is a great deal more than a mere officer charged with the execution of the laws. The most tremendous power possessed by the government, that of declaring war, is, indeed, vested in Congress; but the President has constant opportunity to so embroil our foreign relations as to render war inevitable and leave Congress no choice. President Polk began the Mexican war on his own responsibility by ordering General Taylor and his army to the Rio Grande, thereby provoking hostilities which led Congress to declare that war existed by the act of Mexico. Our domestic policy is not so fully in the control of the President, but he has nevertheless great power to influence and mould it when his own party form a majority of Congress. Our strong Presidents have seldom failed to procure such legislation as they wished when they had a party majority in both houses and were supported by an able Cabinet. At a time when party confidence is so much shaken as at present there will be a disposition to lean on the President if he should evince courage and sagacity, and it will be the fault of General Grant if no redeeming measures are passed at this session. It is true that he cannot command Congress, nor does the hydrographic engineer who prepares the chart of a difficult channel command a ship, but if the chart be truly drawn according to correct surveys every sea captain is constrained to sail by it. The President's Message should be a chart by which Congress can be safely governed, and by which the ship of State can be brought out of dangerous seas into a prosperous and peaceful port.

William M. Tweed.

To-day William M. Tweed will emerge from his prison upon a writ of habeas corpus to appear in court and appeal for his liberation. It would be cruel to recall in detail the offences for which Mr. Tweed was convicted, or to contrast with the degradation of his fall the splendors of his almost imperial rule, nor do we wish to rake up the past. But as he was exalted to an eminence which perhaps no citizen of New York had reached before him, so he fell, not like an ordinary man, but as one on whom the whole world looked with wonder and regret. For four or five years the press of America and England, and indeed of all civilized nations, has been filled with the muddy story of the Tammany Ring. Its glory has passed into eclipse before the eyes of all men, from the wretched palace of the new Court House to the more respectable wards of Blackwell's Island. Everywhere the American people have been complimented for the way in which they executed justice. The value of a republican form of government has been demonstrated by the way we have punished officers who betrayed their trust, and of this impartial justice William M. Tweed is the chief example. Yet to-day the press of this country is silent; it is satisfied; it does not wish to pursue Mr. Tweed to his prison, and has a regret for the sorrows of his family. But there is something far higher than the sympathy of the public for an old man who has exchanged the diamonds of Tammany for the striped uniform of a convict. The reputation of the American people is concerned in this matter. Connolly, Fields, Genet and others bowed their heads to the dignity of the law and public opinion by flying from their united wrath. These men honored American justice by evading it. But Tweed has remained to defy it. Even yet, probably, the credit of his country is not indifferent to him; but it is impossible for us not to see that his present course endangers our honor. With all the pity that exists for Tweed it is certain that the people feel that his liberation now, on any technical point of law, would be, in the opinion of the civilized world, evidence that there is no crime that the American nation is not willing to condone. The example of the overthrow of Tammany is nothing if Tammany at last can, by the aid of the law, triumph over the broad, imperishable principles of justice. We admit that his friends may plausibly say that he was the scapegoat of the Ring, and we regret that he should be personally made to suffer not only for his own deeds, but for the crimes of others. But the principle is higher than the man. If Tweed is to be set at liberty let it be the act of mercy, for it cannot be that of justice. The public can pardon this poor old man, but in justice to itself it cannot formally vindicate him by the act of the law.

OUR NEW ORLEANS CORRESPONDENT telegraphs us that he does not know whether Kellogg will fight the new government that comes with the New Year or not. We do not think it makes any essential difference. President Grant has had his fingers burned in Louisiana, and even Presidents who have had such experiences dread the fire.

THE CONGRESS which meets on Monday could do worse things than appoint a committee to examine into the circumstances attending the sale of the Emma Mine, and whether the credit of the American government was directly or indirectly used to effect that sale.

China, Japan and the East.

We print this morning later despatches from China, which come by way of San Francisco. The news regarding the settlement of the difficulty between China and Japan is confirmed. The indemnity is fixed at about seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which, by the convention of 1858, they paid us for a long continuity of wrongs. So we may regard the difficulty as at an end, leaving no trace, except, perhaps, what may be termed an ugly and unpropitious one on the domestic politics of China. This we deem exaggerated. In all these matters we are compelled to take our views from the British press, distrustful as we are of it. That government keeps in its Oriental diplomatic service a staff of experienced men, at the head of which is the most accomplished linguist who speaks the English language, Mr. Wade. He, fifteen or less years ago, was a mere interpreter, and is now Minister Plenipotentiary. It is part of English diplomacy, when dealing with the East, to keep the home press duly advised at least of its opinions, if not of its designs. We are changing our representatives all the while, having had thirty ministers to China in fifteen years, and what they see and think and write is only known when, months and years after their dates, their despatches are printed at Washington.

The foreign press, and, we may infer, the British Embassy, are sorely puzzled at what has just occurred, taken in connection with the sudden degradation and quite as sudden restoration to office of Prince Kung, whom it suits Occidental fancy to regard as a liberal and progressive statesman. We, for our part, imagine him to be of the same Oriental type—no better, no worse—as Keying, who boasted how he had cheated Sir Henry Pottinger and Mr. Cushing in 1844, and who, being despatched to cajole the advancing allies in 1858, and failing, was ordered to cut his own throat, and did it. We have no faith in liberal Chinese statesmanship, not a jot, but we have faith in the peculiar sagacity of the Chinese administrators of every class and shade of prejudice, which teaches them at the right time to yield to pressure. The great question now is, What exactly is that pressure? Is it from without or in a certain sense from within—in theological phrase, exoteric or esoteric? The London press believes, or pretends to believe, that this war with Japan has been forbidden and stopped by one of the European Powers accredited to Pekin, and, disavowing any agency on the part of Great Britain, sees in the sudden back down of the Chinese, a submission to the mailed hand of Russia raised in warning.

These London views of these matters are too subtle for us, and we are free to say that a simpler solution seems reasonable and justified by all past experience; that the Chinese authorities, with all their "faithlessness and cruelty and arrogant foibles," are, when their material interests are made palpable, exceedingly and practically intelligent. We hardly think they would have gone to war for the defence or rescue of what is materially of so little value to them as Formosa; but when they found that the difficulty could be adjusted by the payment of a round sum out of their abundant customs they were only too glad to pay it. They know that whatever may be their military strength they could not just now cope with the Japanese at sea; that at certain seasons an effective blockade of all the main ports could be effected and maintained and all imports cease, and hence the pacification. To us of this country, only interested in commerce, it ought, let the remote future be as dismal as English alarmists paint it, to be matter of rejoicing that this useless, distant strife is stayed. We do not share the apprehension as to ultimate wars with the West.

Count Arnim.

The London Spectator, one of the most prudent and conservative of the London journals, in speaking of the rearrest of Count Arnim, says:—"There is something restless and even feverish in the action of the Prussian government in the matter which, at present, it is quite impossible to understand." This seems to be the general opinion of European journals, so far as can be understood from the expressions of the independent press. We should like Mr. Bancroft, Mr. Medill or some other eloquent American friends, who have been preaching to us recently about "German liberty" and the similarity between German institutions and those of the United States, to explain how it is possible for a free government to deal with a distinguished citizen as Germany has dealt with Count Arnim. Bismarck is also pursuing his policy and making war upon the women. A recent despatch from Münster describes the trial of certain Westphalian ladies for the offence of presenting an "address to the Bishop." These ladies were members of the Catholic faith. The Bishop had incurred the punishment of the law, and they sent him an address expressing their sympathy. The result was that the Court condemned one of these ladies—a Countess Reichtenstein—to a fine of two hundred thalers, or six weeks' imprisonment, and the other thirty ladies to a fine of thirty thalers, or three weeks' imprisonment. In other words, for a Prussian Catholic lady to say to a bishop that she is sorry he has been sent to jail is to expose herself to six weeks' imprisonment.

A good deal was said during the war, and a good deal more has been written since, about the manner in which General Butler treated the ladies of New Orleans. Even if the worst said about General Butler were true Bismarck's course toward the ladies of Westphalia is more severe and brutal.

MR. STANLEY'S EXPEDITION.—We print this morning the first letter from Mr. H. M. Stanley, the celebrated African explorer, who, as our readers know, is now again in Africa, in command of the joint expedition sent out by the London Telegraph and the NEW YORK HERALD. Mr. Stanley simply gives us the outlines of his first experiences, but we gather enough from what he writes to enable us to form the highest anticipations as to his success. In the meantime it is a pleasant thing to see the journalism of England and America laboring hand in hand to solve the problem of this mysterious and wonderful land and an American correspondent carrying the flags of the two nations into the hidden regions of an unknown continent.

Alsace and Lorraine.

The address of Prince Bismarck in the German Reichstag on Monday on a bill concerning the government of Alsace and Lorraine contains some of the most important declarations that Minister has made since the close of the war. It has been the policy of Germany to endeavor to coax the inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine to accept with cheerfulness the German rule. A university has been re-established in Strasbourg and largely endowed. People who were injured by the bombardment have been reimbursed for the losses. Money has been applied for the repair of the beautiful and unique Strasbourg Cathedral. Every effort—like gentle administration, appeals to local pride, reminiscences of ancient German glories—has been made by Prince Bismarck in the hope that the conquered provinces would become contented members of the German Empire.

Our reports from these provinces, as well as the correspondence published in the London newspapers, have shown, from time to time, that every effort to bind the new provinces to Germany has only deepened the affection for France. This conclusion Prince Bismarck publicly states in a speech marked with his usual frankness and with more than his accustomed severity. He did not propose, he said in so many words, to legislate for Alsace and Lorraine. If he established a university in Strasbourg it was not in the interests of Alsace, but in those of Germany. German soldiers had shed their blood for Germany, not for the provinces. They had conquered those provinces and meant to keep them, and their action, as a government, would be controlled by other interests than to desire to gratify people "whose past leads to Paris and whose present leads to Rome." He admitted he had cherished "sanguine hopes" as to the amalgamation of these provinces to Germany. These hopes, however, had been disappointed, and it would be necessary to take more rigorous steps in dealing with the people, especially in the matter of education. "My action," he said, in his proudest, most scornful way, "is guided by imperial interest. I shall not be frightened from my course by reproaches, threats or persuasions."

In other words, because the inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine, who for centuries have been French, just as the people of New England have for one century been American, and who have given France some of the most illustrious names in her history, and who in the time of the Revolution were extreme and almost pitiless in their devotion to liberty, because they do not immediately change their convictions, their hopes, their passions, affections, instincts, their very nature, as it were, and accept the rule of the foreigner instead of remembering their patriotic devotion for France, are to be treated as Russia treats the Poles or as England in former times treated Ireland. Children will be compelled to talk German, and not French, in their schools. The severest measure of Prussian discipline will be visited upon the people. It remains to be seen what success the Prussians will achieve in this new policy. Prussia has shown in the past—mainly in the annexation of Silesia, during the reign of Frederick the Great, and in the more recent acquirement of duchies like Nassau, kingdoms like Hanover and cities like Frankfort, Hamburg and Lubeck—that she has the faculty of making a community once inimical to her rule acquiescent and loyal. But Silesia, Hanover and the other annexed provinces were German. It was not a change of nationality, only a change of princes. The difference between the rule of the King of Hanover and that of the King of Prussia was little more than the difference between the government of New York and that of Pennsylvania would be to an American. But Prussia has not succeeded so well with her Polish provinces. For a hundred years she has been endeavoring to coax loyal obedience to her rule. Posen is now the hotbed of ultramontane rebellion against the German crown. In other words, the inhabitants of the "annexed" fragment of Poland adopt the ultramontane party as a means of annoying Bismarck. The same may be said of Alsace and Lorraine. These people are French to every intent and purpose, just as the people of Posen are Polish. The mistake which Bismarck has made is to attempt to overcome the law of nationality—a law as strongly grounded as that of nature. So long as he added German provinces to Germany he had a united kingdom. When he attempted to "annex" Poles and Frenchmen he found disturbing elements, and it is now necessary to deal with these elements in the harsh, absolute and cruel manner with which Russia governs her Turcomans and Circassians and wild tribes of Asia. But how long will Germans submit to Russian policy in Germany?

BAZAINE.—"An Alphonsist" writes a letter to the London Globe in reference to the journey of Marshal Bazaine to Madrid. He writes that in former days Bazaine served for six years under Isabella, and reached the rank of colonel in the Spanish army. At this time he has two objects in going to Spain. The first is to rejoin the family of his wife, who are resident in Madrid. The second is to offer his sword to Marshal Serrano, "not as an adventurer and soldier of fortune, but in his quality as a colonel of the Spanish army anxious to aid the legitimate government in restoring order to the country of his adoption." Bazaine is certainly a soldier of great ability. If he will serve any government in Spain with sincerity he will do much toward the establishment of peace.

THE BEECHER-TILTON CASE has reached the Court of Appeals, and was heard yesterday on a motion made by the counsel of Beecher to reverse the decision of the Court in Brooklyn denying Beecher a bill of particulars. The counsel for Beecher made an elaborate argument, which was replied to briefly by the counsel for Tilton. The logic of the Tilton case is that the demand of Beecher is the first instance of a demand of the times and places of an imaginary fact. If the thing took place the complainant knows all about it. If it did not, then the time or place could not be mentioned. As it is, the Court would not be justified in loading a suitor with the infamy of meditated fraud and perjury. The Court took the papers and will announce the decision in a day or two.

WASHINGTON BEGINS to assume its winter gayety.

Echoes of the Gladstone Pamphlet.

It seems that the story that His Holiness the Pope denounced Mr. Gladstone as "a viper" is without foundation. The Catholic organs in Rome, however, are violent in their criticisms of the Premier. One of the journals says, "It is not Catholic Rome that alarms Mr. Gladstone, but Anglican London, which is about to return to the Holy Father" after an absence of three centuries. At Turin a religious society has announced a novena for the conversion of the English nation. In the meantime the controversialists show temper. At Liverpool, at a recent meeting of priests, there was much indignation against Gladstone. The senior priest of the mission, a Father Hennessy, made an impassioned speech, announcing that Catholics "put their God and their Church above every temporal government. They were Catholics first and then any nationality afterward. He hoped no one would be ashamed to say he was a Catholic first." This certainly repeated the "higher law" doctrine denounced by Seward and the abolitionists before the war, and it will be interesting as such to "Prudentius" and others of our esteemed correspondents who do not agree with us in this view of Dr. Manning's letter. A Rev. Canon Walworth was very angry with Gladstone. He meant afterward to openly and candidly vote for the Conservative party, for Gladstone knew that what he said was a lie, and "lying lips are an abomination to the Lord." In Germany, as our readers may well suppose, the ex-Minister's manifesto was received with great satisfaction, and the journals print long and elaborate accounts of it. As an evidence of the religious zeal now permeating England it is announced that the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal of England, the head of one of the proudest houses in the peerage, is about to join one of the orders of Rome. This will compel His Grace to give up his estates, which are entailed upon his title and cannot be taken into the revenues of a monastery. But the question arises, Should the Duke join the Oratorians of St. Philip Neri, who will execute the office of Earl Marshal of the Realm, which is hereditary in the dukedom? For, while the Duke may give up his estates, he cannot abandon his titles. Altogether, the sea of religious feeling seems to be rising higher and higher in England, and we do not see where the agitation will end.

THE LOBBY forces, earlier than usual, have been this season gathering at Washington, in advance of the two houses. But as the approaching session will be short the lobby is only taking time by the forelock.

Prince Kung's disgrace and sudden restoration to honor and favor turned on differences of opinion as to the propriety of China's making war on Japan at this time. Prince Kung advocated peace, and on the day he was disgraced the Emperor had determined on war; but wiser counsels came twenty-four hours later, and Kung arose with them.

THE CZAR OF RUSSIA.

The Emperor Alexander Seized with Illness.

Rumor of an Attack of Insanity.

LONDON, Dec. 1, 1874.

News is received here of the illness of the Czar of Russia, and it is rumored that he is insane.

Sketch of the Emperor Alexander of Russia.

His Majesty the Emperor Alexander II. of Russia was born on the 29th of April, in the year 1818. He is, consequently, over fifty-six years of age. His early education was attended to more carefully than had been hitherto usual at the Russian Court, and his mind was, during his more youthful years, enlarged and cultivated by foreign travel and observation abroad. He is of a pensive disposition, tending to melancholy, naturally, and it is said that he has given way to fits of gloomy despondency during the past few years, particularly since the period of his governmental rupture with Pope Pius IX.—with whom he had been a personal favorite—on account of the treatment of the Catholic Church in Poland and other parts of the Russian Empire and the advent of the excitement which has been produced by the socialist radical agitation in the Russian provinces. It has been already rumored that the Emperor had developed symptoms of softening of the brain, that he refused occasionally to converse or even take food, and that his recent visit to England was undertaken at the instance of his medical advisers, who thought that the journey would tend to brace up his physical system and thus restore the mental equilibrium. He is, it is also alleged, haunted with the fear of assassination, and is anxious to abandon his position as head of the Greek Church. Alexander II. succeeded to the throne of his father, the late Emperor Nicholas, on the 2d of March, in the year 1855, and was crowned on the 7th of September, 1856. He had married on the 28th of April, 1841, the present Empress Marie Alexandrovna, daughter of Louis II., Grand Duke of Hesse. Their Majesties have had six children. The eldest, the Czarewitch Alexander, Hereditary Grand Duke of Russia, will succeed to the throne in the event of the death or abdication of his father. His Imperial Highness was born on the 10th of March, in the year 1845, and is consequently twenty-nine years of age. He is a dashing soldier. He was married on the 9th of November, 1866, to the Princess (now Grand Duchess) Marie, daughter of King Christian IX. of Denmark and sister of the Princess of Wales. They have two children. The Duke of Edinburgh is married to a daughter of the Czar. Before the marriage of the Duchess of Edinburgh was solemnized, in the present year, another daughter of the house of Romanoff was betrothed, the Grand Duchess Vera Constantinovna, sister to the Queen of Greece, and just as this wedding was on the point of being celebrated there was another engagement in the Imperial family, the Grand Duke Vladimir, the second son of the Emperor Alexander, who engaged to marry the Princess Marie of Mecklenburg-Schwerin. The Grand Duke Vladimir is a fine young man, twenty-seven years of age, and very handsome. Like all the Imperial princes, he has been carefully trained, and has completed his education by foreign travel. During his first tour in Europe he visited all the principal galleries, and on his return resolved to give up a considerable portion of his time to the cultivation of the fine arts, of which he has become a distinguished patron. He is now Vice President of the Imperial Academy, and is in reality the head of that body as the nominal President, the Duchess of Leuchtenberg, always resides abroad. In common with all the princes of the imperial Russian family, he occupies a prominent position in the military service, but he is the only one who takes any part in civil affairs. Seeing that his inclination lay that way the Czar made him a member of the Senate, and he regularly attends the sittings of that body. His intended is the Duchess Mary of Mecklenburg, born on the 14th of May, 1854, daughter of Prince Frederick Francis II., Grand Duke of Mecklenburg, Prince and Count of Schwerin, by his first marriage with a daughter of the late Henry LXIII., Prince of Reuss-Schleiz-Kœstritz.

BRUSSELS CONFERENCE.

LONDON, Dec. 2, 1874.

A Berlin despatch to the Times says Russia contemplates the reassembling next March in St. Petersburg of the International Law Conference lately held in Brussels. Exertions will probably be made to secure the consent of Great Britain and some minor States. The work of the Conference will be confined to the enactment of the more purely philanthropic clauses of the programme proposed by Russia. If these endeavors fail the three Northern Powers may possibly settle the matter alone.

Miners Contesting the Right of Way for a Railroad—Serious Disturbances Anticipated.

SALT LAKE CITY, Dec. 1, 1874.

The Bingham Cañon Railroad Company have been meeting for some time past with serious opposition to the extension of their road from miners, who object to the railroad crossing their claims on the way up the canyon. For some time the resistance was confined to rolling rocks down at the workmen employed grading the road, and several persons were arrested for the offence. Some few days ago a miner, whose claim they were crossing, chased the manager and all the railroad employés with a Henry rifle, having fired several shots at them. He was arrested and placed under bonds. Other parties have also engaged in shooting, and on Saturday the Vice President and all the employés of the railroad company were arrested, on complaint of a miner, and brought before a justice of the peace for illegally taking possession of mining property. As four indictments were found to-day for assault with intent to kill, it is thought some of the principal parties will soon be arrested. If prompt legal measures are not taken to suppress the disturbances the war between the miners and the railroad employés will become general.

HUDSON CHARTER ELECTION.

HUDSON, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1874.

The charter election in this city took place today, and resulted as follows:—James N. Townsend (republican), for Mayor, is elected by 206 majority; William B. Skinner (democrat), for Treasurer, without opposition; George L. Little (republican), for Assessor, elected by 392 majority.

The democrats elect Supervisors in the First and Third wards and the republicans in the Fourth ward. The Second ward is a tie. The democrats elect Aldermen in the First, Second and Third wards and the republicans in the Fourth ward. The result was very much mixed on the local issues and has no political significance.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1874.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

Inauguration of Governor Chamberlaine—An Address Redolent With Reform—Past Abuses Enumerated and Amendment Promised—Hopes of the Taxpayers.

CHARLESTON, Dec. 1, 1874.

Governor Chamberlaine was inaugurated before the Legislature at Columbia to-day with great éclat. The Hall of Representatives was densely crowded with spectators, including the judges and officers of the State and Federal courts, army officers and prominent members of the Charleston Bar. Music was furnished by the Eighteenth Regiment Band. After the oath had been administered by the Chief Justice the new Governor was greeted by a salvo of artillery outside the State House.

Governor Chamberlaine then delivered his forshadowing his policy for the reform of governmental abuses in South Carolina. He calls attention to the fact that in the late canvass the two political parties which sought supremacy were equally emphatic in their demand for the correction of abuses. Only two parties appeared at the polls, both of which professed to seek similar ends by similar means. Governor Chamberlaine says that he will therefore rely for support upon those members of the General Assembly who were opposed to him as confidently as upon those who favored his election. The paramount duty, he says, is the practice and enforcement of economy and honesty in the administration of the government. In his opinion our evils are chiefly those of the administration, and the earliest and most earnest attention should be directed to the subject of the collection, appropriation and disbursement of the public fund. He admits that the valuations of property for taxation have been unjust and oppressive, but the total assessments have been reduced $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 this year, and he stands ready, he says, to co-operate with the General Assembly in any measure calculated to obtain a just valuation of all property for taxation, according to its true money value, and so far as the faithful execution of the law depends upon the officers appointed by him no county shall have just cause for complaint. The taxes, he says, should be strictly limited to the actual requirements of the government and the contingent fund should be totally abolished. The legislative expenses must be reduced, he says, to an economical limit by reducing the length of the session to thirty days, by avoiding the consideration of special acts which can be covered by general laws, by reducing the number of subordinate officers and attachés, and by cutting off the contingent or incidental legislative expenses, which have been as much as $90,000 a session, with $500,000 of legislative pay certificates still unpaid.

THE PUBLIC PRINTING SYSTEM

he declares to be incapable of defence or excuse, in three years its cost was $9,108,629. He urges, also, that the expenditures of the State be kept within the receipts. The issuing of certificates of indebtedness and of orders or warrants when no money is on hand to pay them is condemned. In the matter of abolishing unnecessary offices and reducing salaries Governor Chamberlaine will agree to any measure which the General Assembly may adopt. In emphatic words he declares that the settlement of the public debt under the act of last winter must be regarded as final, as far as legislative and popular influence and action can make it so. About two million dollars of bonds have been funded under the act in question, and when so funded will amount to only $5,740,016. For the outstanding bills of the Bank of the State Governor Chamberlaine holds the State to be responsible, and advises that they be declared receivable for all past due taxes and be receivable in instalments for future taxes, as was done in a similar case by the State of Tennessee.

The trial justice system he looks upon as costly, inefficient and oppressive, and he promises that he will appoint as trial justices only persons who will know the law and who will use their powers to preserve the rights and protect the interests of all; and thus, he promises, the occasions will be rare when he will be justified in setting aside the judgments of courts and the verdicts of juries.

The passage of a law for the registration of electors is recommended as a matter of obvious justice as well as a mandate of the constitution. The repeal of the law requiring insurance companies doing business in the State to make a deposit of bonds or stocks with the Comptroller General is strongly recommended. He promises that the pardoning power will be no longer abused. He advises that there be no reduction of the sum appropriated for educational purposes, but the General Assembly is invited to see if the want of efficiency on the part of the County School Commissioners cannot be remedied. To these measures of reform Governor Chamberlaine declares himself to be unalterably pledged.

The inaugural is universally recognized as an able and statesmanlike address, and the taxpayers are hopeful that if Governor Chamberlaine's administration will enforce, in good faith, the policy marked out, good government and prosperity will be restored to South Carolina.

NORTH CAROLINA.

Bill for the Adjustment of the Public Debt of the State.

RALEIGH, Dec. 1, 1874.

In the State Senate to-day Mr. Jenkins, of Cleveland, introduced a bill for the adjustment of the public debt of the State, which bill provides for the issuing of new bonds payable at the expiration of thirty years, and bearing six per cent interest, to be exchanged for the old bonds in the following manner:—

The Treasurer shall exchange the new bonds at the rate of twenty-five cents on the dollar for bonds issued since the war, but under acts of the Legislature adopted before the war, shall pay sixteen and two-thirds cents on the dollar for bonds issued during the war for internal improvements; shall pay twelve and a half cents on the dollar for bonds issued for funding the interest on the public debt of the State, under the acts of the Legislature of 1867-'68; shall pay ten cents on the dollar for bonds issued since the war under the ordinance of the Convention and the several acts of the Legislature, not to include the special tax bonds.

The bill was referred and ordered to be printed.

LOUISIANA.

Kellogg Said To Be Making McEnery the Coming Man.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 1, 1874.

Kellogg, who was booked for Washington on Sunday, now announces his determination to remain here. Some of his friends admit that so long as he remains here as Governor there will never be a government capable of administering the law, punishing murder and other crimes and giving the State peace. Conservatives express the belief that in January he will bow to fate and make no serious opposition to a recognition of McEnery as the Governor.

ARKANSAS.

The Clans Concentrating for the Fight Before Congress—Undoubted Assurances Furnished All Parties—A Supporter of Wood for the Speakership.

LITTLE ROCK, Dec. 1, 1874.

Congressman-elect Wilshire, who recently went to Washington in the interests of Governor Garland, arrived here to-day. It is thought his unexpected return is for the purpose of raising funds with which to defend the Garland government before Congress. He is confident that Congress will decide the Garland government legal and will sustain it against either Smith or Brooks. Mr. Joseph Brooks, ex-Chief Justice McClure and Colonel W. S. Oliver left for Washington to-day to look after the Brooks interest in the contest. The officers of the Garland government have been exceedingly active to-day, and it is evident that some important movement is on foot, either for the apprehension of Smith and his Secretary of State or to make matters lively at the national Capitol.

THE STATE HOUSE

is strongly guarded by Garland militia to-night and a sentinel is posted at the entrance to the grounds, who permits no one to pass without the countersign. Republicans are still confident of success and claim to have undoubted assurances from leading republican Congressmen that they will be sustained and either Smith or Brooks placed in the Gubernatorial chair. It is evident that there will be a strong body from Arkansas at Washington this winter.

Congressman-elect W. F. Slemons, of the Second district, will favor Fernando Wood for Speaker of the next house. Gunter, of the Fourth district, is in Washington.

THE OHIO LEGISLATURE.

Opening Session of the General Assembly—Recommendations of Governor Allen in His Message.

COLUMBUS, Dec. 1, 1874.

Both branches of the General Assembly convened at ten A. M. to-day. The Governor in his message calls special attention to the condition of the sinking fund and that clause in the constitution which makes it not only discretionary but imperative upon the General Assembly to provide for the extinction of the public debt, and advises the repeal of the statutes authorizing the temporary transfer of money from one fund to another, and that provision be made for an immediate return to the sinking fund of $600,000 that had been loaned to the common school fund.

On the subject of railroads Governor Allen says that they should not be hampered by vindictive legislation, but should be held strictly amenable to judicious legislation, and closes by recommending that the salaries of public officers be raised and fees cut down.

In the House to-day a resolution was adopted for the appointment of a joint committee to prepare amendments to the constitution. A resolution asking Congress to fix the salary of the President of the United States at $25,000 per annum was tabled.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

Imperialist Negotiations Relative to Formosa.

The Military Positions Maintained Despite the Movement for Peace.

Mutiny and Insurrection at Chinese Centres.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1, 1874.

The steamship Vancouver arrived last night from China and Japan. The dates from China are Hong Kong October 28 and Shanghai October 22.

CHINESE ASSENT TO THE JAPANESE FORMOSA POLICY—A PORTION OF THE INDEMNITY PAID.

The Chinese have agreed to everything required by Japan. They recognize and admit the justice of the Japanese course, and have paid a portion of the indemnity (500 taels), the balance to be paid before the end of the month. They agree to keep the Formosa savages under control for the future if the Japanese will retire from the island.

There is great satisfaction in Japan over this result, but so little has the government been influenced by pecuniary motives that it has already been determined to return a part, if not the whole, of the indemnity they required. It is only as an unmistakable acknowledgment of the propriety of their action they received the money, and, that having been vindicated, they are disinclined to keep it. Renewed efforts were made to induce the Chinese to submit their quarrel with Japan to diplomatic arbitration, but the Pekin government were entirely adverse to such proposals.

THE CHINESE ENCAMPMENT MAINTAINED IN FORMOSA.

Twelve thousand Chinese troops are now in Formosa, stationed about sixty miles from the Japanese camp. The British residents in Chefoo have petitioned the Consul to secure the presence of a ship-of-war at that port during the winter. They fear a rising of the natives against foreigners in case of war.

INDUSTRIAL ENTERPRISE IN HIGH QUARTERS.

The Chinese Viceroy and Commander-in-Chief of Liang-Choo is reported to have decided upon working important coal and iron mines at Pung Chang, also in Western Chihli, hitherto undeveloped, and an English agent has been commissioned to purchase the necessary machinery. This step, hitherto opposed by the government, is regarded by the war party as indicative of a desire to increase the national resources for military purposes.

POLICE IN MUTINY IN MACAO.

A mutiny had broken out at Macao among the armed police, and attacks were threatened upon the government houses. It is believed the disaffected belong to the class formerly engaged in "coolie catching," and who are irritated against the Governor and his Secretary, Mesnier, for their share in the work of suppressing the coolie trade. These malcontents were, until recently, destitute, and were enrolled in the police out of charity. Their design is said to have been to pillage the Chinese quarters. The danger is not yet quite over.

INSURRECTION IN AN IMPORTANT CITY.

Insurrectionary demonstrations had occurred in the neighborhood of Shang-Sha-Foo, a city in the south of the province of Fo-Kien, and the Viceroy of Fo-Kien left Foo-Choo October 5 to investigate the matter.

CHINESE WORKS OF DEFENCE.

The only new preparations for land defence made by the Chinese are on the Chusan Islands, commanding the approach of Shanghai. Here, at Wosung and at Shanghai, a few earthworks have been commenced, but left unfinished, ostensibly for want of funds.

FATAL CASUALTIES AT SEA.

The Chinese transport Tayak, engaged in carrying troops to Formosa, foundered at Ta-wang-foo, in the typhoon of September 29, and sixteen lives were lost. Other transports, scattered by the same storm, have not been heard from.

OFFICIAL CHANGES IN HIGH POSITIONS.

It is reported that the celebrated Lihung-Chung, Viceroy and General of the Army of Chihli, will be sent to Canton to take the office of Viceroy of Lwan-tung and Kwang-si. No reasons are announced for the proposed change, which cannot be carried out until after the Japanese crisis has passed. Meanwhile Ying Han, recently Governor of the Province of An Aby, has been temporarily appointed to the post.

SOCIAL REFORM.

The subject of supplying Chinese females for purposes of prostitution for San Francisco attracts much attention in Hong Kong, and measures are under consideration for preventing further departures from that port. Several cases of girls seeking release have recently been before the courts.

SHANGHAI A PORT OF REGISTRY.

By a British order in council Shanghai is now a port of registry.

The News from Japan.

YOKOHAMA, Japan, Nov. 9, 1874.

A heavy typhoon occurred at Yezo October 12. Many sea coast villages were greatly injured and one was entirely destroyed. Thirty-three junks were wrecked and 200 lives were lost.

CONDITION OF THE TROOPS IN FORMOSA.

The condition of the troops in Southern Formosa is now healthful, the dangerous season having passed. Nearly 1,000 sick were brought back to Nagasaki early in October, their places having been supplied from the barracks at that port. The whole Japanese force now in Formosa is about 4,000 men. The main bodies are held in reserve at or near Nagasaki, to which additions are continually sent. At present, however, there is no more evidence than heretofore of imminent hostilities.

Preparations are unabated and will so continue until the question is decided one way or the other.

TREASURY RETRENCHMENT AND PATRIOTIC ACTION.

The public expenses are being reduced in various ways. The Mikado and members of the imperial family have renounced part of their incomes. Numerous employés have requested a reduction of their salaries, and even scholars in the national academies have petitioned that the amount allowed for their education be temporarily reduced.

Enthusiasm and offers of personal sacrifices are universal, and volunteers are being enrolled throughout the empire.

THE BRITISH REMOVED FROM MANAGEMENT OF THE MINT.

There is much discussion concerning the displacement of the director and English employés of the mint at Osaka. The British community and newspapers of Yokohama complain bitterly, as if actual wrong had been done them, and proclaim that the national coinage will become valueless with the mint taken away from British management. The matter is a serious one for the Japanese government, and is totally misrepresented here. Some time since a contract was made with the Oriental Bank Corporation to superintend the establishment of a mint among other public works. This contract expires early in 1875, but the corporation has claimed the right to make future engagements, officials in the mint and elsewhere. The government denies this finding, or has already placed itself far too unreservedly in the hands of the Oriental Bank Corporation, and announced that engagements heretofore made by that body must terminate with the expiration of the general contract next February, so far as is practicable. There is no intention of removing foreign assistants from the mint, but a positive determination to get rid of the oppressive interference of the bank in government affairs. The bank naturally is unwilling to surrender its valuable privileges, and its pretensions are strongly supported by British influences, but the government is quite decided.

SILK WORMS' EGGS TRADE.

The superfluous supply of silk worm eggs has been reduced by burning large numbers of cartoons, and sales are now resumed in Yokohama at extremely low rates.

POSTAL.

The Japanese Post Office Department has decreed a fine of $150 for wrongfully opening any letters.

AMERICAN DIPLOMACY.

The United States Minister's relations with the Japanese government are perfectly harmonious, but his representations in regard to the military registration of the servants in his service and the employment of Mr. Wasson have been passed unheeded.

THE RIGHTS OF FOREIGN EMPLOYEES.

The British Minister has notified the English employed in the naval service of Japan that in case of war they must resign their positions. They, in return, have notified the government that, in such an event, they will claim payment for the unexpired balance of their contracts, which demand will be rejected as preposterous.

THE POWER NEXT TO THE THRONE.

The impression appears to prevail in American journals that Iwakura especially directs the government in the present crisis. This is a mistake. There are three ministerial offices near the throne, only the third of which in rank is held by Iwakura. When he visited America and Europe the second was vacant, but this has since been filled by the appointment of Shimmarazu Saburo. The first is occupied by Sangio. Iwakura in fact takes comparatively little part in war discussions.

DELAY.

It is now doubted whether the Japanese Post Office can be got ready for the commencement of the new postal system by the 1st of January next.

FOREIGN SOLDIERS LIKELY TO BE REMOVED.

It is semi-officially announced that the French and English troops stationed at Yokohama will be sent home before the end of the year.

FETES AT COURT.

The Mikado's birthday was celebrated November 3 with military reviews, State receptions and public festivals of all kinds. The foreign Diplomatic Corps dined, by invitation, at the Imperial Guest House in Yeddo.

FORTIFICATION.

The Japanese are rapidly preparing to erect fortifications on all important points along the coast.

A TERRIBLE DISASTER.

The boiler of a steamer on Lake Biwi exploded, and the passengers and crew, numbering 100, are reported to have been either killed by the explosion or drowned.

USEFUL WORK BY THE NAVY DEPARTMENT.

Orders have been issued by the Navy Department offering rewards for the discovery by Japanese ships of unknown rocks and shoals in Eastern waters.

CHEAP TRANSPORTATION.

Meeting of the Convention at Richmond—Welcome of the Delegates by the Mayor—Report on Transportation—Appointment of Committees.

RICHMOND, Va., Dec. 1, 1874.

The American Cheap Transportation Convention met here at ten o'clock this morning, President Josiah Quincy, of Massachusetts, in the chair. Hon. A. M. A committee on credentials was appointed, and the Convention took a recess until three o'clock P. M.

Afternoon Session.

The Convention reassembled at three o'clock. Mr. John F. Henry, of New York, presented the report of the credentials committee, showing that about 100 delegates were present. Mr. F. B. Thurber, of New York, read an able report on transportation, in which he sketched the history of railroads, discussed their relations to the people, showed the evils of their construction and pointed out the remedies which were in general railroad laws and the control of through lines by the general government. He discussed the relative merits of canals and trans-continental railroads, and argued in favor of the latter. The report was referred to a committee of one from each State represented, to be appointed by the various delegations. A similar committee on resolutions was also ordered. A recess was then taken till eight o'clock P. M.

Evening Session.

JAY COOKE & COMPANY IN BANKRUPTCY.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 1, 1874.

The first meeting of the creditors of Jay Cooke & Company was held to-day, when the report of the trustees was submitted. In regard to a dividend the report says:—

The committee have deemed it proper to revoke the order for a dividend and distribution made on the 8th of May. Since that date the opinion of the Court has been given upon the proper construction of the Forty-third section of the Bankrupt Act, and the committee have thought it best to hold a meeting on the 1st day of December, as set out in the notice issued on the 6th day of November, for the purpose of considering the subject of dividend and distribution, with other matters, as mentioned in that notice. This appeared to the committee to be the more appropriate method of discharging their duties in this regard. It should be understood that the cash account filed by the trustee does not distinguish items derived from the individual estates of bankrupts from those derived from partnership property. The trustee has, however, made a careful analysis for the balance of $750,550 38, shown to be in his hands from these sources respectively, and the results in the aggregate show that the sum of $491,915 04 is all that is strictly applicable, at the present stage of the proceedings, for a cash dividend to the creditors. The precise amount of claims against the estate has not yet been definitely ascertained, and cannot be until the determination of the exceptions that have been taken to several of the larger claims.

A conversation ensued, during which Mr. Bullitt said if the claims preferred against individual members of the firm are proven there will hardly be anything left for the creditors of the firm. During the conference between the committee and the creditors the best of order prevailed, and at its close the majority of those present retired apparently satisfied, for the time being, with the explanation made to them. These meetings will be held daily until the object thereof is accomplished.

OBITUARY.

General Robert O. Tyler, United States Army.

A telegram from Boston, under date of the 1st inst., reports as follows:—This afternoon General Robert O. In 1869 he was Chief Quartermaster of the Army of the South. He entered the service as Second Lieutenant, by brevet, of the Second regiment of artillery, on the 1st of July, 1853. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL Activity in the Stock Market.

GOLD A TRIFLE LOWER.

Money Stronger and in Good Demand.

GOVERNMENT BONDS FIRM.

WALL STREET, TUESDAY, Dec. 1—6 P. M.

The stock market to-day continued to exhibit much of the strength it acquired yesterday, a new feature, however, being a somewhat sharp speculation in Erie. The price opened in London at 24¾, and closed at 25 and 25¼. In New York the opening figure was 28, which was succeeded by fluctuations, ranging from ⅛ to ⅝ per cent, the closing price being 28¼. Another stock that attracted much interest was Northwest common, the speculation in it being undiminished, and the prices ranging from 46⅜ to 47⅛, with a close at 46⅝. Lake Shore sold at 80¾ a 81⅛ a 81⅛, ending at 81⅛. Western Union at 81¾ a 82⅝, closing at 81⅞. Wabash at 31¾ a 32¼, closing at 32. New York Central at 102 a 101⅝ a 101⅞; Rock Island at 101¾ a 102¼ a 102. Pacific Mail opened at 44⅝, advanced to 45⅝, receded to 44½ and closed at 45⅛. Ohio and Mississippi opened at 33, receded to 32⅞, advanced to 33⅜ and closed firm at 33¼. St. Paul ranged from 40⅛ to 39¾, closing at 39⅞. C., C. & I. C. improved to 10⅛, closing at 10⅜. Panama was steady at 116. Union Pacific sold at 36⅝ a 36⅜ a 36¼. It will be observed from the foregoing figures that prices were generally lower at the close, and attending them was some feverishness, owing to the considerable selling movement, which was developed by large holders, and regarded as indicative of an early reaction. The decline at the close ranged from ⅛ to ⅝ per cent.

GAINS AND LOSSES

The gains and losses, compared with the closing prices yesterday, are as follows:—

GAINS—C., C. and I. C., ⅜ per cent; Hannibal and St. Joseph, 1; Lake Shore, ½; Northwest, ⅜; Ohio and Mississippi, ⅜; Pacific Mail, ¼; Rock Island, ⅜; Union Pacific, 1; Western Union, ¼.

THE MONEY MARKET.

Money to-day, used in call loans, rated at 3 and 3½ per cent, until near the close, when it stiffened to 5, and, in exceptional instances, to 6 per cent. The advance gave rise to some uneasiness with reference to the future of the stock market. Prime commercial paper changed hands at 5 and 7 per cent, and the lower grades at from 7 to 10, according to rank. Foreign exchange was dull throughout the day and closed weak at 4.84¾ a 4.85 for prime bankers' sixty day sterling, and 4.89½ a 4.90 for demand. Both bankers and importers are buying sterling sparingly.

THE UNITED STATES TREASURY.

The receipts from customs to-day were $377,000; from internal revenue, $160,000; the national bank notes received for redemption amounted to $310,000; the Assistant Treasurer paid out $91,000 on account of interest and $5,000 in redemption of five-twenty bonds. RAILROAD BONDS.

Railroad bonds were strong in the late afternoon dealings. A heavy business was done in Union Pacific firsts and sinking funds, the former selling at 92¾ and the latter at 76¼ a 76⅛. New York Central sixes of 1883 brought 98, Michigan Southern seconds, 100; Morris and Essex sevens, of 1871, 99; Fort Wayne firsts, 112, and Galena and Chicago firsts, 104. Central Pacific bonds closed at 96⅛ a 96⅜ and Union Pacifics 92¾ a 92⅞ for firsts, 88¼ a 88⅜ for land grants and 76⅛ a 76⅜ for sinking funds.

SOUTHERN BONDS

were in only moderate request and the sales at the board were confined to Missouri long bonds, which found market at 98. The prices bid for other lines remain unchanged.

GOVERNMENT BONDS.

Government bonds continue to attract the attention of investors at the recently advanced prices, and it is said that foreign bankers are again moderate purchasers for foreign account. The banks and other financial institutions are, however, doubtless the best customers for this class of securities, and it is their demand that has so well maintained the price. The rates at the close were firm, as follows:—United States currency sixes, 116⅛ a 116½; do. do., 1881, registered, 116 a 116¼; do. do., do., 120¼ a 120½; do. do., five-twenties, 1862, registered, 112¾ a 113; do. do., do., coupon, 112¾ a 113; do. do., 1864, registered, 114⅛ a 114¼; do. do., do., 114⅛ a 114⅜; do. do., 1865, registered, 115⅝ a 116; do. do., do., coupon, 116¾ a 117; do. do., do., new, registered, 115⅝ a 115⅞; do. do., do., coupon, 118⅝ a 119⅛; do. do., 1867, registered, 119⅞ a 120⅛; do. do., do., coupon, 115⅝ a 116¼; do. do., 1868, registered, 119¾ a 120; do. do., do., coupon, 113¾ a 113⅝; do., ten-forties, registered, 114⅛ a 114⅜; do. do., coupon, 114⅛ a 114¼; do. fives, 1881, registered, 112⅞ a 113⅛; do. do., do., coupon, 112⅞ a 113⅛.

THE FOREIGN MARKET.

London advices report the market for American securities and consols steady. The following are the late figures:—Consols for money, 93 1-16 a 93⅛; do. account, 92 a 92⅛, ex interest; 1865 bonds, old, 106¼; 1867 bonds, 109⅛ a 109⅜; ten-forty bonds, 104¼ a 104½; new fives, 103¼; Erie, 25 a 25¼. The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 5⅜ per cent, which is ⅝ per cent below the Bank of England rate. Two thousand pounds bullion were withdrawn to-day. Rentes at Paris, 62f. 15c.

PRODUCE EXPORTS.

The total exports of produce from this port for the week ending to-day amounted to $5,068,901, mixed values, which is an increase from last week of $1,077,844. The exports for the corresponding week of last year were $5,403,959, and for 1872 $5,799,772. The total exports since January 1 this year are $265,217,046, against $277,279,045 last year and $217,659,065 in 1868.

COMMERCIAL REPORT.

Cotton Dull—Flour Steady—Wheat Lower—Corn Firmer—Oats Strong—Barley Dull—Pork and Lard Easier—Groceries Dull—Freights Firmer—Petroleum Easier—Naval Stores Barely Steady—Metals Dull—East India Goods Dull—Wool Firm—Whiskey Easier.

TUESDAY, Dec. 1—6 P. M.

The markets were generally dull and irregular, being affected in some instances by the recession of the gold premium, and in others by the extreme rates of freight. On 'Change flour was steady. Wheat was dull and lower. The lower ruling of the gold premium and the extreme rates of freights per ocean steamers both tended to depress the market, which at the close was nominal. Corn was in demand and strong, new being higher. Oats were strong. Barley dull. Whiskey easier. Pork and lard were unsettled by the advices from the West and prices were lower. Freights and charters were higher, both vessels and room being scarce. Cotton was lower both for "spot" and "futures." Groceries were dull, but values quoted nominally unchanged. Metals were dull. Petroleum was dull and easier for refined but slightly better for crude. Naval stores were in moderate demand and barely steady in value. Wool met with a fair trade and the market ruled firm.

ASHES.—Receipts for past three days, 42 packages. There was no change in the market. The demand for pots was moderate at 6½c. per lb., while pearls remained nominal at about 9c.

BUILDING MATERIALS.—The demand for brick has been fair, and, with lighter supplies as the season advances, holders are very firm in their views. Cement was without change in value and very firm. Quoted at $1 30 for Rosendale and $4 25 a $4 50 for Porland and Roman. Lime was moderately sought after and steady in value. Quoted at $1 10 a $1 35 for Rockland common and $4 25 a $4 50 for Roman and Portland. Lath met with a fair demand and were quoted steady at $1 60 for Eastern.

BEESWAX.—We have still to report a light trade, parties purchasing only in a small way. Prices quoted steady at from 30c. a 31c. per lb. for yellow Western and Southern.

BROOM CORN.—There has been no essential change in values and the demand continued light. We append former quotations as follows:—New green hurl, 8c. a 8½c.; medium green, 7c. a 8c.; short green brush, 8c. a 8½c.; red tipped and red, 5c. a 6c.

BEANS AND PEAS.—The receipts during the past few days have been less liberal, and with a better inquiry the market appeared to be a trifle steadier. COTTON.—The movement in spot cotton was still held in abeyance by depressing advices from Liverpool, which also brought reduced limits to exporters, thus putting a quietus upon the demand from this source, as holders refused to make the material concessions necessary to meet their contracted views. The inquiry from spinners was generally for unimportant lots, as the exigencies of the moment required, and, while holders were not pressing cotton on the market, as compared with the light demand the offerings were free, and buyers had the advantage in nearly every case where sales were made, some trades being at ⅛c. decline. The market closed heavy. "Futures" were governed again unfavorably by worse advices from the other side, and the best transactions were made early in the day. Moreover, the receipts at the ports continued full, and with lower gold the bulls were unable to resist the downward tendency of the market, and it was quite generally understood that considerable "long cotton" was sold during the day, mostly in the afternoon, when short notices were offered at 14⅝c., without takers. The market recovered to a steady feeling toward the close, however, with the official qualification of the market as steady at a decline of 1-16c. a ⅛c. To-day for the first a committee under appointment from the Board of Managers met in session and decided as to the tone of the market at the close for "futures" and named the following as the final quotations of the day:—December, 14 9-16c. a 14 19-32c.; January, 14 27-32c.; February, 15 3-16c.; March, 15 17-32c.; April, 15 13-16c.; May, 16c. a 16 1-16c.; June 16 11-32c. a 16⅜c., and July, 16 15-32c. a 16 11-16c. The committee appointed for this purpose consists of three members of the Exchange, one member to retire every month. The present committee consists of Richard Watts, Walter T. Miller and R. Atkinson. Following are the quotations of short cotton, based on American standard of classification:—

FIRE IN SOUTH BROOKLYN.

Shortly before three o'clock yesterday afternoon an alarm of fire was sounded by the City Hall bell, and the firemen, lending a prompt response, repaired to the scene of action, which proved to be a four story brown stone house, No. 65 First place, near Clinton street, South Brooklyn. The fire, which originated on the fourth story, was caused by children playing with matches and setting fire to a straw bed. The building is owned by Mr. John P. Lord, who occupied the premises. The damage to the building was $3,000. The loss on furniture, damaged chiefly by water, amounted to $5,000. The property is covered by a policy in the Lancaster Insurance Company for $12,000.

THE COURTS.

Tribulations of the Erie Railway Company.

A Modified Injunction Granted by Judge Westbrook.

AFFIDAVIT OF PRESIDENT JEWETT.

Trial of Coroner Croker Postponed to Monday.

THE BEECHER-TILTON CASE AT ALBANY.

The Admiralty calendar will not be called in the United States District Court until the 8th inst.

Yesterday in the United States Commissioner's office, a man named Gonzalez Sardo was charged before Commissioner Shields with manufacturing cigars and cigarettes, at No. 104 Sixth avenue, without paying the special tax required by law. He demanded an examination, which was set down for to-day, and, in default of $1,000 bail, was committed to the custody of the Marshal.

Judge Westbrook, in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday took the papers on which is based an application for the appointment of Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment of lots required in Cherry street for the Brooklyn Bridge.

Yesterday, in the United States District Court, before Judge Blatchford, the following articles were condemned by default:—One trunk, from the steamer Adriatic; 1 silk cloak, 3 silk costumes, 4 new dresses, 1 camel's hair scarf, 5 dozen gloves, 1 bonnet, 2 bundles of artificial flowers, 1 lady's fur hat, 1 shawl, 1 wool costume, 3½ dozen ladies' gloves and 1 woollen shawl.

The suit of Theodosius Strong against the City, to recover the value of building materials furnished to different departments of the city, and which has been a long time pending in the courts, finally came to trial yesterday, before Judge Brady, holding Supreme Circuit, Part 2. It resulted in a verdict of $9,002 50 for the plaintiff.

There was a lengthy argument yesterday before Judge Donohue, in Supreme Court, Chambers, on the application for a stay in the case of Sigismund Schwab, recently convicted in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of selling liquor without a license, and also for his admission to bail. Messrs. A. Oakey Hall and John McKeon, in pressing the application, presented substantially the same arguments as used by them in the motion for arrest of judgment before Judge Barrett. In his reply Assistant District Attorney Rollins also followed the same line of argument as in the motion referred to.

THE ERIE RAILWAY INJUNCTION.

Granting injunctions one day in Erie Railway suits and dissolving them next day were among the prominent features characterising Erie Railway litigations under the old régime when their suits so greatly monopolized the attention of the courts. Almost as speedy a revival, or rather modification, reminding one of those old times, though here, happily, the comparison ends, has been made in the case of the suit brought by John C. Angell against the Erie Railway Company, directing the latter to show cause why a receiver should not be appointed to take charge of the certificates, bonds and stock of the company. On Monday Judge Westbrook, of the Supreme Court, granted an injunction restraining the company till the question of this receivership was settled from selling or using such securities or from the payment of certain bonds or the interest on them. The same Judge yesterday modified this injunction. As a basis of application for such modification the following affidavits were laid before him, which explain themselves:—

AFFIDAVIT OF PRESIDENT JEWETT.

City and County of New York, ss.—Hugh J. Jewett, being duly sworn, deposes and says that he is President of the defendant company, the Erie Railway Company, and has been such President since July, 1874; that the deponent has not been served with the temporary injunction herein granted by His Honor Mr. Justice Westbrook, on the 30th day of November, 1874, but has notice of the same through Mr. Butler Duncan, one of the directors of the said company, who was served with the same on the said 30th inst. at about half-past six in the evening; that some two weeks since deponent became aware of rumors circulating in London, which arrived here from thence, that an injunction was to be applied for, but supposed such rumors to have been put in circulation for the purpose of aiding the speculations of certain persons in the stock of the Erie Railway Company.

The deponent further says that he is informed and believes that the said injunction was applied for on the 30th inst. as aforesaid, for the sole purpose, and no other, of injuring the credit and depressing the stock of the said company by compelling, by means thereof, the said company to make default in the payment due today of interest on certain bonds of the company heretofore lawfully issued and on which interest is payable today in London, known as second consolidated mortgage bonds; also certain bonds heretofore lawfully issued under what is known as a fifth mortgage of the said road. This deponent distinctly alleges and charges from facts within his personal knowledge, as well as on information and belief, that this act was not sought in good faith: that the said plaintiff has no interest whatever in the said Erie Railway Company or the subject matter of this action; that he is a mere agent and instrument of the said speculators: that the said injunction was applied for, obtained and served in the manner aforesaid, not for the benefit or protection of the Erie Railway Company, but solely to promote the fraudulent objects and purposes for which the said action was brought, and to depress the stock of the company for the advantage of the said speculators and for the sole purpose of deranging the financial affairs of the company; and that the said Judge who granted the same was grossly deceived and imposed upon by false, fraudulent and deceitful representations as to the objects and purposes of the said injunction; that the pendency thereof even for a few hours, in the present situation of the company, is greatly to the prejudice and damage of the company, and may result in irreparable damage.

Deponent further says that the affairs of the said company are being administered by himself and his Board of Directors for the best advantage of the company, and strictly according to law as they are advised. Deponent denies each and every allegation of fraud, illegality or misconduct in the said complaint alleged or in the affidavits made and served in the premises. Deponent says that at this present, and in view of the great necessity of obtaining immediately a dissolution of the said injunction, he has not time to state more at length and in detail the facts in the premises.

H. J. JEWETT.

Sworn to before me, this 1st day of December, 1874—W. B. COLEMAN, Notary Public.

AFFIDAVIT OF WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN.

William Butler Duncan, being duly sworn, says:—I have read the foregoing affidavit of Mr. Jewett and know the contents thereof, and I believe the same to be true. This belief is founded partly on personal knowledge and partly on information and belief. I do know that the affairs of the Erie Railway Company are being administered to the best advantage of the company and according to law, and that the said injunction, if not at once dissolved, will result in the great damage and perhaps irreparable damage of the said company.

WILLIAM BUTLER DUNCAN.

Sworn to before me, this 1st day of December, 1874—W. B. COLEMAN, Notary Public.

JUDGE WESTBROOK'S MODIFICATION.

Having read the above affidavits Judge Westbrook speedily granted the following modification of his previous injunction:—

Upon reading the affidavits of Hugh J. Jewett and William Butler Duncan, and on motion of Messrs. Macfarland & Shipman, of counsel for the Erie Railway Company, and sufficient grounds appearing therefor, so much of the injunction order granted by me on the 30th day of November, 1874, as prevents the said defendants, the Erie Railway Company, or any of its officers or financial agents from paying interest moneys on any of its bonds due this day, or discharging any of its pecuniary obligations, is hereby revoked and set aside.

J. R. WESTBROOK, Justice Supreme Court.

DECEMBER 1, 1874.

NEXT STEP IN THE PROGRAMME.

Of course, the above modification is no settlement of the question as to the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the stocks, securities and bonds referred to in the original application, full details of which were given in yesterday's HERALD. This matter will come up for argument in Supreme Court, Chambers, this morning.

CORONER CROKER'S TRIAL POSTPONED.

In the expectation that the trial of Coroner Croker would commence yesterday in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Barrett, there was a large crowd in attendance. The defendant was not present, though his counsel put in a prompt appearance; but the absence of the prisoner showed conclusively, despite the protestations of his counsel to the contrary, that the programme of delaying the trial had been previously arranged. Its adjournment was of course a disappointment to the crowd.

Directly after Judge Barrett took his seat on the bench Mr. Phelps, District Attorney, stated that it was understood that he would move the case of Coroner Croker for trial to-day. He fully intended to do so, but, in view of the public calamity which had startled the city, he thought it necessary that the Court should take some action. As the funeral takes place on Friday, it would not be proper that the Court should then be in session. Apart from that, an important writ of habeas corpus was to be argued to-morrow and would necessarily break in on the trial of this cause. He thought it would be a hardship to the prisoner and the jurors that the case should be broken in on and under the circumstances it was better to postpone the case until they could commence and go right through with it. He, therefore, moved that the case go over until Monday, on which morning he intended to move the trial.

Mr. Croker's counsel opposed the motion. He was ready, as he was on Monday, to join in a tribute of respect to the Mayor, but it was unwise and would be unjust to the prisoner to postpone the trial. They might have interruptions, but they were likely to break in at any time. He thought it was the bounden duty of the prosecution to give a speedy trial, and he asked the Court to enforce its order and hold the District Attorney to his undertaking to proceed. The Court could easily adjourn for half a day to pay its tribute of respect to the memory of the Chief Magistrate.

Judge Barrett said the District Attorney had given what appeared to him very proper reasons for postponing the trial. The Court had not ordered the case for trial peremptorily, but had set it down for to-day, and the District Attorney had consented to try it.

Mr. Clinton then asked that the case be set down peremptorily for some day and the order entered on the minutes.

Mr. Phelps remarked that never was more promptitude shown in a capital case than in this, and it was his intention to move the case for trial on Monday.

Counsel again pressed for a peremptory order, but the Court simply ordered that the case be taken up on Monday.

BUSINESS IN THE OTHER COURTS.

SUPREME COURT—CIRCUIT—PART 3.

Responsibility in Buying Stolen Bonds.

Before Judge Van Vorst.

The suit of the Dutchess County Mutual Fire Insurance Company vs. Albert E. Hatchfield and others, brokers and bankers, of this city, brought to recover the value of $5,000 worth of Poughkeepsie city bonds, stolen from the company, and which has been tried once before, was retried yesterday. The same defence was put in as at the previous trial, the purchase of the bonds in good faith and with no knowledge of their having been stolen. It was shown for the plaintiffs that printed notices, giving the number of each stolen bond, were sent to all the brokers and bankers of this city directly after the robbery, with a caution against negotiating them. A verdict was given for the full amount claimed.

COMMON PLEAS—EQUITY TERM.

A Trustee Nolens Volens.

Before Judge Larremore.

In May last two lots, with buildings on them, in Forty-second street, belonging to Lewis F. Vandeweide, were advertised for sale at auction under foreclosure of mortgage. Mr. Vandeweide arranged with Lawrence J. Callanan to bid for him at the auction and to hold the property for thirty days, agreeing to pay him $1,000 more than he paid. Callanan purchased the property for $15,000 and then refused to convey it back for less than $3,000 over the purchase price. Mr. Vandeweide immediately commenced an action in this Court to compel him to convey the property. The defence made by Mr. J. H. Harrison, the defendant's counsel, was that the statute of frauds made a verbal agreement like the one between the plaintiff and defendant void. D. M. Porter, for the plaintiff, claimed that by so doing the defendant would make the statute of frauds the instrument of fraud. This he urged, would interfere to prevent and would deem the defendant a trustee for the plaintiff, compelling him to buy the property back. He cited the two cases Ryan vs. Vox, 34 N. Y., 307, and Levy vs. Brush, 45 N. Y., 598, in support of this doctrine. Judge Lawrence yesterday gave his decision in favor of the plaintiff, and ordered the property to be conveyed to him.

COURT OF GENERAL SESSIONS.

Felonious Assault Upon an Italian.

Before Judge Sutherland.

The principal part of yesterday's session was spent in trying an indictment against a young man named Patrick Dobbin, charged with stabbing Antonio Costa, a stevedore, on the 19th of July, in the yard of No. 74 Oliver street. The complainant swore that Dobbin stabbed him in the thigh, the abdomen and the shoulder, inflicting dangerous wounds. The prisoner and a female witness testified that Costa struck him and had him up against the fence, and that he used a small pocket knife in self-defence, which Costa gave him in the afternoon. This case was tried in the September term and the jury disagreed. The jury, however, this time rendered a verdict of guilty of an assault with intent to do bodily harm. His Honor sentenced Dobbin to the State Prison for three years.

An Assault.

James Coyle, who was charged with pointing a pistol at Henry Gleistein on the 10th of November, pleaded guilty to a simple assault. He was sent to the Penitentiary for five months.

An Acquittal.

Lottie M. Fetridge was tried upon an indictment charging her with assaulting Ellen Murray on the 21st of November and stealing a $5 bill from her. The evidence showed that there was a conspiracy against her by the complainant's friends, and the jury, without leaving their seats, rendered a verdict of not guilty.

TOMBS POLICE COURT.

A Probable Murder.

Before Judge Kasmire.

The night before last Antonio Golla, Arsencio Carpotale, Giuseppe Chapuano, Maicke Giasis, Lamna Chapman and Antonio Romane were all sitting at a table in a saloon in the Fourteenth precinct talking of something, but what the topic was does not appear. However, the company became very excited, and Golla and Carpotale became engaged in a broil, during which the former stabbed the latter with a penknife. Golla was locked up to await the injuries of Carpotale, and the rest of the company were sent to the House of Detention as witnesses.

Transient Boarders.

Mr. Beswick keeps a boarding house at No. 216 Barrow street, Jersey City, and at that place has had, until lately, Henry Petty and Louis Whittocker stopping with him. On Sunday night, Louis and Henry left very unceremoniously and took $64 with them. Yesterday they were arrested by Officer Kelly, of the Fourteenth precinct, and when brought to Court the Judge locked them up to await trial for grand larceny.

ESSEX MARKET POLICE COURT.

Raid on a Concert Saloon.

Before Judge Kilbreth.

About one o'clock yesterday morning Sergeant Vredenburg, of the Tenth precinct, with a squad of men, made a raid on the concert saloon in the Bowery, alleged to be owned and managed by John and Fanny Monsees. Mr. and Mrs. Monsees were captured, as also the barkeeper, Henry Fischer and three girls, named Florence Leonard, Ida Taylor and Alice France. All the parties arrested were arraigned before Judge Kilbreth yesterday. John and Fanny Monsees were held in $1,000 bail to answer at General Sessions. The others were discharged, with a reprimand.

FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET POLICE COURT.

A Bad Son.

Before Judge Morgan.

On the 25th of April last a robbery of the residence of Mr. Joseph H. Edwards, No. 223 West Fifty-third street, was effected. The property stolen consisted of a gold watch and chain, valued at $130, and some silverware. The thieves made their escape, but one of them, Frederick Kearney, was subsequently arrested and held for trial. On Monday evening Officer Beck, of the Twenty-second precinct, received information that Mr. Edwards' son Charles was the other thief, and he arrested him. The prisoner gave up two pawn tickets representing the watch and chain, and they will probably be recovered. On being arraigned in Court the accused, who is a young man of intelligence and respectable appearance, was committed for trial.

Attempt to Rob a Pedler.

While an Italian pedler named Salea Selabaker was passing down Eighth avenue on Monday afternoon he was attacked by two men, who attempted to rob him of his watch and goods. They failed to take the watch, but succeeded, after knocking down the poor pedler, in making off with $26 worth of ribbons and laces. Henry Opperman, one of the thieves, was arrested while running away by Officer Cottrell, of the Twenty-second precinct. Opperman is a large, strong man, and a pair of handcuffs had to be put on him to keep him quiet. This precaution did not, however avail, for while on his way to the Court he threw the officer under a Seventh avenue car and made his escape. He was captured during the night in a house in West Fifty-eighth street, and yesterday he was brought to Court. He was committed in default of $1,500 to answer.

The Horse Poisoning Case.

The examination in this case came up again yesterday, and, at its conclusion, Meyer Goodman, one of the defendants, was discharged, while the Court took the papers in the case and reserved his decision in regard to the other prisoner, Benjamin Fultz.

The Attempted Murder of William Larkin.

Officer Bolster, of the Eighteenth precinct, preferred a complaint of felonious assault against John J. Doran, who, as published in yesterday's HERALD, attempted to take the life of his brother-in-law, William Larkin, by cutting his chest with a razor. Larkin is now in Bellevue Hospital, and the attending physician there certifies that it is impossible for him as yet to state definitely whether his patient is out of danger or not. Doran was committed to await the result of Larkin's injury, and says that he acted only in self-defence.

BEECHER—TILTON.

The Application for a Bill of Particulars Before the Court of Appeals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 1, 1874.

In the Court of Appeals this morning William M. Evarts, counsel for Henry Ward Beecher, under the call for motions, stated that he had a motion to make in the case of Theodore Tilton, respondent, vs. Henry Ward Beecher, which was an appeal from an order of the General Term of the City Court of Brooklyn, affirming by an equally divided bench an order denying the defendant's application for a bill of particulars. He then proceeded to state and argue his points, which are fourteen in number—some of them elaborately subdivided—and a lengthy appendix.

THE APPELLANT'S CLAIM:—

First—That the order of the General Term is appealable, because expressly based upon alleged want of power in the Court to grant the defendant's motion for a bill of particulars.

Second—That at common law the Court has power to order a bill of particulars in any action, without regard to its nature, subject or form.

Third—That the Code of Procedure does not diminish the power which the Court had, at common law, to order a bill of particulars, but rather enlarges that power.

Fourth—That bills of particulars have been repeatedly ordered in actions of tort, in the courts of this and other States.

Fifth—Further elaboration of the last point.

Sixth—Although there is no direct precedent reported in this State of an order for a bill of particulars in an action for criminal conversation or for divorce, yet there are express precedents in England, and in sundry States of this Union, where the common law prevails; and there are plain indications in the decisions of our own courts that it is the policy of the law, here as elsewhere, to give the defendants in such actions the benefit of precision and particularity in the charges brought against them.

Seventh—This is pre-eminently a case in which the defendant is entitled to particulars of the charges to be brought against him, by reason of the danger of surprise at the trial, or mistake or false swearing by the witnesses.

Eighth—It cannot be objected that the matters of which particulars are sought are more within the defendant's knowledge than in the plaintiff's. (1) The plaintiff has full knowledge of these particulars, and has boastingly published to the world his possession of that knowledge. (2) The very innocence of the defendant makes the want of particulars a trap for him.

Ninth—It may be objected that the defendant should go to trial and rely on his right to object to any evidence of acts not specifically stated with times and places in the complaint. Probably such an objection might be held good on the trial, but the defendant ought not to be required to take that risk.

Tenth—The defendant was right in applying for a bill of particulars, instead of moving to make the complaint more definite and certain. The latter proceeding would not have been an appropriate or efficient remedy.

Eleventh—The application was not made out of season, and was not and could not be denied on that ground.

Twelfth—The opinion of the learned Judge, at Special Term, was based on misapprehension, at least so far as regards that part of it which deals with the application for particulars as to the times at which the plaintiff intends to prove that the alleged wrongful acts took place.

Thirteenth—This point is devoted to answering the reasoning of Judge Reynolds' opinion, at General Term, that, as a matter of discretion, the order for a bill of particulars should not be made.

Fourteenth—The order should be reversed, and particulars should be directed to be furnished.

THE RESPONDENT'S "POINTS," elaborated by Mr. Roger A. Pryor, are four in number, and are devoted to the questions:—

First—Whether, and under what authority, the order is or may be appealable to this Court, and Second—That, if the Court entertain the appeal, the order should be affirmed.

The Court announced it would render a decision prior to the hearing in the case, which takes place next Tuesday.

UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, 1874.

No. 79. The county of Lee vs. Henry Clews & Co.—Error to the District Court of Alabama. This was an action by defendants here, holders for value, to recover on bonds issued by the county, purporting to be issued under and in pursuance of an act of the Legislature of Alabama, in aid of the Eufaula, Opelika, Oxford and Guntersville Railroad Company. The defence was that the bonds were without authority of law, and were issued after the service of an injunction restraining the act. The court below sustained the validity of the bonds and the judgment was for the holders. This ruling is assigned as error here. R. T. Merrick for appellant, S. F. Rice for appellees.

THE OCEAN DEPTHS.

Trial of a Deep-Sea Sounding Apparatus on Board the United States Steamer Narragansett—Very Successful Experiments.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 21, 1874.

The United States steamer Narragansett, Commander George Dewey commanding, proceeded to sea, from Vallejo, on the morning of the 19th inst., to test the practical working of her deep-sea sounding apparatus. The Narragansett has taken the place of the United States steamer Tuscarora in the work of sounding the depths of the Pacific. Commander Belknap, while in command of the latter vessel, was the first to prove the practicability of using piano wire for this purpose. He added many improvements to the then existing apparatus, though it is still far from being perfect; yet such is the degree to which the perfection has been carried that the depth of the ocean can be ascertained anywhere. The Narragansett started on her short cruise equipped with all these improvements.

The day was clear and pleasant; the sea was as smooth as glass, there being scarcely a breath of wind blowing. It seemed as if everything conspired to make the day as perfect as possible for the experiment. The first cast was made about 100 miles from the coast, and the bottom was obtained in 2,197 fathoms, or about two and three-quarter statute miles. No. 22 English piano wire was used, with a shot attached to the specimen cup weighing fifty-eight pounds. Thomson's machine was used for running it out and reeling it in. The wire is wound around a drum, the circumference of which is exactly one fathom. An instrument called the odometer registers the number of revolutions of the drum. An endless rope runs from the drum through a pulley leading from an upright and down around another instrument called the dynamometer. A number of weights are suspended from the pulley to counteract the traction of the shot and wire. The dynamometer registers the amount of this traction. When the shot reaches the bottom and is detached, all the tension, or nearly all, is removed from that and the wire and the dynamometer fly back on account of the endless rope becoming slack and registers no traction.

The first operation consumed 26 min. and 41 sec. in running out. The reeling in was done by hand in 33 min. and 24 sec., reliefs of four men each following each other at every 100 fathoms of the wire reeled in. This is quite a gain in time over the English process of deep sea sounding. With them the sounding alone at a depth of 2,500 fathoms occupies three hours (including heaving in the line). A Miller-Casella deep-sea thermometer was attached to the wire twenty fathoms above the shot. When brought back to the surface it registered a bottom temperature of 33.6 deg. I again quote from the Challenger Expedition:—"The temperature at the bottom is very nearly always the same, being a little under or above 35 deg. We have never yet registered a bottom temperature of 34 deg."

Belknap's cylinders Nos. 1 and 2 were used to obtain a specimen of the bottom. They were perfectly successful. In each case they brought back about two ounces (measurement) of a greenish ooze, which, under the microscope, was found to be composed of diatoms, silicious spicules and an amorphous residue, which resisted the action of boiling nitric acid. Conspicuous for their beauty among the diatoms were circular forms with tesselated surfaces and spindle-shaped bodies with transverse markings. Both of these forms resemble very much the fossil diatoms of the Barbados earth.

A second cast was made about fourteen miles nearer the coast, and bottom was obtained at 1,994 fathoms. The thermometer registered a bottom temperature of 34.1 deg.; 23min. 28sec. were required for the shot to reach the bottom, and 25min. 57sec. to reel in the wire.

There was not a hitch or a break in any of the work. Everything worked as smoothly as if they were measuring the depth of a shallow pond with a pole, and the results were as accurate.

The Narragansett will start on her regular work of deep-sea sounding in a few days. She will take a series of soundings along the coast of Lower California, running off and on the shore, to determine the shelving of the coast line. She will also sound over the Gulf of California.

Scientific Work of the Bureau of Navigation—The Surveys in the Pacific and Elsewhere—Results Achieved—The Panama Canal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29, 1874.

Commmodore David Ammen, Chief of the Bureau of Navigation, Navy Department, in his annual report to the Secretary of the Navy, says that the liquid marine compass has been found so superior that it is adopted for all purposes. A sufficient number of dry marine compasses has been retained for any sudden emergency, and the others will be sold. Bronze binnacles, "compass stands," are being substituted in lieu of wooden ones. The hydrographic work, especially on the coasts of Mexico, has been satisfactorily prosecuted. The survey of the exterior coast and Gulf of California has been almost completed and a running survey completed from our boundary, the Rio Grande, to Yucatan. Very considerable errors of latitude and longitude have been corrected. Our vessels of war at various points have done useful work, especially the Wasp in the mouth of the Rio de la Plata. The longitudes in the West Indies and Central America are being rectified.

The purchase of two three-masted schooners and the employment of one steam vessel, all properly fitted out, is regarded as necessary to a proper prosecution of the survey of the North Pacific Ocean. The aggregate results of vessels acting in concert are much greater than when acting singly. It is supposed necessary for us to survey the North Pacific, as well for a proper return to other Powers for their exertions in other seas, as an appreciation of our national interests.

The interoceanic canal surveys have been laboriously pursued and their results are gratifying, and probably point to the commercial possibility of the construction of a ship canal. The deep sea soundings have been most successfully prosecuted by the use of steel wire instead of hemp line. The steel wire is relatively much lighter compared with the attached weight to sink it. It has neither the elasticity or "stretch" nor the "surface friction" of hemp line, all elements that tend to make the results more reliable or, within reasonable limits of error, entirely so. The ease with which wire is protected from deterioration, its portability and small cost are other advantages making it possible for all vessels of war to be provided with a sounding apparatus without interfering in any degree with their other duties. Twelve sounding apparatus are now ready for use as may be required by the department.

The "running lights" of sailing and steam vessels are supposed to be defective for reasons assigned and common to all nations. Experiments are in progress to ascertain whether the defects are as great as supposed and as to the means of correction. An electric light has been purchased and will be employed in experimental signalling. If it is found that the light can be produced without delay and with certainty at all times it is proposed to place it on board of a vessel of war, and if found advantageous to supply it to other vessels as the appropriations will warrant. The chromo-semic system of signalling will be tried further.

It has not so far proven satisfactory, perhaps on account of defective appliances or apparatus.

A recommendation is made to require young officers passing for promotion to be well versed in the army method of signalling.

THE ELECTION DAY MURDERS.

Post-Mortem Examination of the Body of Thomas Marra.

Deputy Coroner Marsh yesterday made a post-mortem examination of the body of Thomas Marra, another victim of the election day (Second avenue) murder—or rather murders—in the Twenty-first ward. It will be remembered that Marra, in passing the scene of the McKenna homicide, received a stray ball—fired by nobody knows whom—in his right arm, just below the elbow; that gangrene set in, and death finally ensued from the effects of the wound. Coroner Eickhoff is very judiciously waiting for the developments at the approaching trial of Croker before holding the inquest. At the examination of the body, which was made at the Morgue, Dr. Marsh found that death resulted from the injuries received.

WASHINGTON.

The President's Message Before the Cabinet.

A NEW DISTRICT INVESTIGATION.

Blunders Charged Against the Prosecution in the "Conspiracy" Trial.

THE INTER-OCEANIC SURVEYS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1, 1874.

A Lengthy Cabinet Meeting—The President's Message Under Discussion.

The Cabinet was in session about two hours to-day. All the members were present except Secretary Robeson and Attorney General Williams, the latter being engaged in the Supreme Court. The whole of the session was occupied in discussing the President's Message, now in course of preparation.

Coming Congressional Inquiry Into the District Judiciary—Can Untrammelled Justice Be Obtained?—The "Safe Burglary Trial" and Its Blunders.

It is understood that on the assembling of Congress a resolution will be offered in both houses calling for the appointment of a joint committee to investigate and report whether in the District of Columbia there is an untrammelled judiciary and whether there is need of reform in the organization of the District Courts. This step will be taken in consequence of what prominent members of Congress on the administration side conceive to be the greatest outrage ever perpetrated in the name of justice, the "safe burglary" trial. The Attorney General has not fully decided whether to abandon further prosecution, but he has determined not to try the case again for some time. His reason is that at the recent trial the government neither spared pains nor expense to have the prosecution successful. Skilled detectives, able counsel and a host of witnesses have already heavily taxed the government in a city where there is more or less prejudice against the accused, where every man competent to sit on a jury has formed an opinion of the innocence or guilt of the parties and where it would be useless to expect a jury to be empanelled that would do anything more than the last jury—disagree. At least he will wait until the excitement occasioned by the five weeks' trial has passed away before he will consent to proceed to a second trial. While the ability of A. C. Riddle, the senior counsel of the government in the conduct of the case, has been admitted it has transpired since the close of the trial that the government committed a fatal blunder in not demanding the stolen property taken by the burglars on the night of the robbery to be brought into Court. This most important part of the evidence, and such as is required to convict every thief and burglar, was wholly overlooked. The parties were tried for conspiracy, and the very gist of the evidence against them was suffered to be restored to the alleged conspirators and the prosecution left to build up a case on purely circumstantial evidence. This development has revived anew the interest in the case. It is said that had the contents of Benton's satchel been brought into Court as when seized by the Superintendent of Police, there would have been no need of a theory; also certain burglarious implements kindly loaned to the burglars for the occasion, from among those long since captured from felons and supposed to be forever harmless for evil deeds, might have been brought into Court to further prove the depth of the conspiracy and the connection with it of government officials. For this reason, more than all else, it is alleged, was it desirable that Benton, the party arrested, should be released, as he had determined to turn State's evidence and his testimony would have compelled the prosecution to bring into court the only fatal evidence through which those who were only the tools would in self-defence be compelled to confess who originated, aided and abetted the scheme. But the day is past. As already stated, if the case is again tried, it will be months hence and most probably never at all.

The Isthmus Routes for an Interoceanic Canal.

To-day Simon Stevens, of New York, submitted to the Interoceanic Canal Commission reports upon the Tehuantepec route and harbors, prepared by General Barnard, of the United States Engineer corps, and by the late General William H. Sidell. The printed document and maps tend to demonstrate the advantages that the Tehuantepec route possesses over all others across the American isthmus for a canal with locks and without tunnels to connect the commerce of the Gulf of Mexico with that of the Pacific Ocean, with feasible harbors on both coasts. Mr. Stevens suggests that, before a final report in favor of any route for a canal or water transit shall be made, the survey of the isthmus shall be completed, so as to connect the works of Captain Shufeldt upon the summit with his surveys of the two coasts.

Fashionable Smuggling — Congress Called to Remedy the Constant Evasion of the Impost Duties by Tourists—"Baggage Rings" in the Custom Houses.

The Commissioner of Customs, in his report just submitted to the Secretary of the Treasury, made some comments on the practice of American tourists returning from Europe in bringing in dutiable goods under the head of wearing apparel. The estimate of the Commissioner that the value of goods thus brought in reached the sum of $128,000,000 yearly has been pronounced excessive. The Commissioner, from additional information which he has received since the preparation of his report, is well satisfied that his estimate was under rather than over the mark. The people of the United States, at least that portion who remain in their own country, have but little idea of the extent to which this fashionable smuggling is carried on by their wealthier neighbors, who annually pass between this country and Europe. As remarked to-day by the Commissioner, the smuggler of the present is not the smuggler as described by Scott and Marryatt. He is not the brawny, bearded desperado with murder in his heart and a cutlass in his hand, but a fine lady or gentlemen, dressed in silk or broadcloth, whose gold coin or greenback quietly dropped in the hand is a more potent weapon than the cutlass or the bludgeon. It is not intended to charge that every American citizen returning from Europe deliberately defrauds his government, but from the reports of special agents, who have been detailed at the principal seaports, it has been ascertained that the vast majority of returning tourists bring in, duty free, large lots of choice fabrics, either for their friends or as merchandise to be disposed of for gain. A case has been reported, of a lady moving in the most fashionable circles of New York who makes an annual tour to Europe, and who has been known to boast that she realizes more than her expenses abroad by the sale of the silks, velvets and laces which she brings in as her own wearing apparel. Persons who would repel with indignation any temptation to take the least advantage in their business relations with individuals seem to consider it as rather creditable than otherwise if they can evade the payment of their just dues to the government. Some time since, a resident of Massachusetts, who had represented his State in Congress and filled other high positions, returned from Europe with fifteen trunks. On his declaration that they contained only the personal effects of himself and his family they were passed. Afterwards it was discovered that probably one-half the contents were intended for lady friends of the family. The government, in this one case, lost probably $5,000, to which it was rightfully entitled. The Commissioner of Customs received to-day a report from one of the special agents at New York, detailing a case which occurred on the steamer Java, on its last inward trip. A passenger, closely allied with some of the oldest and proudest families of New Jersey and Pennsylvania had five trunks, which were passed on his declaration that they contained only his personal effects. The agent, however, suspected duplicity and "shadowed" the trunks. The result was that three out of the five were found to be intended for and were delivered to other parties—one to the wife of a wealthy citizen of New York and one each to two ladies in Princeton, N. J. An examination of the trunks disclosed that they were properly dutiable to the amount of $1,391. The person who brought them over at once offered to pay the full amount of the duty and the penalty, which was $4,288.

These cases are only given as samples of many which are being constantly reported. Mr. A. T. Stewart has stated that in instances which had come to his knowledge, where he was being undersold in certain articles, the articles aforesaid had been brought in by these so-called tourists. It is, in fact, established that at some of the custom houses a regular "baggage ring" exists which has tended to facilitate the operations of those who defraud the government in this way. Some time since it came to the knowledge of the department that an oral order at one of the custom houses forbade the inspectors making any seizures of baggage and instructed them to make an examination of but one trunk in a lot belonging to any single passenger. On being advised of this order it was at once revoked. The attention of members of Congress having been directed to this very important subject it can scarcely be doubted that some action to correct the gross abuses which prevail will be taken at the ensuing session. The recommendation of the Commissioner to limit the value of the baggage of each passenger and to require the declaration as to said value to be made on oath is well thought of.

The Quartermaster General's Report—The Sales of Southern Railroads and the New Military Telegraph.

The Quartermaster General renews the recommendation that an allowance of $10 per month be made in addition to the pay of every line officer who is detailed by the proper authority for acting assistant quartermaster of a military post when such detail is properly reported to and approved by the War Department. Such an allowance is only just, and would relieve the service from the feeling that heavy duties are imposed by such detail without any recognition or compensation. Such duties are important and should be sought by good officers—not imposed on the slothful or unwilling. During the year 314 officers of the line have peformed duty in the department as acting assistant quartermasters. The officers of the regular establishment of the Quartermaster's Department, all of whom served through the late war and have had much experience, are stationed at the more important depots and posts. Yet many posts, involving a heavy responsibility in money and property and calling for good judgment, integrity and zeal, are occupied by subalterns of the line, on duty as acting assistant quartermasters. The number of officers is now reduced to sixty-six, the duties of whom and their stations are given. The movement during the year, so far as reported, was by rail, wagon, stage and vessels, of 44,159 persons, 5,835 beasts and 99,204 tons of material. The total movements by Pacific Railroad, 8,523 persons, 1,781 beasts and 25,262,459 pounds of freight.

At the close of the war there were sold on credit to various railroad companies, principally in the South, railroad material to the appraised value of $7,556,034. There remained due and unpaid from certain of these railroads June 30, 1873, $4,658,924.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1874, interest has accrued upon this indebtedness, and expenses have been incurred to the amount of $98,479. Payments in cash, in transportation and postal earnings have been made to the amount of $116,791. On the 1st of July last there remained an indebtedness to be collected by the Quartermaster's Department of $1,897,397. not including the sum of $43,754 due from the Mississippi, Gainesville and Tuscaloosa Railroad Company, which is bankrupt, nor the amount due from the East Tennessee and Virginia, the East Tennessee and Georgia, the Nashville and Chattanooga, and the Nashville and Decatur railroads, which is $2,699,470, and which are compromised under the act of March 3, 1871, for the sum of $1,265,000, and made payable to the Assistant Treasurer at New York. The actual decrease of the debt during the year, including payments of accrued interest, but excluding the reduction by compromise under the law is $28,311. Some provision of law for the collection of the money due and settlement of the debt is desirable. Suits are in progress against several railroads on account of these sales.

During the year the erection of 140 new buildings has been authorized. They are at military posts in 23 States and 8 Territories, with an estimated cost of $313,233. They are barracks for officers and soldiers, guard houses, &c. Two new four-company posts were authorized in Arizona—Camp Lowell, near Tucson, and Camp Grant. The Quartermaster General gives details of operations in his Department showing the large amount of work done during the past year, and says orders have been given to break up and abandon Camp Warner, Oregon, and Camp Bowie, Arizona. Experiments are in progress at Jeffersonville to prevent clothing from being destroyed by the moth, with hopes of success. The Quartermaster General speaks of the advantages of the line of military telegraph recently constructed through the distant Territories. The expenditures upon the national military cemeteries during the past year were $267,256. The report ends with statements of claims presented and allowed, involving large sums, and of those remaining unadjusted.

THE BROOKLYN MAILS.

The Proposed Consolidation of Her Post Office with that of New York—Favorable Report by Special Agents—A Saving to the Government.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 1, 1874.

The following is a copy of the report of the special agents of the Post Office Department, recommending a consolidation of the Brooklyn with the New York Post Office:—

WASHINGTON, Nov. 30, 1874.

SIR—We have the honor to report that upon the 26th and 27th insts. we visited the Post Office at Brooklyn, N. Y. We visited all the stations except station G—a small affair, at which only three carriers are employed. We noted carefully all matters of fact connected with the management and working of the office, that we find the force of the Brooklyn Post Office, including the different stations, to consist of 122 persons, divided as follows:—Office clerks, including Postmaster, 36, and letter carriers, 86. The business done at the Brooklyn office is very small as compared with that of other cities of like population, which fact accounts for the apparent discrepancy between that office and others. As to the per cent of receipts expended for defraying the expenses of the service, especially of the free delivery, Brooklyn is a mere appendage to New York, a lodging room for the great metropolis, where the business is transacted and from which the revenues are derived.

We think the people of Brooklyn could be far better and more expeditiously supplied with mail matter from New York direct than under the present arrangement. In support of this assertion we might mention the fact that the whole edition of the Brooklyn Eagle and Brooklyn Argus is sent direct from the office of publication to the Post office at New York, at which place they are received at fifteen minutes before five o'clock P. M.; yet, so ample are the arrangements for distribution at the New York office that the whole number are despatched by the first mail which departs the same evening. By discontinuing the Brooklyn Post Office and transferring the duties appertaining thereto to the New York office two important points would be attained.

First—The service would be greatly improved, the transmission of mail matter facilitated and the confusion now existing—the result of different rulings and practices—entirely overcome.

Second—A very great saving to the department would ensue, amounting to thousands of dollars annually. The lease of the rooms now occupied as the main office at Brooklyn will expire on the 31st of December next. The sum of $4,000 per annum is now being paid for the premises, and upon January 1 it is proposed to increase the rent to $5,000. By discontinuing the Brooklyn Post Office it is estimated that the expenses of that concern might be reduced as follows:—

In clerk hire, per annum	$27,402
Rent	2,500
Incidental expenses	862
Gas	260
Stationery	532
Total	$31,636

The above estimates are made after allowing what is deemed a reasonable sum for the transaction of the business of the different stations. For these and other reasons, which must be apparent to all, we recommend that the Post Office at Brooklyn be discontinued on and after January 1, 1875, and consolidated with the Post Office at New York, and that the Post Office at New York be allowed the sum of $14,500 per annum for clerk hire, to be equitably divided between the clerks at such stations as the Postmaster at New York may see proper to establish in Brooklyn. All of which is respectfully submitted. Very respectfully,

C. F. BALDWIN,
C. A. WALFORN,
Special Agents Post Office Department.

To the Honorable the Postmaster General, Washington, D. C.

FIRE IN WATER STREET.

Foreign Fruits and Mineral Waters as Combustibles—Damage, $11,000.

A fire was discovered at about eleven o'clock last night in the building No. 66 Water street, which is occupied by Joseph D. Herron, a dealer in foreign fruits. The flames must have been in progress for some time, for their presence was first announced by thick, pungent smoke issuing through the doors and windows of the building. When the firemen arrived at the fire they found it impossible to enter, as the smoke choked up every avenue into the building with dense, suffocating masses. The flames appeared to have spread from the store floor, which is just above the level of the street, into every part of the house, and there were indications that a large fire was about beginning. A second alarm was therefore sounded; but before the firemen who were called out by it arrived their predecessors were working sturdily and successfully to overcome the flames. The fire, in the interval in which it had been undisturbed, had feasted upon cocoanuts and many other kinds of fruit, and had eaten away most of the woodwork of the unplastered storerooms.

The loss occasioned to Mr. Herron by the effects of fire and water upon his stock of fruits is probably about $8,000, while the building was damaged to the value of $2,000.

The firemen, in order to get at the rear of the fire, forced a way through the building No. 11 Old slip, which is occupied by John Dwight, a manufacturer of mineral water. His loss, occasioned by water, is about $1,000.

Geo Warner (the captain) and John Bower, John Smithfield, James McKim and an unknown passenger, who was sick, were drowned. The owner, Mr Thomas J Green, and a man named Joseph Tilman, of Boston, succeeded in clinging to the rigging. The cold was too great for Tilman, and he died from the exposure while lashed in the rigging. Mr Green was rescued from the shore after remaining exposed in the rigging from 6 AM to 4 PM. Robert Page escaped on a part of the cabin, which floated off and was landed on the shore. All on board were lost except these two.
